ROOSEVELT JOB PLAN IN CONGRESS

Today

The Last of Zangara.
Better Times--In England.
Pogrom Threatened.
Special Ambassador.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GIUSEPPE ZANGARA, who killed Mayor Cermak, was killed by electricity yesterday in the prison at Raiford, Fla.

The criminal, entering the death room, the back of his head shaved, feet bare, dressed in striped trousers and a white shirt open at the neck, pushed aside the two guards beside him, walked to the chair, sat down, saying:

"Don't hold me, I no afraid of chair."

He took his seat as quietly, the guards said, as though he were "sitting down for lunch."

Thirty men, including prison attendants, saw him strapped in the chair and killed, by one short, thirty-second electric shock. While the straps were adjusted to hold him down, Zangara looked around, annoyed by the absence of photographers. "No camera man here?" he asked. The prison superintendent said "no," and Zangara shouted:

"Lousy capitalists."

He had hoped that photographs would show how bravely he died. Such is ambition.

ZANGARA IS far from Florida today. WHERE is he? Some believe or THINK they believe that a higher judge, creator of the universe, will tell Zangara that he must now go to hell, to suffer inconceivable torment forever, and that ten thousand billion years from now he will still be burning and writhing in the place "where their worm dieth not."

To some, on the other hand, it does not seem probable that divine wisdom would punish thus a being created by itself.

IF HE heard that sentence for eternity, would Zangara say again, as he said to the judge condemning him in Florida:

"Me no care?"

It is not impossible. In Dante's awful picture of hell, he shows a defiant sinner rising to the surface of the boiling pitch for an instant, looking up to heaven with a mocking gesture and saying:

"That for you."

THAT ZANGARA is better dead there is no doubt. That it is a good thing for the state to imitate the murderer and kill as he killed there is great doubt.

IT IS pleasant to know that things are getting better in some places on the earth. Better conditions always spread. Mr. A. H. Rowan, an American engaged in business in London, writes:

"For the moment business on this side looks decidedly better. It is reflected in the large increase in the number of business men traveling. One has difficulty in getting sleeping car accommodations, in comparison with two months ago, when one was practically the only passenger in the sleeping car. I arrived this morning from Germany, and the restaurant car was filled up and I had to wait for a second service."

The Pullman, one of our most useful and important institutions, will tell you that, unfortunately, there is no crowding in their American cars or dining cars.

ANOTHER PLOT to kill the German dictator, Hitler, is reported from Munich. It is in Munich, Bavaria's principal city, that Hitler's power arouses most antagonism, because of his attitude toward the "Centrist party" and its publications.

Three men, said to be "reds," were seen depositing hand grenades and ammunition near Hitler's house. Nothing is proved, but the police commissioner said afterward:

"If a single shot were fired against any member of the new government, even if it missed its mark, there would be unparalleled chaos, and greatest pogrom (wholesale murder) which no authority in the world could prevent."

The pogrom, of course, would mean massacre of the particular classes and individuals to which the Hitler regime objects.

Not a pleasant outlook for Germany.

NORMAN H. DAVIS sails for Europe on Thursday as "special ambassador on disarmaments and economies." Ramsay MacDonald and Mussolini are said to have agreed on a five-year plan to save money, help peace and recovery of the world. Strange how everybody seems to borrow that "five-year plan" idea from Russia.

Uncle Sam is asked to come over, as usual, and say amen.

President Roosevelt probably will not allow the United States to be tied up in any agreement that might interfere with future plans.

A YOUNG British officer, lieutenant in the Seaforth Highlanders, now a prisoner in the Tower of London, is accused of selling his government's military secrets to Germany for 50 pounds.

The charge, made positively by his superior officer, backed up with facts and the proof that money was received, looks bad. It is easy to understand the bitter disgust aroused in Great Britain.

The accused man, son of a British army officer, asserts that the money received from Berlin was sent to him by "a woman with whom I once had a love affair." He does not know her name.

STOCKS WERE quiet yesterday, no excitement, no boom. Under such circumstances stock reporters write:

"Stocks quiet and firm."

They would rather say:

"Stocks soaring."

A moving picture man asked: "How is business?" and anxious to be conservative without hurting trade, replied:

"Hardly colossal."

SUNDAY BALL VOTED BY SENATE

Amended Measure to Face New Fight In House

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 21.—The Schwartz Sunday baseball bill was passed by the Senate today by a vote of 26 to 23.

The measure, with amendments, now goes to the House for concurrence, where Representative Joseph G. Steedle and Allegheny County liberals are considering a battle against the changes made in the Senate.

The bill, defeated last week by a vote of 26 to 24 in the Senate, was passed today through a switch in the votes of Senators John J. McClure, of Delaware County, and G. Mason Owlett, of Tioga.

BRANDT OPPOSED

Senator Herman Brandt, of Allegheny County, voted against the measure today, as he did last week. Senators Armstrong, Coyne, Einstein, Harris and Mansfield voted with the majority.

In its present form the bill provides for a statewide referendum at the November election on legalization of baseball and football between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m. on Sunday.

If the majority of the voters of the state approve the proposal, local legislative bodies in governmental divisions which favored the measure must pass ordinances licensing the sports. Communities which voted against the blue law revision would retain the present system of Sunday observance.

If Steedle should be successful in his fight on concurrence in the amendments the bill will go to conference in the two houses. The result probably would be delayed, which would enable the Steedle bill, providing for local option decision on blue law repeal, to catch up with the Schwartz measure in the legislative mill.

STEEDLE BILL PASSED

The Steedle bill passed the House last night by 126 to 74, and now is in the Law and Order Committee of the Senate. Only Representatives James H. McClure and William A. Walker, of the Allegheny County delegation, voted against the Steedle bill.

Debate on the Schwartz bill in the Senate today was limited. Senator Snyder, of Lehigh County, picked legal flaws in the measure, and there also was objection on the ground that the Senate was shouldering on the people a decision which should be made by the Legislature.

The vote on the Sunday sports bill:

Those voting yes—Armstrong, Aron, Baumer, Boyd, Buckman, Coyne, Einstein, Frazier, Harris, Harvey, Howell, Hunsicker, Krause, Mansfield, McClure, Miller, Owlett, Quigley, Roberts, Salus, Shapiro, Sordoni, Staudenmeier, Trainer, Woodward and Ziesenheim.

Those voting no—Batchelor, Bell, Bennett, Brandt, Chapman, Clark, Ealy, Fay, Gelder, Graff, Homsher, Lanius, Norton, Parkinson, Pethick, Pierson, Prince, Reed, Rice, Snyder, Sones, Thompson and Williamson.

Condition of Davis Held Satisfactory

With the patient apparently "out of danger," the condition of United States Senator James J. Davis was pronounced satisfactory at South Side Hospital today.

The Senator underwent an operation in the hospital 10 days ago for appendicitis.

Altrock Writes On Blue Laws

Nick Altrock, baseball's comedian, has his say about the Blue Laws situation which deprives Pennsylvania of Sunday baseball. Read his comments in the sports section today.

CINCINNATI PERILED BY FLOOD

Cold Bringing New Distress to Towns In Ohio Valley

CINCINNATI, O., March 21. — (AP.) — Flood waters threatened new destruction in Cincinnati, wearing down a levee protecting homes and the Municipal Airport in the extreme East End.

The airport superintendent reported the levee, a mile and a quarter long, showed signs of giving way, and residents of Robb avenue and streets nearby began to move out.

All available police cars were rushed to the one and one-quarter mile front to move out all residents and as much of their belongings as possible before the threatened break. The airport superintendent reported he felt the dyke quaking beneath him as he patrolled it.

As the morning wore on, concern was expressed for another levee protecting the airport and adjoining suburbs. This dyke—the Union levee—gave way at a spillway cut, and torrents of water began rushing into an unused portion of the airport. The nearest houses were about a half mile away.

CREEK FLOODS AREA

On the other side of town, erratic Mill Creek spread backwaters into the northern suburbs of the West End, far from the Ohio River proper. Above the city, however, came word that the waters were receding in the Ohio.

Meanwhile, yellowed Ohio River waters continued to wreak destruction up and down the valley, while homeless huddled in tents, lodge halls and churches. Snow, and a biting cold added to the distress.

The river stage at Cincinnati passed 63 feet by mid-morning, 11 feet above flood level, and was still rising.

Meanwhile, streams in southern Indiana overflowed from heavy rains and helped swell the Ohio, already far out of its banks and inundating thousands of acres in city and country with unestimated

13-YEAR DRY ERA ENDED BY HOUSE

3.2 Pct. Beer Bill Passes Congress, Up to F. R.

By WILLIAM K. TUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Congress today dramatically voted an end to 13 years of bone-dryness when the House approved a conference report on the 3.2 per cent beer bill.

The final House approval came so quickly that the House hardly realized what it had done.

An no one demanded a roll call and Rainey declared the conference report approved, the bewildered foes of prohibition regained their poise and broke into cheers.

Speaker Rainey immediately signe dthe measure, leaving only the signature of Vice President Garner necessary to send the bill to the White House.

ONE VOICE OPPOSED

Only Representative Blanton (Dem.), of Texas, leader of the House drys, rose to speak in opposition to the conference report. After a brief explanation by Representativce Cullen (Dem.), of New York, sponsor of the bill, the wets confined their talk to interrupting Blanton.

The measure now goes to President Roosevelt, whose signature is assured. However, he won't get a chance to sign it before nightfall, for the Senate recessed before the House acted, and Vice President Garner's signature could not be affixed during the Senate's recess. His signature and that of the President probably will be attached tomorrow—and 15 days thereafter beer will begin to flow where it is not specifically prohibited by state law.

23 STATES AFFECTED

As the measure becomes effective 15 days after signature, legal beer will flow in 23 states after April 6. The House parliamentarian held that the effective date will be April 7 if the bill is signed tomorrow.

Since the Senate had approved the conference report yesterday by a 43 to 36 vote, yielding to the House on all important matters of dispute, House approval today was a formality.

Text of President's Job Relief Message

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP.)—The text of President Roosevelt's message of jobless relief follows:

"To the Congress:

"It is essential to our recovery program that measures immediately be enacted aimed at unemployment relief. A direct attack in this problem suggests three types of legislation.

"The first is the enrollment of workers now by the federal government for such public employment as can be quickly started and will not interfere with the demand for or the proper standards of normal employment.

"The second is grants to states for relief work.

"The third extends to a broad public works labor creating program.

"With reference to the latter I am now studying the many projects suggested and the financial questions involved. I shall make recommendations to the Congress presently.

"In regards to grants to states for relief work, I advise you that the remainder of the appropriation of last year will last until May. Therefore, and because a continuance of federal aid is still a definite necessity for many states, a further appropriation must be made before the end of this special session.

"I find a clear need for some simple federal machinery to coordinate and check these grants of aid. I am, therefore, asking that you establish the office of federal relief administrator, whose duty it will be to scan requests for grants and to check the efficiency and wisdom of their use.

"The first of these measures which I have enumerated, however, can and should be immediately enacted. I propose to create a civilian conservation corps to be used in simple work, not interfering with normal employment, and confining itself to forestry, the prevention of soil erosion, flood control and similar projects.

"I call your attention to the fact that this type of work is of definite, practical value, not only through the prevention of great present financial loss, but also as a means of creating future national wealth. This is brought home by the news we are receiving today of vast damage caused by floods on the Ohio and other rivers.

"Control and direction of such work can be carried on by existing machinery of the Departments of Labor, Agriculture, War and Interior.

"I estimate that 250,000 men can be given temporary employment by early summer if you give me authority to proceed within the next two weeks.

"I ask no new funds at this time. The use of unobligated funds, now appropriated for public works, will be sufficient for several months.

"This enterprise is an established part of our national policy. It will conserve our precious natural resources. It will pay dividends to the present and future generations. It will make improvements in national and state domains which have been largely forgotten in the past few years of industrial development.

"More important, however, than the material gains will be the moral and spiritual value of such work. The overwhelming majority of unemployed Americans, who are now walking the streets and receiving private or public relief, would infinitely prefer to work. We can take a vast army of these unemployed out into healthful surroundings.

"We can eliminate to some extent at least the threat that enforced idleness brings to spiritual and moral stability. It is not a panacea for all the unemployment, but it is an essential step in this emergency. I ask its adoption."

AIMS TO PUT 250,000 IN FORESTS

Direct Aid Proposed For States; Relief Chief Created

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt sent to Congress today the first of his plans for restoring employment, one putting a quarter million men to work in the forests, and immediate steps were taken to put the undertaking into law.

No sooner had this message, fifth major recommendation to the special session by the Chief Executive, been read and applauded in both houses than Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, introduced a bill under which, as the President requested, there would be created a "civilian observation corps" whose enlisted personnel would work at reforestation and halting soil erosion.

AID FOR STATES

The President, besides asking that this legislation be enacted within two weeks so he could put 250,000 men now unemployed to work at the forest task, told Congress he would soon send up recommendations for establishment of a federal relief administrator to direct his relief plans; for further "grants to states for relief work," and a broad program of public construction.

The Robinson-Wagner bill was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor. The President's message similarly was referred by the House to its Labor Committee.

Under the Senate measure, the President would be authorized to select from the unemployed men to work on reforestation, flood and soil erosion prevention and other projects at not more than $30 a month, with food and housing provided.

FUNDS AVAILABLE

The money would be provided from unexpended balances now in the Treasury, approximately $200,000,000 being needed this year.

The conservation corps would be employed for one year and in case of dependents the President would be authorized to prescribe how much should go to these, but in no event would the pay exceed $30 a month.

The projects to be worked would be self-liquidating insofar as practicable, although this rule would be flexible.

When skilled artisans were needed to assist the corps, the President would be authorized to employ them at the prevailing wage in the locality.

DOCTORS READY TO TEST MAYOR

The three physicians upon whose report depends Mayor Kline's chances of escaping a six-months jail term in return for his resignation will begin examination of the Mayor today or tomorrow.

The physicians—a neurologist, heart specialist and general practitioner—were appoined yesterday by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, with the permission of Judge Thomas D. Finletter.

Examination of the Mayor, it was learned will require three days and will be made in a hospital.

If this commission finds the Mayor is too sick to go to jail, District Attorney Park will join with the Mayor's counsel in asking Judge Finletter for such relief.

The Mayor will then resign and be succeeded by John S. Herron, president of Council.

Park denied yesterday he had already had the Mayor's resignation in his pocket, but he admitted he could get it any time if necessary. And Attorney Edward G. Coll, of the Mayor's counsel, added:

"Mr. Park has been so nice about this proceeding that if he wants the resignation I will get it for him."

KIDNAPING LAID TO RACKET

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 21.—With four suspects under arrest, police today attributed the kidnaping of the 16-year-old son of a tavern keeper to a bootleg war in the "Little Canada" area. The boy, Peter Myers, Jr., kidnaped last Saturday evening at his home in Masury, was believed by police to be held in a woods near Butler, Pa. While police sought for the kidnapers, Peter Myers, Sr., proprietor of the Gray Wolf Tavern on the Sharon-Youngstown road, sought to contact with the kidnapers.

The prisoners are Salvator Marino, 35, of Sharon; Frank Marcelli, 36, of Campbell; Nick Barona, 25, of Masury, and James Shaffer, 40, of Lakewood. When told the identity of the suspects, Myers said:

"They are friends of mine. I've known them for years. Anybody can be arrested for suspicion. I can't pay any ransom. All my money is tied up in the bank."

Myers then expressed the opinion that racketeers were responsible for his son's disappearance.

The boy's mother is prostrate with grief, but the father is making trips to nearby towns in search of clues for his son. He is also expecting to hear from the kidnapers. Their note, left with Mike Stevens, the Myers chauffeur, said the kidnapers would get in touch with Myers within a few days.

Death Knell Sounded For German Republic

Hindenburg Appeals For Dictatorship Under Hitler

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, March 21.—The death knell of Republican Germany as established by the Constitution of Weimer was sounded by Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering today, addressing the opening session of the new Reichstag. He declared:

"We herald the rebirth of the old Potsdam Prussian spirit."

Capt. Goering voiced his formal dismissal of the republican regime immediately after being re-elected speaker of the Reichstag. Among those who heard him were the former Crown Prince and hundreds of others who earlier in the day had gathered in the Garrison Church at Potsdam to hear President von Hindenburg appeal to the nation to support a dictatorship headed by Chancellar Adolf Hitler.

FREEDOM AND HONOR

Goering told the Reichstag:

"Fredom and honor will be the foundation of the coming Germany."

HOOVER HOME, HAS NO PLANS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., March 21.—(INS.)—Smiling, puffing a big cigar and surrounded by members of his family and friends, Herbert C. Hoover, today completed the transformation from President of the United States to a private citizen.

Mr. Hoover accompanied his son, Allan, his secretary, Lawrence Richey, and Gov. James Rolph, Jr., arrived at the beautiful Hoover estate atop San Juan Hill on the Stanford campus and formally announced that he was again in private life in every meaning of the term. He said:

"It is almost 19 years to the day since I left California to visit the European governments in behalf of the Panama-Pacific Exposition of 1915 in San Francisco.

"Since then I have been going ... from my home in California. Now I am going to reverse the order; I'm to stay at home in California."

A newspaper reporter cut in:

"But what are your plans?"

Mr. Hoover said sharply:

"I have no plans."

MACDONALD SEEKS FRENCH-GERMAN PEACE PLAN ACCORD

BRITISH LEADER CONFERS WITH DALADIER

Urges Paris to Bar Central European Fascist Bloc

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, March 21.—An attempt to weld Republican France and Nazi Germany into the nucleus of a new European peace line-up, with revision of the war treaties as the connecting bond, was made by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Britain, today.

Launching a conference with Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, after his arrival from Rome, where he and Premier Benito Mussolini evolved a proposal for four-power control of Europe, MacDonald attempted to meet the criticisms of the plan offered by French spokesman.

M'DONALD PLEA

At a luncheon by Lord Tyrell, British Ambassador to France, MacDonald told Daladier British and French acceptance of the four-power entente was desirable to prevent formation of a "central European Fascist bloc."

He pointed out there was no intention either by himself or Mussolini to strip the League of Nations of its powers or prerogatives, declaring that all four nations concerned are permanent members of the League Council and as such have definite obligations.

The four-power plan, MacDonald insisted, opens the way for disarmament solution, but requires a French compromise with Germany and with Italy on army and navy reductions.

PREMIER ANXIOUS

The British premier made no attempt to hide his anxiety lest France fail to take at least an "expectant attitude" regarding the plan.

MacDonald attempted to prove to Daladier that it would be wise for the French premier to seize the opportunity to tie up with Nazi Germany in agreement on peaceful treaty revision.

The British premier believes he seized the psychological moment by journeying to Rome before Chancellor Adolf Hitler had an opportunity to see Mussolini. In his gentle, canny Scotch manner he showed the Italian premier that it would be in his own interest to aid Britain in restraining Hitler, otherwise Il Duce was likely to find himself playing second fiddle in middle-European Fascism.

Today, he attempted to show the French that their best interest lies in welcoming Mussolini's plans and encouraging Il Duce to make Rome the capital of European peace.

MacDonald and Daladier concluded their talk at 5:45 p. m., after six hours of steady conversation.

ECONOMY MENU AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP.)—The White House today was having the first of its "inexpensive, high food content" meals.

The menu for luncheon, given by Mrs. Roosevelt at her press conference yesterday, was:

Hot stuffed eggs with tomato sauce, mashed potatoes, prune pudding and coffee.

The luncheon is one of a group of menus for a week planned for Mrs. Roosevelt by Miss Flora Rose, director of home economics of Cornell University.

In her first interview in the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt said she intended to make the experiment of serving some of the nutritional low-cost meals planned by Miss Rose, as an experiment in low-cost living.

The meal, the home economic experts figured, would cost 7½ cents per consumer if served to adults with coffee and 9½ cents each if served to children with milk.

FLOOD PERILS OHIO CITIES

damage. At least nine persons have lost their lives.

WHEELING PERILED

Already suffering from its worst flood in 20 years, Wheeling, W. Va., expected a fresh inundation. Portsmouth, O., continued efforts to reinforce a wall protecting the city.

National Guardsmen were called to Portsmouth, Batavia and Manchester, O. Several feet of water covered the business district of Manchester.

Families were driven out of their homes from Huntington, W. Va., to Evansville, Ind., as the Ohio continued to rise. The angry waters rushed toward Cairo, Ill., and the Mississippi, whose residents were preparing for flood stage.

Residents of the harassed towns along the Ohio River drew some encouragement from the prediction of colder weather, for they believed this would stop the heavy rains which have been sending the big steamboat artery and its tributaries out of their banks.

NEW RISE HERE

Another rise in the rivers here set in today in the wake of general rains here and over the watersheds of the Monongahela and Allegheny.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted the stage probably would not exceed 24 feet, one foot below the flood mark. This afternoon the stage at the Point was 22.9 feet, or four-tenths foot below yesterday's 23.3.

Rainfall here totaled .83 inch and varied from .25 to .93 inch in the upper rivers. Colder weather and snow will follow the rain, Brotzman said, nullifying a second flood threat within a week.

200 From Here Stage City Manager Parade

Delegation to Press Demands Before Legislature

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, March 21.—More than 200 Pittsburgh civic and social leaders paraded from the Pennsylvania Station to the state Capitol this afternoon preparatory to demanding from the Legislature a city manager form of government. The women wore hat bands, the men white arm bands.

Prominent in the group were 90 women, many of whom represented the Allegheny County League of Women Voters. Included in the group were Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, representing the Council of Republican Women and the Pennsylvania Elections Association; Mrs. John W. Murtland, of the Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. George S. Ebbert, of the Federation of Girls' School Societies; Mrs. Douglas Stewart, Mrs. Frederick Merrick, Mrs. Hughart Laughlin, Mrs. George P. Bassett, and Mrs. W. J. Bissel, Mrs. J. O. Miller and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, heading the League of Women Voters' delegation.

Among organizations represented by men were the municipal charter committee, F. C. Irish; Pennsylvania Elections Conference, Alexander P. Linsay; Allied Boards of Trade, Harry Bastow; Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League, I. Leonard Aaronson; labor groups, P. T. Fagan; Chamber of Commerce, Alexander Dunn; Ingram Board of Trade, Col. Charles A. May; North Side Chamber of Commerce, W. H. Newmyer; East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, Pat Flood; Civic Club, Ralph S. Boots and Francis D. Tyson.

Sanford A. Headley, of Cincinnati, also was in the group. He was to speak in favor of the manager plan as it is in force in the Ohio city. A number of independent civic and political leaders also made the trip. Prominent among these were City Councilman P. J. McArdle, Ralph Flinn, Henry Tranter, Edward O. Tabor, James B. Warden, Robert Ellon and W. J. Lawrence.

M. C. Conick, county auditor, was prepared to submit figures on city government costs as well as a survey of the office of delinquent tax collector, which he made recently for the League of Women Voters. The delegation planned also to attend a hearing on the O'Keefe bill, which would abolish the delinquent tax office.

RUNNERS' WORK EXPLAINED

Physicians, newspapers and policemen are the means through which a "runner" tracks down business for a lawyer, according to testimony today in Common Pleas Court, where disbarment proceedings brought by the Allegheny Bar Association are being tried against Ben Paul Brasley.

George L. Brady, who solicited and investigated civil cases, testified:

"I have many doctors working for me."

In the next breath he added that he obtained leads on most of his cases from accident reports in the newspapers. And, he said, police officers used to call him up.

Brady told Attorney Joseph A. Richardson, counsel for the Bar Association, of several cases he took to the firm of which Brasley was a member.

But he was employed not by Brasley but by a partner of Brasley's, Attorney Harry Rubin, the witness explained.

Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for Brasley, also scored in his cross examination of B. K. McKnight, an investigator who worked with Brady. McKnight admitted that he had testified before the Bar committee that he would "hesitate" to approach Brasley with any solicited case—this after McKnight had testified yesterday that he and Brady had an agreement with Brasley by which they were to receive 33 1-3 per cent of Brasley's fees on cases they brought in.

DEBT PAYMENTS EXPECTED BY ROOSEVELT

White House Refutes Story He Will Ask For Suspension

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—President Roosevelt has no intention of requesting authority from Congress to postpone or suspend foreign debt payments.

This was announced at the White House today in a refutation of a story printed in a New York morning newspaper to the effect that the new administration is already considering steps to defer the payments due next June 15.

On the contrary, it was stated, President Roosevelt expects the payments will be made, and is proceeding on no other assumption.

Pressure of domestic affairs has operated to prevent the President from giving much consideration to foreign debts since his inauguration, and it was stated today that no date has been set for tackling the debt problem.

President Roosevelt announced several months ago that he proposed to ask Congress to set up an advisory body in connection with the debt settlements, such body to keep Congress closely advised in the premises.

French Leaders Debate U. S. Debt Issue

PARIS, March 21.—(AP.)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot urged immediate payment of the defaulted interest on war debts due the United States, and Leon Blum, Socialist deputy, upheld the Chamber's decision of last December not to pay, in meetings today of the two major parties of the government's majority.

Herriot, who talked with Premier Edouard Daladier this morning after telling a radical Socialist party group that payment should be made, said he would take no initiative because his own government was overthrown on the question last December. He emphasized, however, "the necessity of voting payment without delay."

Blum, meanwhile, told the Socialists they should adhere to the Chamber's refusal until the government had been assured that President Roosevelt's attitude fulfilled the Chamber's condition for a general conference of creditors and debtors.

URGES DIRECT NATIONAL VOTE

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(INS.)—A constitutional amendment providing for popular election of the President and Vice President was proposed today by Senator Norris, (Rep.) of Nebraska, author of the "Lame Duck" amendment recently ratified.

The amendment would do away with the Electoral College and enable the people to cast their votes for actual presidential and vice presidential candidates.

Candidates for the two offices would be credited with the percentage of votes received in each state, except that a vote of less than one per cent of the total cast in any state would be disregarded.

GERMANS SOUND DEATH KNELL OF REPUBLIC

Hindenberg Appeals For Dictatorship Under Hitler

the opera house along with the Nazi deputies. The former Crown Prince joined the Nazis in loudly applauding Goering's address.

The Reichstag then recessed until Thursday, at which time it is expected to pass a measure granting Hitler the dictatorial powers he desires.

In a voice of thunder undimmed by his 85 years, President von Hindenburg earlier today had spoken to the nation from the Garrison Church at Potsdam, exhorting the Reich to unite behind the dictatorship of Chancellor Hitler.

He said:

"The elections gave my cabinet and Chancellor a constitutional majority.

"The Prussian tradition of loyalty and love of the Fatherland is again needed to make Germany a country proud and free. I appeal to members of the cabinet, the Reichstag and the people to co-operate with my Chancellor for solution of Germany's burning domestic and foreign problems."

Chancellor Hitler, who spoke after Hindenburg, alluded to the rise of his National Socialist party as a "restoration of the national honor," and thus concluded a celebration without a parallel in the history of Germany.

REICHSTAG OPENS

The ceremonies were held to commemorate the first meeting of the newly-elected Nazi-Nationalist Reichstag.

For a brief period, the nation turned back to the days of imperial splendor. The meeting in the Garrison Church, attended by Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, members of the cabinet and the personnel of the Reichstag, was simply the official expression of a wave of nationalistic feeling which swept the country from border to border.

The former Crown Prince sat in the imperial Hohenzollern box, dressed in the uniform of the Black Hussars and carrying a marshal's baton. Von Hindenburg himself wore his old imperial uniform.

Several battle-scarred veterans of the wars of 1864, 1866 and 1870 occupied honorary seats, watching with tea-dimmed eyes the almost anachronistic repetition of a type of celebration utterly unknown during the 13 years of the German republic.

Chancellor Hitler, in his speech, depicted Germany as suffering from unemployment, its finances shattered, its business and industries paralyzed, "all of which the world does not realize." He said:

"Germany is a nation of poets and thinkers, always longing for a strong Reich when they suffer most."

Hitler stressed that Germany has always co-operated for world peace and culture and declared he realized Germany was a member of the family of European nations. He said:

"Neither the Kaiser, the government nor the people desired the World War. Utter collapse and weakness forced Germans to accept the war guilt allegations."

HONOR RESTORED

The Chancellor stated the German people restored the national honor in the March election, and pleaded for unity in the nation for the purpose of reconstructing the Reich. He said:

"Remembering the war victims, we pledge to be honest friends of peace, which should heal the wounds from which we are all suffering."

He concluded with a tribute to President von Hindenburg as the "father of a new Germany."

Nation-wide radio hook-ups carried the speeches of von Hindenburg and Hitler to homes, cafes, restaurants and meeting halls throughout the land.

When Hitler had finished, chowds in public squares and meeting places throughout the nation stood and sang "Deutschland, Deutschland Ueber Alles."

The Hitler government took drastic measures today to end the terrorism which it charges has been carried on by political enemies masquerading in Nazi uniforms.

U. S. PLANS NEW 'LIBERTY LOANS'

NEW YORK, March 21.—(Universal.)—In its drive for economy, the United States government, it is learned, is planning to refund the greater part of the national debt by the direct sale of securities to the public. A saving in interest charges is expected to result.

While the plans for the refinancing program are still in a formative state, a high government official likened the next financial move of the administration to the Liberty Loan drives of the World War.

More than $3,000,000,000 in government short-term obligations mature this year. In addition, the $6,000,000,000 in bonds sold during the fourth Liberty Loan drive mature in 1938. They are redeemable at par of $100.

A nation-wide campaign to make wage earners and low-salaried persons government stockholders is to be undertaken. The new certificates will be in denominations as low at $50 and $100. The smallest government bond issued since the war has been $1,000.

Two motives have led Treasury officials to consider the new program. It is believed a much broader market will be created and millions of dollars will be lured from hiding places.

FARM AID O. K. BY HOUSE SURE

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(INS.)—Passage of the administration's far-reaching farm relief bill in the House was assured today when the House by a vote of 184 to 102 adopted a "gag rule" prohibiting amendments to the measure.

The huge Democratic majority overcame all protests of the Republicans. A final vote was thus ordered after four hours of debate.

The vote on thes o-called "gag rule" was considered a test of the ability of Democratic leaders to marshal forces in behalf of the plea of President Roosevelt for speedy action on the experimental measure.

The Republican attack was concentrated on the method by which the bill was brought up for consideration. They charged that the Democrats in the House were gagging themselves in the hope that the Senate will rewrite the measure.

The bill, declared to be the most drastic farm relief measure ever presented, provides for levying a processing tax on food stuffs estimated at $800,000,000 a year.

The proceeds of the tax would be used to lease land, take it out of production and raise prices. Under the bill the secretary of agriculture can make direct grants of money to farmers to compensate them for reducing production.

Colombian Troops Bombed by Planes

LIMA, Peru, March 21.—(AP.)—The government announced today that Peruvian and Colombian planes engaged in an aerial battle Sunday, near Tarapaca, in the disputed Leticia border zone, and that Colombian ships and troops were bombed.

Colombian seaplanes abandoned the fight, the report said. It was a counter-attack on Colombians, who had made an advance in a battle Friday.

Satirized in Playlet, 'First Lady' Laughs

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was chief honor guest last night at the annual "stunt" party of the Women's National Press Club.

Good-naturedly she had promised to laugh, even though the laughs were on her, and the chief skit of the evening, titled after the magazine she edits, "Babies, Just Babies," was a schoolroom scene to hit off her love for teaching.

Mrs. John N. Garner, wife and secretary of the Vice President; Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, wife and secretary of the Speaker, and "cabinet wives" of the "New Deal" heard with Mrs. Roosevelt the "chart class" of the "Democratic babies" come to Washington from North, South, East and West.

One teacher-pupils' dialogue began:

"Where did you come from, babies dear?"

"Out of the ballot box, into the here."

"Where did you get your depression blue?"

"From Herbert Hoover as he passed through."

"Where did you get your deficit red?"

"From Ogden Mills who was richly bred."

In the geography lesson put on by the women writers the "Democratic babies" learned all about Washington—that its climate is wet, and very, very windy and its principal import presidential timber.

Many other lessons they learned—of inflation and deflation, protocol and precedence—a subject enlivened by the presence of that memoir-writing Republican pair, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Mrs. Dolly Gann.

Outstanding women politicians of both parties heard Mrs. Republican and Mrs. Democratic, the latter role taken by Miss Katherine Dayton, creator of those political-satire characters, talk about their children. "Frankie" and "Herbie," and Mrs. Democratic's daughter, Eleanor, "who is a little venturesome."

All Creeds Join Jews In Hitler Protest

Protest of Nazi treatment of Jews in Germany will be made by Pittsburgh Jews at a meeting next Monday in the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue. Speakers will describe activities of the Hitler forces which, according to cable reports, have driven many Jews out of Germany.

The committee consists of Oscar Robins, chairman; Harry M. Caplan, B. Clair, Mrs. Julius H. Cohen, Mrs. B. Dernis, S. L. Fuss, Mrs. Leo L. Half, B. Hirsh, Dr. M. B. Lichtenstein, Harry Morgan, Morris Neaman, S. Osheroff, B. Pearlman, M. M. Schwartz, Harry Shaffer, William Shiff and L. A. Swiss.

NEW YORK, March 21.—(INS.)—A public protest against persecution of Jews in Germany by the government of Chancellor Adolf Hitler was being prepared today by prominent Catholic and Protestant clerics and laymen.

The protest, drafted under direction of the Rev. Dr. William B. Millar, executive secretary of the Federation of Churches, a Protestant organization, and Charles H. Tuttle, chairman of the Interfaith Committee, which includes both Catholics and Protestants, was to be submitted to prominent Christians of the city for signature.

The American Jewish Committee and the B'nai Brith have appealed to the federal government at Washington to protest the persecution of Jews in Germany.

Plans were being completed for a monster mass meeting at Madison Square Garden Monday night at which prominent Christian leaders will join with Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and other Jewish leaders in denouncing the persecutions in Germany. Bishop William T. Manning, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Speaker of the House of Representatives Harry T. Rainey, Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho, and Royal S. Copeland, of New York, were tentatively included among the list of speakers.

MRS. WALKER SOBS LOVE STORY AT DIVORCE HEARING

TELLS OF VAIN APPEALS TO 'JIMMIE'

Proved Her Case, Says Attorney For Ex-Mayor

MIAMI, Fla., March 21.—(AP.)—Master in Chancery T. J. Dowdell adjourned his hearing in Mrs. Janet Allen Walker's divorce action today after she had testified the former New York Mayor had deserted her despite her efforts at a reconciliation.

Benjamin Cohen, attorney for Walker, who is spending a vacation at Cannes, France, said Walker intended to introduce no witnesses.

Master Dowdell said he expected to make his recommendations to Circuit Court tomorrow.

Mrs. Walker wept frequently during her brief appearance on the stand as she told of details of her married life. She said she sought no alimony.

BELIEVES CASE WON

Cohen, after Mrs. Walker's testimony, said he would file no exceptions to the Master's report. He declared:

"It appears that she has proved her case."

Following is part of Mrs. Walker's testimony:

"My name is Janet Allen Walker. My home is at 4167 North Bay road, Miami Beach, Fla."

"Is James John Walker your husband?"

"He is."

"When were you married to him?"

Mrs. Walker wept before she answered.

"We were married April 11, 1912, in St. Joseph's Church in New York City."

"How old is your husband?"

"I think—I think he's 53. I know his birthday is the nineteenth of June."

"Do you know where his home is now?"

"Yes. In St. Xavier Place, New York City."

"When did you and Mr. Walker separate?"

"About four years ago."

"What happened?"

"I don't know. He just left."

'BEGGED FOR VISIT'

Mrs. Walker wept again.

"I came here four years ago, after a trip to Cuba, because I liked it here.

"He promised to come and visit me—but—(she wept again) he never has."

"Have you ever made efforts at reconciliation?"

"I certainly have. But even this winter, when I begged him to come down here, he refused."

"Is there anything else you want to say?"

Mrs. Walker again struggled to gain control of herself.

"I don't know that there's anything else I can say. Mr. Walker has left me—and that's all."

"Are you seeking any alimony?"

"I am not."

'MARVELOUS WIFE'

Mrs. Cornelius Fellowes, who lived with Mrs. Walker, testified she had known the plaintiff for 15 years and that she also knew Mr. Walker.

She testified Mrs. Walker made continued efforts toward reconciliation with her husband and that they had not lived as husband and wife for more than two years prior to the filing of divorce suit. Master McDowell asked:

"How did she conduct herself as a wife?"

"Why, she is a perfectly marvelous woman and wife."

"Has she shown any bad conduct since her separation?"

"Why, certainly not."

IRENE IN COURT OVER PIGS

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 21.—(AP.)—The matter of a pig's diet—and consequent results—was before a jury in Circuit Judge Day's court today as Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, once of dancing fame, was defendant in a $10,000 damage suit.

William Schroeder, a Morton Grove farmer, who insisted he knows what's best for his pigs, started the suit.

Mrs. McLaughlin, foe of cruelty to animals, had the farmer arrested in September, 1931, for maintaining a nuisance on the ground he fed cabbage to his pigs.

The charges against Schroeder were dismissed on appeal.

Schroeder now seeks $10,000 damages, asserting he was confined two months in jail, spent $1,200 to defend court actions in connection with the nuisance charges and was otherwise damaged in his peace and well being.

DEATH YACHT SAILS SOUTH

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 21.—(AP.) — The adventure yacht Carma, scene of the mysterious slaying last December of Walter Wanderwell, was absent today from her fish harbor moorings. Mariners said they believed, from the store of provisions recently loaded, that she was on her way to Southern Mexico and the South Seas.

The Carma sailed with a full crew and with John T. Branson and Thomas J. Hughes in command. Branson chartered the craft recently from Wanderwell's widow, Aloha Wanderwell.

Mrs. Wanderwell expressed surprise and disappointment when she learned the Carma had sailed. She said she had expected to go along.

Roberts Death Quiz Will Be Postponed

MT. HOLLY, N. J., March 21.—(INS.)—Prosecutor Howard Eastwood announced today that the Burlington County grand jury convening here tomorrow will not consider new evidence in the reopened Wilson-Roberts slayings of 1929.

Supreme Court Justice Joseph L. Bodine, of Trenton, who has been studying new evidence in the case gathered by Eastwood, probably will not announce his course of action for several weeks, it was said.

CONNIE TO QUIT FILM STUDIOS

PARIS, March 21.—(INS.)—A long period of peace and quiet to build up her health and strength is the goal of Constance Bennett, motion picture star, who has laid plans for retirement from the films when her present contract expires two years hence.

She has, International News Service learned, made arrangements to rent an isolated chateau in a remote district of Southern France. Here she will live for at least six months before taking up permanent residence on the Riviera.

Miss Bennett, who is now on her way back to the United States aboard the Europa, spent two weeks in Paris, visiting shops and cinemas with her husband, the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de La Coudraye.

When she does retire to France, Miss Bennett may have to engage another secretary. For her present amanuensis, Miss Young, is "sold" on California.

Colman, Film Star, To Retire for 2 Years

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—(AP.)—Retirement for at least two years from the screen is contemplated by Ronald Colman, his friends said today in telling of the actor's secret departure for his native England last Saturday on the Grace liner Santa Lucia.

An unusual motion picture contract for Colman's services is held by Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, whereby Colman is not permitted to make pictures for anyone else for the next two years, but may choose not to work in that time if he so desires.

Spanking Penalty For Boy Offenders

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 21.—(Universal Service.)—Confronted with a juvenile crime wave, police here have resorted to the hickory stick.

Juveline offenders now are punished in the old-fashioned manner, the stick being wielded by parents in the presence of officers.

BRITISH 'SPY' SAYS BLONDE SENT CASH

Officer Denies Sale Of Secrets, Links Berlin Beauty

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

LONDON, March 21.—A blanket of secrecy was thrown over the court-martial of Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart of the Seaforth Highlanders today.

Trim and smart in his uniform of khaki and Glengarry plaid, the defendant, charged with "selling his country for the sum of £50" by divulging military secrets to a German agent, was brought to the courtroom in Chelsea barracks from the Tower of London in a closed automobile.

COURT CLEARED

After a few minutes of perfunctory testimony, the president of the court-martial acceded to the request of Prosecutor Maj. H. Shapcott that the next nine witnesses be heard "in camera." Accordingly, the courtroom was cleared of newspaper reporters and spectators.

Lieut. Baillie-Stewart greeted the packed courtroom on his entrance with a military click of his heels and a cheery "Good morning."

Norman Parkes, his attorney, started the day's proceedings by resuming cross-examination of Lieut. Col. Symes, one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution, regarding the latter's methods of interrogating the defendant regarding his visit to Berlin in connection with the alleged disclosure of military secrets.

Symes flatly denied that he had adopted "third degree" methods to wrest admisions of guilt from the 24-year-old officer, members of an aristocratic Scottish family.

DENIES TALEBEARING

He likewise denied he had told other officers that Baillie-Stewart bragged about his relations with women. Symes explained:

"A friend of his named Lieut. Cromwell wanted to see the defendant."

"I didn't want him to know that Baillie-Stewart was suspected of betraying his country, so I told him Baillie-Stewart had been getting money from women."

According to evidence introduced yesterday, Baillie-Stewart explained funds arriving by post from Berlin as having been sent by a beautiful blonde known as "Marie Louise" with whom he supposedly had a love affair.

The prosecution, however, charged that the money was dispatched by a German agent named Waldemar Obst in payment for information regarding British armored cars, tanks and rifle patterns.

FLIER ON TRIAL IN GIRL'S DEATH

HOUSTON, Tex., March 21.—(AP.)—Whether Miss Ivy Young, 32, one-time stage dancer, fell accidentally or was pushed to her death from a seventh-story window of a Houston hotel was the issue in the murder trial today of H. M. Edwards, 37, aviator and engineer from Reno, Nev.

The pretty brunette plunged from a window of Edwards room early February 19, after a purported struggle. Investigators learned the couple had quarreled at a night club and that Miss Young later had followed him to the hotel where they were registered as man and wife.

A hotel officer and a clerk, attracted by a disturbance in the room pounded on the door demanding admittance. B. H. Tolleson, hotel manager, reported:

"Finally the door was opened and Edwards pointed to the window, saying, 'she fell out.'"

It was learned by police that Miss Young was divorced in Reno from her husband, a New Yorker, a short time before her death. She met Edwards in Reno.

EVELYN BELL...DOORS AT AUBURN OPENING FOR HER TODAY

FOLLIES QUEEN LEAVES PRISON

AUBURN, N. Y., March 21.—(Universal.)—Evelyn Bell, former follies beauty who falsely charged the late Joseph Morgan with paternity of her child, will be freed from prison today.

Mrs. Bell said she will go into seclusion on a farm and seek a new start in life.

"I am going to lose my old identity completely and take on a new one."

She was convicted of perjury after suing the estate of Joseph Morgan, sportsman and steamship operator, for $250,000, asserting he was the father of her child.

It was proved the child was neither her's nor Morgan's, but had been adopted by the follies dancer who was childless, although she had been married five times.

Betty Steele, Hurt In Crash, Improved

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Betty Lund Steele, stunt flier who suffered a fractured lower jaw when her plane crashed at the municipal airport here Sunday, was reported improving today. Her physician said she would be able to leave the hospital in about two weeks.

Chevalier on Way To Visit France

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—(AP.)—Maurice Chevalier, French motion picture actor, is on his way to New York, from where he will sail Thursday for France on a hurried business trip.

Chevalier will return to Hollywood in May to make another picture.

GRID OFFICIAL SHOT BY SON

COLUMBUS, O., March 21.—(AP.)—Dr. F. A. Lambert, nationally known football official and member of the advisory council of the national rules committee, was shot and probably fatally wounded by his son, Samuel, 17, early today during a family quarrel.

At a hospital, where Dr. Lambert underwent an emergency operation, he absolved his son from all blame.

Young Lambert described the shooting as accidental. He said he had been called by Mrs. Lambert, who told him his father had choked her and twisted her arm. Then, the youth said, his weapon was discharged accidentally.

Mrs. Lambert told police her husband had been drinking and that she called her son to her aid. When the son entered the bedroom, she said her husband picked up a revolver and that the youth grappled with his father for the weapon. As Lambert backed away the gun was discharged.

Wed Last Month, Film Pair Separate

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—(AP.)—Separation of Gregg Toland, film cameraman, and his wife, Edna Callahan, featured motion picture player, became known here today when Toland published a newspaper notice saying he would not be responsible for his wife's debts. They were married last February 2.

After the marriage Nancy Lyon, 18-year-old actress-daughter of Assemblyman Charles W. Lyon, said she had regarded herself as engaged to Toland.

DANISH BEAUTY DENIES SHE'LL WED DOUG, JR.

Story 'Finished,' She Says, Joan Quits Hollywood

By VERNON FORCHAMMER
International News Service.

COPENHAGEN, March 21.—A flurry of denials issued today from the lips of Loulou Dietz, beautiful Danish girl whose former husband, Jorgen Dietz, has sued Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., for alienation of affections and false imprisonment.

Chief among them was a vehement disclaimer of reports appearing in Copenhagen newspapers, purporting to quote her to the effect that the film actor plans to divorce Joan Crawford in Paris and marry her this summer. She said:

"I must deny that I ever made any such statement.

"Mr. Fairbanks is a very fine man, and for his sake I am very sorry that this affair has cropped up.

WON'T MARRY DOUG, JR.

"But I have no intention of marrying him. This story is finished. The scandal surely has about destroyed everything in life for me.

"I left Hollywood because it was impossible to have any private life there, and I have settled in Copenhagen to forget. Now it seems I cannot have rest and peace even here."

Elegantly dressed, with dark short-cropped hair and long drooping lashes over dark blue shining eyes, the former Mrs. Dietz received the International News Service correspondent in her apartment. She said:

"I do not want to talk about any 'romance' with Mr. Fairbanks.

IGNORANT OF SUIT

"I do not know anything about Mr. Dietz's suit against Mr. Fairbanks, since I left Hollywood in July after obtaining a divorce from my husband.

"However, I do not believe that Jorgen is suing on his own initiative.

"It will be found that human feelings cannot be valued in cold cash, as there still exist some things in life which cannot be bought.

"The whole affair is terribly uncomfortable for everyone concerned."

The former actress revealed she is dropping the name of Dietz. She said:

"In the future I shall use only my pen-name of David Strange."

JOAN SEEKS REST

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—(INS.)—The Joan Crawford-Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., romance seemed definitely over today.

Miss Crawford was on her way to an unannounced destination for a rest, and Fairbanks, Jr., had gone to work on a new picture. Miss Crawford expects to be gone for a week or 10 days.

Both young film players remained silent after a final meeting at which he obtained his belongings from their Brentwood home which Miss Crawford said would be sold.

RUTH'S LAWYER TO BARE SECRET

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 21.—(INS.)—Secret information Attorney Louis P. Russill, of Los Angeles, declared he possessed today may aid Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "double trunk" murderess in her battle before the State Pardon Board to escape the gallows.

Attorney Russill, a voluntary witness before the pardon board, said he would reveal the confidential information today if Mrs. Judd gave permission. He was one of the first attorneys associated with the defense.

Mrs. Judd is under sentence to be hanged April 14 for the murders of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose dismembered bodies were shipped in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

In her petition before the pardon board Mrs. Judd seeks a full pardon or commutation of her sentence.

Mrs. Wilson Guest Of Georgia Governor

ATLANTA, Ga., March 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was the honor guest yesterday of Mrs. Eugene Talmadge, wife of Georgia's governor and of Fulton County (Atlanta) Democratic women here today.

During an automobile tour of the city Mrs. Wilson visited the building in which Mr. Wilson at one time had a law office, many years before his elevation to the Presidency. She was also taken to the Governor's office.

College Inaugurates Marriage Course

GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C., March 21.—(Universal Service.)—A course in marriage has been added to the curriculum of Guilford College, Quaker co-ed school, as a compulsory course for all students during their second college year.

The new course is complete with professor, textbooks and examinations, and is designed to teach young people how to be happily married.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There is no end to the blessings that this fellow Roosevelt has indirectly brought about. Orlando, Fla., has saw (or has seen) the light, and has suspended six civic (eating) clubs, and one chamber of commerce, for sixty days. (Now there is an injunction that should be made permanent). This country just civic luncheoned itself into depression. If they will all go home and eat with their own families, they will not only get their first good lunch in years, but will be surprised how much more intelligently their own wife can talk, than the "the speaker of the day." God bless Orlando, Fla. Yours, WILL.

AUTO INDUSTRY REVIVAL ON AT DETROIT

DETROIT, March 21.—(AP.)—Forecasts of increased industrial activity in Detroit's factories began to be realized today with announcement by several companies of increased production.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., General Motors head, recently announced an increase in activity and payroll for his company. In addition to Detroit units, Chevrolet factories in Flint have resumed production, and the Chevrolet-Pontiac foundries at Saginaw called back some 3,500 men today.

Packard Motor Car Company officials announced that the present output is on a level with the February production, and that February, 1933, exceeded February in 1932. Hudson production was not materially curtailed in recent weeks, it was said at the company plant, and is continuing at normal for the present period.

Dodge Brothers' plants reopened last week. A Ford Motor Company official gave the present level of employment in Ford factories at 27,000. The Wayne Body Company, Graham Paige affiliate, recalled 500 workers today, while Kelvinator Corporation, manufacturer of electric refrigerators, resumed normal production.

Lift Ban Against Mifflin Students

One hundred pupils of Mifflin Township, scheduled to be banned from Homestead schools tomorrow because of the failure of the township to pay tuition, will be permitted to continue attending school, Homestead authorities said today.

Advices from Harrisburg were that the state apportionment due Mifflin Township would be forthcoming as soon as receipts from the state sales tax comes in. The township owes about $10,000 tuition and is expected to pay part of it soon.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this [illegible] torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

Plot to Oust Miss Dell From U.S. Job Charged

MISS JESSIE DELL

Civil Service Women Back Georgia Commissioner

NEW YORK, March 21.—(INS.)—A protest against the rumored discontinuance of Commissioner Jessie Dell of the Federal Civil Service, charging that "someone with greater influence wants her position," was made yesterday by the American Alliance of Civil Service Women.

The alliance, according to Dr. Anna Hochfelder, its president, feels that Commissioner Dell really should be made president of the Civil Service Commission. A pamphlet issued by the alliance says:

"A movement is on foot which would do a terrible injustice to this fine and deserving woman. It must be prevented by the women and the fair-minded men of the country, especially those of Georgia, Miss Dell's native state."

Another Georgian, William E Tate, is being urged for the post.

Miss Dell has been a government employe 33 years, and in 1925 when she was appointed Democratic member of the bi-partisan Civil Service Commission she was the highest salaried woman official in government service.

Firemen Quell Flames on Pole

North Side firemen extinguished a blaze in a transformer on a pole in River avenue near Pine street shortly before last midnight.

BIG NEW BANK FOR DETROIT ORGANIZED

WASHINGTON, March 21, (AP.)—Out of the government's study of the Detroit banking situation plans emerged today for creation of the National Bank of Detroit to stand in the place of the First National Bank and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce there.

The new bank will have a capital of $25,000,000, half of which will be subscribed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the remainder by the General Motors Corporation.

The General Motors Corporation will sell common stock in the new bank to stockholders and depositors of the two old banks at $50 a share, the same price at which it is acquired by the corporation.

TREASURY APPROVAL

In working out the plans, which wereapproved by the Treasury, the Reconstruction Corporation adopted the principle of matching dollar for dollar with depositors and stockholders of the old banks.

Jesse H. Jones, a director of the corporation, indicated in a statement which accompanied announcement of the plans, that this principle would be followed in dealing with similar reorganization of banks.

Hope was expressed that about 40 per cent of the net deposits would be made available immediately to the more than 800,000 depositors of the old banks, the new bank taking over the more liquid assets of the two old ones.

The remaining assets will be liquidated by the conservators to recover all possible for depositors and creditors.

The General Motors Corporation expects to withdraw completely from the new institution as soon as its stock has been sold.

PITTSBURGHER NAMED

C. O. Thomas, receiver for the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., today was appointed conservator for the First National Bank of Detroit by the comptroller of the currency.

He succeeds Paul C. Keyes as conservator of the Detroit institution. Mr. Keyes' resignation was accepted by the comptroller today. His appointment took place only a week ago.

At the offices of the Bank of Pittsburgh it was said that Mr. Thomas at present is in Detroit. The appointment of his successor here is expected to be announced late today.

Protest Barmaids As Beer Dispensers

CHICAGO, March 21.—(INS.)—Pink-cheeked barmaids are definitely out as dispensers of the new 3.2 per cent beer, Local No. 25, of the Waiters' Alliance, ruled today.

The union, viewing with alarm the plan of Chicago hotels to grace their barrooms with waitresses, sent a letter of protest to Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor. The letter argued that serving beer is still a man's job.

One-Sentence Will Leaves All to Wife

In a one-sentence will, J. A. Stockdale, of 7014 Hermitage street, left $5,750 to his wife, stating:

"She helped me to get everything I have."

He signed the will February 2, 1933.

18, APPOINTED FLYING DEPUTY

MISS MARGARET SPITZER.... DEPUTY SHERIFF IN THE AIR ABOVE DETROIT'S SPIRES

Miss Spitzer, only 18, appointed a Wayne County (Michigan) deputy sheriff, specifically to aid in transporting deputies quickly. This is a Wide World News Photograph Service picture.

STATE REVENUE AGREED ON

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Representative Joseph G. Steedle, Allegheny, chairman of the House appropriations Committee, said today Gov. Pinchot's budget officer and House fiscal committees have agreed on $135,000,000 as the probable revenue for the new biennium. The figure is $21,000,000 below the Governor's estimate of $158,000,000 as presented to the Legislature in his budget message.

Dr. Steedle said the general appropriation bill to be presented finally to the House next week, will carry approximately this total.

Departmental expenses and salaries will be cut all along the line, the appropriations chairman asserted. He indicated the Governor is expected to approve the new budget. To effect the $21,000,000 economies from the original Pinchot budget, Dr. Steedle said the Turner bill revising the administrative code will be used as the legislative instrument.

Builders' Exchange Seeks Table Marker

Seven may be a lucky number for some persons, but it cost Hotel Schenley a nickel-plated table marker when the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange helds its annual banquet last month. An appeal was being made today by the exchange to its members to help recover the missing No. 7 marker, suggesting in its bulletin that "possibly some one thoughtlessly carried it home or wished to add this 'among his souvenirs.'"

News Typewriter System in Exhibit

Reception of International News Service stories, carried in Pittsburgh only by the Sun-Telegraph, is shown in an interesting exhibition in the Seventh avenue windows of the Bell Telephone Company. News from all points of the world is being received on an automatic telegraphic machine that typewriters it. The practical demonstration with International News dispatches was possible through the courtesy of this newspaper.

BLAST AND FIRE WRECK HOME

Fire, following a gas explosion, swept through the two-story frame home of Ralph Hartford, rear of 519 Corey avenue, Braddock, last night. The report of the blast was heard throughout the neighborhood.

The explosion occurred in the absence of the family. Mrs. Sara Hartford was next door visiting neighbors at the time with her son, Ralph, Jr., 3, while her other four children were playing nearby.

Firemen were unable to tell in what part of the house the explosion occurred, but believed it was near the kitchen. When they arrived the fire had spread to every part of the house. Fire Captain Michael Sabol said the explosion was caused by leaking gas and estimated the damages at $3,000.

Cawley Appointed Police Operator

Patrick J. Cawley, defeated Republican candidate for the Legislature from the Sixth District, and former alderman of the Nineteenth Ward, today was appointed a police signal service operator by Safety Director James M. Clark. Cawley fills a vacancy caused by the death of George Vogel last month.

Jig-Saw Puzzle Starts Family Row

EVERETT, Mass., March 21.—(AP.)—Police called to quell a family row last night were told by the wife that hostilities were due to her husband's desire to spend 25 cents of funds received from the Welfare Department for a new jig saw puzzle. He was persuaded to work on his old puzzles.

JAWORSKI GUN VICTIM DIES

Death today had made a posthumous addition to the long list of crimes for which Paul Jaworski, killer and leader of a notorious band of gunmen, paid with his life in the electric chair at Rockview three years ago.

Patrolman George E. Effinger, of Cleveland, felled with a Jaworski bullet during a daring attempt to arrest the noted Allegheny County gunman in September, 1928, died early today of the bullet wound, according to his physician. Effinger's companion, Patrolman Anthony Wierczorek, was killed. Jaworski was captured after he had been wounded.

At the time of the Cleveland gun battle Jaworski was organizing his "mob" to return to Pittsburg and "shoot his brother, Sam Jaworski, out of the county jail with a machine gun," he admitted to Cleveland police.

U. S. SURVEYING HEALTH HERE OF JOBLESS

A survey to determine the percentage of illness among unemployed as compared with that among the employed was being conducted in Pittsburgh today by nine enumerators of the United States Public Health Service.

The enumerators are looking only in the Manchester and Brighton road district, which they consider representative of the city.

In charge of the work are H. E. Seifert and G. St. J. Perrott. Dr. William W. McFarland, chief of the city's health department, is co-operating. The enumerators are working from headquarters in the United States Bureau of Mines Building, Forbes street.

Dr. McFarland said today that Pittsburgh and New York are the only cities in which the survey is now being made. The enumerators expect to cover 1,000 families in a house to house canvass.

After the Pittsburgh and New York survey the work will be started in other cities of more than 500,000 population, Dr. McFarland said.

PARENTS ASKED TO INSTITUTE

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the City Department of Public Welfare, today urged all parents in Pittsburgh to attend the second parent education institute in the Hotel Schenley April 6 and 7. A feature of the institute will be 19 discussion groups directed by leading Pittsburgh educators and psychologists.

The gathering will be held in connection with the Western Pennsylvania Education Conference.

Signatures Baffle Insurance Officers

FREDONIA, Kan., March 21.—(AP.)—An insurance company returned J. K. Frater's application for a policy, declaring the two Frater signatures thereon could not have been written by the same person and instructing the agent to look into the possibility of forgery. Frater, however, explained he uses either hand in writing and in this case signed once with right and once with his left. He got his policy.

National Miners Call Strike April 1

Members of the National Miners' Union from Western and Southern Pennsylvania, Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia have been called on to strike April 1, following action by a conference of miner delegates, according to Frank Borich, secretary of the union. Demands of the strikers include 10 cents increase a ton for loaders, 2 cents for cutters and 75 cents for draymen.

Man Severely Hurt As Van, Auto Crash

Santo Marsih, 70, of Russellton, is in the Citizens General Hospital at New Kensington today with a fractured skull suffered when his automobile plunged over a 20-foot embankment in the Freeport road last night, after it was struck by a moving van, driven, police said, by Charles Grannis, of 260 Wick street. Ercola Marsetti, a passenger with Marsih, escaped with minor injuries by leaping from the machine.

Woman Found Dead In Street Identified

The body of the woman found in North Canal street Saturday was identified late yesterday as that of Mrs. Margaret Robinson, 76, of 411 Taylor avenue. The identification was made by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alice Robbins, also of 411 Taylor avenue, who said she had seen a description of the dead woman in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Roshanara
Plain and Printed

Latest Butterick, Paris, McCall, Pictorial Review, and Vogue Patterns for your selection here . . . good dressmakers are also available at small cost. Consult the Dressmakers' Register here.

Notwithstanding a sell-out last week at this price, we felt that the plea of the bank moratorium and unseasonable weather justified consideration of the many requests for a repeat of this opportunity. The cooperation of the manufacturers was obtained for a repeat sale, despite the fact that the price represents a supreme concession both by them and ourselves. This second lot, if anything, offers better selections than the first, including new heavy PURE-DYE All-Silk Printed Crepes, never before offered at this price. The patterns and weaves are those in smart demand at the moment, and the quality is vouched for in the single word . . . Mallinson's!

Spring Dress Woolens, 95c yd.

As a further impetus to the spring dressmaking urge which has shown itself here recently, we offer this superior value in smart, new woolens . . . in weights suitable for dresses, coats, and the extremely popular suits. The width makes very few yards necessary, and with the aid of the new simplified patterns here it is quite easy to outfit one's self in becoming manner at extremely small cost.

Navy Blue Steps Out!

You can't call navy blue demure when it affects a lily-chalice sleeve, a collar and jabot of hand-drawn white chiffon, and prystal buttons and belt buckle. . . . You'll sit up and take notice, too, when you see it in the frock sketched in miniature above, with inverted tucks running the length of its skirt and flared sleeves, and giving fullness to its jabot. Or the wrap-around model, with scalloped sleeves and revers made lacy with drawn work, and finished with cut steel buttons. Depend upon these three new women's models of sheer crepe, to give the world a new impression of the classic navy blue. $16.75.

DENIES SLAYING HER HUSBAND

SALEM, Mass., March 21.—(Universal.)—Charged with the poison murder of her husband, Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, calm and smiling, pleaded not guilty yesterday and was held without bail for trial.

The young wife of the late Fire Capt. William J. Costello, of Peabody, lost her first skirmish in her fight to dodge the threatening shadow of the electric chair when Judge Frederick W. Fosdick, denied the motion of her lawyer, Ex-District Attorney William G. Clark, that her plea be postponed until he could prepare preliminary papers in his effort to quash the indictment against her.

'HOUDINI' DEATH HELD SUICIDE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 21.—(AP.)—Coroner David H. Atwater has ruled that Erik Baumann, 27-year-old gymnasium instructor, whose body was found queerly trussed in ropes, committed suicide "while temporarily insane."

The Coroner last night reversed his original verdict, in which he decided that "a person or persons unknown" tied the strange loops about Baumann's neck and feet, causing him to strangle to death.

Baumann's body, in a sleeping bag, was found in a cramped position on the bed in his room at the Y. M. C. A. one day last week. The door was locked and the key was on a table in the room.

County Gasoline Trials Postponed

The trials of four former county employes and a gasoline station attendant, accused of "cheating" Allegheny County out of gasoline for which the taxpayers paid, scheduled to start today and tomorrow, have been postponed until Tuesday.

The defendants are William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the County Commissioners; Roy F. Walters, private secretary to the late Joseph G. Armstrong; Howard B. Allen, former head of the motor division of the county; C. W. Doherty, former county employe, and Patrick J. Swift, former gas station attendant.

Texas Judge Orders Telephone Refund

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 21.—(AP.)—The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company was ordered today to reduce its local rates to the 1928 level and return $2,000,000 to San Antonio subscribers.

This was decreed by Federal Judge Edwin R. Holmes in handing down a judgment in the telephone company's suit against the city of San Antonio for increased rates, which has been won by the city in the Federal District Court.

WIDOW OF LUCH ASKS DAMAGES

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 21.—Martha Ernes Luch, of Wheeling, W. Va., widow of John Luch, University of Pittsburgh football star who died a few weeks ago following an operation, asks $5,158.35 for injuries suffered in an automobile accident last April 10 on the National pike. Her father, Andrew Ernes, asks $26,476.70. Andrew Gulyban, Jr., of Canonsburg, and Leslie D. Loughry, of Washington, drivers of two other cars involved in the accident, are named defendants. Ray Houston and Julia Warco, both of this city, were killed in the accident.

Luch suffered an injury to his knee and had planned to file a suit for damages before his death.

CO-EDS' GOWNS TO COST $5

Economy and utility for many occasions will be the predominating motif of the college girl's graduation dress this year.

Those were the guiding factors for 100 University of Pittsburgh senior women at a style show of white commencement dresses yesterday at Heinz House. A cape model dress with high collar was the final selection of the seniors from 37 dresses modeled by eight Pitt co-eds and is priced at $5.

Miss Gertrude Siegal, buyer of dresses for a department store, explained several of the white outfits at the show, saying:

"The commencement week dress of the college co-ed will be very economical this year. It will cost the senior girl $5. When I graduated from college six years ago such an outfit cost four times as much."

This year the college girl will have one dress in her graduation wardrobe, Mrs. L. Farr, another buyer of dresses for a large downtown store, explained. She added:

"They want a dress for several occasion, such as graduation, teas and various informal affairs. In former years the dresses were beruffled and sashed and could be used only for graduation."

Syria Legion Plans 'Night in Tia Juana'

Syria Temple Legion of Honor, composed of veterans of the World War, will hold the first of a series of fun, frolic and feasting events tomorrow night in the banquet hall of the Mosque.

Mr. Newell

Claude I. Newell, chairman of the affair, has named it "Neche en Tia Juana" or "A Night in Tia Juana." Members of various units of the Shrine as well as representatives of the Potentate in six counties will attend. The Legion of Honor will hold three other such events during the year.

SHAW AGLOW AT HULA DANCE

HONOLULU, T. H., March 21.—(INS.)—George Bernard Shaw, the Irish author and playwright, was aglow after witnessing native Hula dances.

Walking the deck of his vessel, the Empress of Britain, Shaw remarked:

"This is a little bit of heaven, perhaps the closest heaven on earth."

He wore a Hawiian lei as he spoke.

Thousands of persons listened attentively to the sage remarks of Mr. Shaw.

Shaw was surprised to see thousands of automobiles parked near the piers of the harbor.

His closing remark still was being puzzled over here yesterday. This is what he said:

"There are enough motor cars in the United States to accommodate the entire population at one time. More power is generated by internal combustion engines than by all other mechanical means. This is astonishing."

Windows Crashed, Jewelry Stolen

Windows in S. Mallin's jewelry store, 729 East Ohio street, and the Oakland Pharmacy, 3400 Fifth avenue, were broken early today.

A padded brick was hurled through the North Side store and $100 in gems taken. Police lacked details of the Oakland window breaking.

CRISIS LOOMS IN NORTH CHINA

TIENTSIN, China, March 21.—(AP.)—The situation has grown tense here again and indications are accumulating that a crisis is approaching between the Chinese authorities and the Japanese military command.

Today it was reported that the Nanking government had instructed Yu Hseuh-Chung, commander of the Chinese forces in the Tienssin area, to delay no longer in replying to the latest Japanese protest against the fortification of Taku, at the mouth of the Peiho River, and against the presence of Chinese troops within the Tientsin protocol zone.

Yesterday a Japanese staff officer called on the governor of Tientsin, but the nature of their conversation was not disclosed. Later, however, several cannon shots were fired by Japanese gunners. This was contrary to practice and the Chinese said it was without warning.

Chinese Agreement Extended 3 Years

SHANGHAI, March 21.—(AP.)—An agreement reached in February, 1930, between China and the United States, Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, Norway and Brazil, relating to the reorganization of the former provisional court in the Shanghai International Settlement, was extended today for three years, beginning April 1.

"Hard as nails"... that's what they say about our men's clothing buyer, as pleasant a chap as ever sat down to a game of penny ante or dubbed a mashie. He wanted hand-tailord suits for this event — and he meant hand-tailored. But let him go on with the story.

"It looked like a round-up with me as the fatted calf and it was simply raining cowboys. Everyone knows there's some hand-tailoring in every suit. But it takes 30 hand operations to make a hand-tailored suit. When I wouldn't fall for clothes hand-tailored at 19 points ... or 14 points ... or even 25 ... you should have heard the gnashing of teeth. But you said you wanted a mob!"

And at this price will it be a MOB! Even if you come early, you probably won't avoid the rush!

MARION NIXON GETS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—(AP.)—Marion Nixon, screen actress, had obtained a divorce today from Edward H. Hillman, Jr., son of a wealthy Chicago merchant, after testimony that Hillman was abusive, called her names and once struck her. She testified:

"Mr. Hillman wanted to go out and I didn't feel like it. He became incensed and struck me.

"He called me a fool and said he was tired of being married to me."

She charged also he nagged her and kept her awake nights when she needed sleep to be ready for work in the morning at her studio.

Miss Nixon did not ask for alimony. She is understood to be earning $1,000 a week. Under a property settlement she was given title to the couple's home. She agreed to lease it to her husband for $9,500 a year.

The couple married August 11, 1929, and separated last January 30.

Miss Nixon formerly was the wife of Joe Benjamin, boxer.

Sun-Telegraph-Warner Junior Komic Club

Ann Helfgott, "official reporter" of the Enright Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, sends in the following "Did You Know's?" about the Enright members:

That Stephen Bertie is studying to be a mechanical engineer and that he is the high scorer on the school basketball team.

That James Dwyer excels in swimming and when he grows up plans to be a movie actor and take away Johnny Weismuller's crown.

That Andy Hungerman, one of Manager Roberts' genial assistants, once was a steel construction worker. Andy's job was tossing the hot rivets to the "hammerman."

That Betty McLean is studying to be a stenographer and if she tires of making those funny little marks in her note book, she is going to be a dancer. She and her sister are two of the hardest working girls in Dolly Fritz's dancing class.

That the oldest employe of the Enright is the youngest, Larry Leonardi, chief of service, has been at the Enright for four years. All the members of the Komic Club hope he stays there four more years. Next to Manager Roberts, he's the best-liked member of the staff.

Congratulations to all the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who are celebrating birthdays today.

COX STRESSES AID OF PAPER

Father Cox, of course, was only speaking figuratively in disclosing his "secret" but among other things he said in his Sunday morning radio broadcast from the pulpit of Old St. Patrick's Church:

"Yesterday I received my weekly check representing commissions from the Sun-Telegraph for subscriptions my friends had given me for this newspaper. The check was for $96.50 and I want to sincerely thank my friends for helping me in this way. And now I want to let you in on a secret. If it had not been for the help the Sun-Telegraph has given me this winter, I—myself—would have been in the breadline or down at the Helping Hand for aid. And I want you to know that the Sun-Telegraph is the only newspaper in the United States that is helping the poor in a big way."

The above statement from the "father of the jobless" tells in a nutshell where he is now getting his greatest aid for the big welfare job that he is handling. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

WALK CONTEST CALLED 'DANCE'

The marathon walking contest under way in Moose Temple, Penn avenue, is described in a letter to City Council from W. F. H. Wentzel, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, as nothing more or less than a marathon dance.

Wentzel's letter, which was to be discussed in Council today, says that he has learned that the persons interested in the late Motor Square Garden dance marathon are also interested in the Moose Temple contest. Council slapped down the lid on the Motor Square Garden dance after protests had been made.

To Wentzel's letter is attached a copy of another letter on the same subject he recently mailed to the city's safety department.

STATE SPEEDS BILL FOR SALE OF BEER

HARRISBURG, March 21.—With the legalization of beer and wines by Congress apparently only a few hours away, the House of Representatives yesterday recovered from its special committee the bill which would regulate the manufacture and sale of the brew and vinous beverages in Pennsylvania.

The measure as submitted leaves the power to issue licenses in the hands of the juages of each county, but there is a probability that the opposition which has developed on this point may result in an amendment which would set up the license commission plan originally considered by the committee.

REVENUE ALLOTMENTS

One change made in the beer bill since last week is that involving the distribution of the revenue to be produced by the tax of $1 per barrel on beer and 20 cents a gallon on wine. Under the original plan, this money, to be collected by the state, would be paid on the following basis: Ten per cent to the state, 50 per cent to the counties, and 40 per cent to the municipalities.

The re-drafted measure allows the state to retain 10 per cent. The remaining 90 per cent would go to the counties, on the basis of the ratio of their population to the population of the state. The county, in turn, would retain one-half of the 90 per cent, and would distribute the other one-half to the municipalities on the basis of the proportion of their population to the population of the county.

Retail license fees in Pittsburgh and all cities having more than 50,000 population would be $300 a year.

BARS UNDER BAN

The bill still prohibits a bar, and provides that in all licensed places, the windows, doors and entrances shall permit a free and unobstructed view of the interior. The measure provides:

"No retail distributors' license shall be granted for the sale of beverages in any drug store or pharmacy or in any grocery store, or in any mercantile establishment, unless there is conducted in such establishment a bona fide restaurant or dining room, in which case a license may be granted for the sale of beverages in the room or space occupied by such restaurant or dining room."

This will permit drug stores which operate restaurants to obtain licenses, but will not permit corner grocery stores to engage in the sales.

Retail distributors would be permitted to sell not more than 72 ounces of wine or beer at a time, and then only in the original containers. Wholesale distributors would be allowed to sell beer in quantities of not less than 12 bottles containing not more than 12 ounces each, or a fourth of a barrel, or a five-gallon container of wine. No beer or wine, however, could be consumed by the purchaser in the establishment of the wholesaler.

BILL ASKS BANK GUARANTEE

HARRISBURG, March 21.—Creation of a "bank deposit guarantee fund" was proposed last night by Representative A. Alfred Wasserman, Philadelphia.

He introduced a bill providing that banks and trust companies pay into the fund a sum equal to 1 per cent of the average daily amount on deposit during the month preceding the month in which the act shall become effective.

Salaried officers and employes of banks, banking institutions and trust companies would be prohibited from buying securities except for the account of the institution under the terms of another bill introduced by Representative Lord, Jefferson. The measure provides a penalty of $500 or six months' imprisonment for violations.

Senate Passes Bill Halting Tax Sales

HARRISBURG, March 21.—The Senate passed finally last night the bill of Senator Coyne, Allegheny, providing a holiday on sheriffs' sales until April 3. The Batchelor measure appropriating $500,000 for completion of the Pymatuning dam project also was passed finally. Both measures now go to the House.

Paint Beer Wagons For April Delivery

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 21.—The first shipment of several "beer wagons," stored away since adoption of the Volstead Law, arrived here from the Anheuser-Busch Company in St. Louis and was sent to a carriage works, to be painted a bright red. The painter has promised to have the wagons ready by April 5.

House Passes M'Clure Repeal Bill 134 to 67

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—The House of Representatives today passed the McClure (Senate) bill setting up a convention of 51 delegates to vote on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The measure, approved 134 to 67, goes to the Senate for concurrence in minor amendments.

Supporters of the bill curtailed debate soon after the measure was called up.

The roll call showed advocates within four votes of the two-thirds majority required to pass the bill over the veto which dry leaders predict Gov. Pinchot will give it.

Either by prearranged plans or through the abrupt stoppage of debate, dry members opposing the election of delegates-at-large did not raise this issue.

OPPOSE PROVISIONS

Instead, Representatives Andrews and O'Connor, of Cambria, attacked the bill because all delegates are not elected at large and Representative Cohen, of York, opposed the provision for electing the delegatese at the November election instead of at a special election.

The bill provides for 34 delegates from Congressional districts and 17 at large. They would be chosen from tw osets of candidates—those opposing and those favoring repeal—and would meet at Harrisburg 28 days after the election.

United Pennsylvania dry leaders, at a recent conference here, endorsed a convention plan calling for 208 delegates elected from Legislative districts. They indicated they would carry their fight directly to Gov. Pinchot if this move failed and the Legislature passed a bill providing for delegates-at-large.

EXPECT GOVERNOR'S VETO

Spokesmen for the conferees claimed the election of delegates at large would give metropolitan wets a predominant convention majority. They said they had received assurance that Gov. Pinchot will veto any bill with this provision.

Allegheny County representatives voted as follows:

For the bill—Beech, Brown, Dwyer, Gallagher, Harmuth, Hoffman, Hough, J. J. Kane, L. P. Kane, Lynch, Maloney, McBride, McClure, McGinnis, Metzier, O'Keefe, O'Rourke, Powers, Quinn, Rectenwald, Reed, Ruby, Shenkel, Scorza, Spann, Steedle.

Against—Walker.

PITTSBURGHER HAILED AS BEER BILL 'SAVIOR'

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Had it not been for the activity of a Pittsburgher, advertising and solicitation would not have been permitted in the beer bill passed finally by Congress today.

Former Representative Edmund F. Erk, of the Thirtieth Congressional District, Pittsburgh, introduced the only two amendments which were adopted. These were called to the attention of Congress after the original bill had gone to the Senate. Without one of the amendments the beer bill would have proved a "dud" as a revenue producer.

The Senate Judiciary Committee inserted an amendment prohibiting advertising by any means all the new beverages. Immediately Congressman Erk called upon leaders of the Senate and poitned outw hat would happen if no provisions were made permitting advertising and solicitation for 3.2 beer and wines. He was backed up by the American Newspaper Association and others in protestations against the anti-publicity clauses.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, introduced Erk's amendment authorizing every beverage to be produced or manufactured under the beer bill to be advertised in any manner, and permits any paper, magazine or periodical containing the advertising to carriage in the mails.

G. O. P. TO VOTE FUND TO MEET RELIEF CRISIS

HARRISBURG, March 21.—On the heels of an announcement by Governor Pinchot that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has refused to advance Pennsylvania federal funds for April until the state has provided money for that period, the Republican organization today changed its unemployment relief plans and prepared to concentrate on relief appropriations for April and May.

Under the new program, Republican leaders will attempt to solve the immediate problem first and then work on providing funds for the next biennium. The Talbot bill appropriating $22,000,000 for relief from April, this year, to May, 1935, was sent back to committee after passing second reading in the House, and in its place a new bill will be introduced, appropriating $2,000,000 for allocation during April and May.

Fred C. Croxton, assistant to the R. F. C. directors, telegraphing Pinchot, reminded him the R. F. C. has advanced $29,921,875 for the period from September, 1932, to March, 1933, and that the period for which supplemental funds have been made available expires in less than two weeks.

Hit that COLD a Knock-Out Blow!

Don't Merely Tap It!

Many cold remedies merely pat a cold. They don't "put it out for keeps." That's why colds keep coming back and why they often develop into something serious. Many a case of Influenza has started with a "slight" cold.

A cold calls for a COLD remedy and nothing less. Preparations good for half a dozen things besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. Many of these preparations actually make a cold more difficult of relief because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

An Internal Infection Calls for Internal Treatment

A cold calls for internal treatment because a cold is an internal infection. Local or outside applications only allay a few of the symptoms and do not reach the real seat of the trouble.

At the first sign of a cold you can do nothing wiser than take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine soon puts an end to a cold because it does the four things necessary. First of all, it opens the bowels. Second, it kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

This is the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances.

No Penalty!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be safely taken by young and old. It contains nothing harmful and may be taken with impunity whether you are going to stay indoors or go out. For more than forty years Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Your doctor couldn't write a better prescription if he wanted to.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Reliable dealers will not try to sell you a substitute.

NEW BANK CODE HEARING DUE

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Before a joint Senate-House committee, supporters and opponents of the proposed new Banking Department code will review the measure today.

The code revises the state banking laws relating to the department and its powers. It is separate from a second code, the provisions of which regulate the operation of individual banks.

The code, drafted by the Department of Justice, enlarges the scope of authority now held by the Department of Banking.

It gives the department control over private banks and authority to examine corporation, associations and individual affiliates of banks, trust companies and building and loan associations.

The code also includes provisions intended to facilitate the liquidation of closed banks, permitting immediate payment of dividends to depositors and requiring the secretary to determine within six months whether to continue the institution or liquidate it.

AID TAX YIELDS HALF-MILLION

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's emergency sales tax has yielded its first half million dollars for unemployment relief. The revenue department yesterday reported receipts of $514,609 to date.

The 1 per cent tax, imposed for six months, ended February 28, was planned to yield $12,000,000.

Department officials urged dealers making returns to keep duplicates for their own records and preserve them for two years.

The tax is due on or before April 1. The period for payment would be extended to May 15 under a bill introduced in the Senate last night by C. W. Parkinson, Greene. The measure would require that half the levy be paid by May 1, the tax thus paid to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent from April 1.

2 REGISTRATION POSTS FILLED

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has appointed Mrs. Mary Jane Clark and John McCarthy as members of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission. Both are Democrats.

They succeed John M. Henry and Thomas A. Joyce, who were removed last week by the Governor.

The appointments, which went to the Senate for confirmation, were made last night after the Senate Executive Nominations Committee had complied with Pinchot's request to return to him the appointments of Henry and Joyce.

The Henry and Joyce appointments were recalled by the Governor after a conference with Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, Democratic state leader.

Mrs. Clark's and McCarthy's terms will run until June 15, 1936.

Half-Rate Auto Tag Payment Proposed

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(INS.)—Automobile licenses for 1932 could be used throughout 1933 upon payment of one-half the regulation fee under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Charles S. Lord, Jefferson, and referred to committee today.

The Department of Revenue would be authorized to furnish stickers for use on the windshields, indicating that the half-rate had been paid.

Wants 'Soup' Tax Used to Feed Unemployed

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Senator George Woodward wants the State's revenue from "soup" to be used to feed the unemployed.

He introduced a bill in the Senate last night directing that the $14,500,000 State inheritance tax from the estate of the late John T. Dorrance be used solely for unemployment relief.

The Dorrance estate was compiled in the soup industry, Dorrance being the former head of the Campbell Soup Company. Woodward said:

"Since this money was earned in the soup business why shouldn't it be used for the unemployed?"

REALTY, MINE TAX AID URGED

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Removal of power to levy taxes on real estate for future construction and highway maintenance was recommended last night by the joint legislative commission to study taxation of forest and mine lands and the distribution of the tax.

No change in the method of taxing anthracite was recommended, but the report said the "deplorable condition in the bituminous industry demands tax relief to avoid possibility of a total eclipse."

The commission believes the bituminous industry "would welcome some form of industrial tax and believes that such method requires further study and the return of more normal industrial conditions before it can be applied. Relief to real estate will give bituminous coal some relief from its present burden of taxation."

Relief from taxation for the oil industry was recommended and suggested a tax upon production might be imposed in place of the existing system of taxing the oil in land as real estate.

The commission concluded "natural gas has thus far escaped its just share of taxation," and recommended a gross receipts tax in addition to a local assessment.

ACCORD REVIVES UTILITY PROBE

HARRISBURG, March 21.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has told the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee he will approve a $100,000 appropriation for continuation of the inquiry.

The Governor made his promise last night after the committee assured him it would conduct a fair and impartial inquiry. Following this agreement the Senate voted the appropriation.

The committee conferred with the Governor in the executive mansion, where Pinchot lay ill from an attack of food poisoning.

At the conclusion of the conference, Chairman John J. McClure, Delaware, said:

"It was agreed that the committee and its counsel would confer with Attorney General Schnader and later would confer again with the Governor concerning the lines of inquiry to be undertaken.

"The committee asked the Governor to approve the $100,000 appropriation, and after he was told the committee would carry on a fair and impartial inquiry he agreed to approve it"

Policemen's Trials Regulated by Bill

HARRISBURG, March 21.—Bills providing for trial of Pittsburgh policemen or firemen by a court of three fellow policemen or firemen and requiring five years' service before a patrolman can be promoted to sergeant were introduced in the House last night by Representative Lynch, Allegheny.

NEW GALLERY DISPLAYS OILS

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of small oil paintings by Raymond Baxter Bowden at Elliott's becomes a gala occasion by reason of the new gallery which A. R. Naylor has completed con amore as his hospitable contribution toward better local exhibitions. Mr. Dowden's brisk style transports so homely a bit of domestic routine as the wash in "Monday's Line" into an exciting composition. Or he may take an abstract subject inherently inorganic as "Brick Entrance" only to personify the sharp zig-zag stone wall, the patriarchal brick-posts, and the nervous iron gate and thus organize drama of animate forms.

Miss Redd

When he deals with more mobile elements of design as in "Hilltown" where opportunity occurs to compose rhythms from the harbor water with the sail boats riding lightly and from the diaphanous volume of scurrying clouds above, the picture becomes a scene transfixed while in flight.

Less of the tour de force is found in other of Dowden's work as "French Court," with its sobriety disturbed by a playful fountain. "Sombre Reds" and "Scarecrows," American farm scenes, perhaps, best represent Dowden's characteristic intensity expressed through form developed by glowing color.

This resolute strength is complemented by his mischievous calligraphic line that meanders to deliver trenchant epigrams over the dignified architectural foundation of his picture. If you would witness the rare spectacle of a young painter not afraid to tilt his lance against solemnity, visit Dowden's show before it closes on All Fools' Day.

MINE STRIKERS TO HOLD RALLY

Striking miners of the Bertha Consumers Coal Company, at Bertha, were to stage a mass meeting today following refusal of the company to meet demands, including payment of six weeks' back pay.

Demands were presented yesterday to R. D. Thompson, superintendent, by a committee named at a mass meeting called shortly after the men refused to work. The demands, including a checkweighman and a 20 per cent wage increase, were presented by Peter Pratt and Adam Balogh.

The strikers said Thompson refused the increase and the checkweighman, but offered the miners their back pay on the basis of food purchases from the company store. This payoff would be at the rate of 10 per cent weekly, the miners said.

Officers of the company had contended the men were paid, but explained cashing of the checks had been delayed because the bank on which they were drawn was closed and did not open until yesterday.

Directs Own Rescue From Gears, Dies

PENN YAN, N. Y., March 21.—(AP.)—Charles E. Hafe, 59, died of numerous injuries last night, seven hours after he had directed his own rescue from gears into which he had been drawn in the bleaching room of a paper mill.

Freed from the gears into which no one saw him drawn, all of Hafe's clothing except his shoes was torn off. Despite many injuries, he refused assistance when freed, and walked to an ambulance.

BRITISH ACTION STIRS SOVIET

MOSCOW, March 21.—(AP.)—The British government's action in breaking off trade negotiations with Soviet Russia is expected in foreign quarters to bring repercussions in the impending trial of four British subjects here on sabotage charges.

While the action was viewed as an attempt to bring pressure for the unconditional release of the prisoners, some foreign quarters were inclined to believe it only would stiffen the Russian attitude.

Strong resentment was caused here by the implied feeling in England that the arrested men will not obtain a fair trial. The four British prisoners and 35 others, all employes of the Metropolitan-Vickers Company, are to be tried within a month on charges of "wrecking activities" in connection with electrical stations in several cities.

The company has been engaged in supplying and installing electrical appliances in Russia for 10 years and its contract was nearly terminated.

BOMB MANSION OF MERCHANT

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 21.—A bomb partially wrecked the mansion of Leonard Puma, Johnstown produce merchant, early today.

The explosion, at 1:45 a. m., shattered 56 large window panes, destroyed a concrete walk and steps to the front entrance, slithered small shade trees and hurled slugs into a house directly opposite. No one was injured. The Puma family of six and the Stewart Bigler family opposite were thrown from their beds by the force of the explosion. Mrs. John Puma was prostrated by shock.

'Humiliated,' Sues Over Loss of Clothes

SEATTLE, March 21.—(AP.)—John Lund, 35, feels keenly the loss of his suit. It has been gone since last December 22, when he sent it to a cleaner in preparation for Christmas festivities. He filed a suit against the company, asking $35 for the suit and $60 for his humiliation.

Malone said plans to alter the first floor of the structure violate building requirements and asks an injunction.

Rabbi Goldenson Recovers, to Teach

Rabbi S. H. Goldenson, of Rodef Shalom Temple, unable to preach Sunday on account of illness, has recovered and will meet his Wednesday morning class in the vestry room of the church tomorrow, he announced today, for a study of Robert Browning. In the next two meetings he will read and interpret "Rabbi Ben Ezra."

"The finest coffee I have ever used"

Mrs. Leon Falk, Jr.

"I had no idea that there could be so much difference in the taste of coffees," says Mrs. Falk. "The why and wherefore are still a mystery, but Beech-Nut Coffee, for whatever the reason, is by far the most delicious I have ever tasted."

There's really no mystery about the flavor of Beech-Nut Coffee, Mrs. Falk. It is mountain-grown, high vacuum-packed and actually fresh whenever and wherever you buy it. These are the real reasons back of your statement, "Anyone who wishes to be complimented for the fine coffee she serves need only use Beech-Nut, because the delightful difference is so quickly apparent."

Discriminating women everywhere, including the majority of Pittsburgh's most socially prominent hostesses, agree with Mrs. Falk when she says, "It is much the finest coffee I have ever used."

Coffee ALWAYS at its best

Only those who use Beech-Nut Coffee regularly can appreciate the great difference between this rare flavor from tropic heights and just coffee.

So we thank you, Mrs. Falk, for helping us acquaint the housewives of Pittsburgh with the superior quality of Beech-Nut Coffee.

Yet in spite of the extra trouble and expense it takes to get such coffee, Beech-Nut brings this delicious mountain coffee to you for but little more than you pay for ordinary coffees—it is a luxury in flavor, but no luxury in price.

And remember, the full fresh flavor of Beech-Nut Coffee is sealed in high vacuum tins a few minutes after it leaves the roasting oven. Its flavor and its freshness are always certain—it is coffee always at its best.

MRS. LEON FALK, JR.

The former Katherine Sonneborn of Baltimore is active in many civic enterprises. The Falk name is noted for philanthropy. BEST DEFENDS HOME LOAN SYSTEM

Senator William Gibbs Mc Adoo's proposal to amend the Federal Home Loan Bank bill to provide direct loans to individual borrowers would "wreck the system," William E. Best, Pittsburgh attorney who was one of the five Hoover-appointed directors of the Home Loan Bank, declared today.

Attacking McAdoo's charge that the present system "is not reaching, and in my judgment will not reach, the home owner or those who are really in need of assistance," Mr. Best,' a former president of the National Building and Loan League, averred:

"The system not only has lived up to my expectations, but has exceeded them. We have examined over 800 building and loan associations, admitted them to membership and have fixed a line of credit to them of $87,000,000."

CREDIT EXPANDED

This expansion of credit to the home owner through the building and loan associations has been effected since October 15, when the 12 Home Loan Banks were technically opened for business, according to Best.

Warning that the hundreds of building and loan associations throughout the nation, including scores in Allegheny County, which have subscribed and paid for their stock in the Home Loan Banks, would be vitally affected by the proposed change, Best urged:

"If this administration is going to be fair it should make no change without giving the building and loan associations a chance to discuss with it any proposed amendment to the bill."

He pronounced the cost of setting up a lending organization, with headquarters in every county of the nation to make loans to individuals, prohibitive and warned that if the government went into the mortgage business, "naturally at a low rate of interest," it would sooner or later drive out the insurance companies and building and loans, adding:

"As to abolishing this system, I can't see any reason for it from either a standpoint of economy or politics. Take economy first. It is a self-supporting system. The act provides that the 12 Home Loan Banks must carry all the expense and the government does not have to pay a penny.

NO POLITICS

"Take the political angle. There are five directors appointed by the administration, costing the government nothing; 60 employes in Washington, registrars in each of the 12 banks and two directors in each of those banks—all appointments by the administration, and the expense is not borne by the government."

Coming to the defense of the home loan system and building and loans in general, Best said:

"The federal government is taking care of commercial, industrial and agricultural interests, and I believe that the building and loan system, made up of 11,000 associations with over 10,000,000 share holders and over $8,000,000,000 assets, 93 per cent of which are loaned to its members on home mortgages, should be given the opportunity that the Home Loan Bank act gives to it."

Answering critics of the act's administration who cite delay and parsimony of loans, Best traced the history of the act, declaring the first loan was made in Allegheny County just three months after the act became law, as compared with a two years lapse after passage of the Federal Farm Loan act and 11 months between the passage of the Federal Reserve act and the discounting of its first note.

He concluded that more than 100 new applications from building and loans are now on file in Washington, awaiting President Roosevelt's appointment of a complete new Home Loan Bank Commission to act upon them.

LETTER TELLS QUAKE TERROR

Fears of a tidal wave following the earthquake in Long Beach sent residents scurrying to distant points of safety, Miss Elma N. Krepps, former Pittsburgher, residing in the stricken California city, reveals in a letter to her brother, Dr. A. L. Krepps, 6014 Bryant street. Miss Krepps wrote:

"My, what a night of terror. I have absolutely no desire to live through another like it. Instruments on the ships said we would have the worst earthquake California ever had, followed by a tidal wave. So we drove 14 miles away and parked in an empty lot until we heard the danger of a tidal wave had passed."

ACTION ON TAX LAW HELD UP

WILKES-BARRE, March 21.—(AP.)—Action on the question of court jurisdiction for interpretation of the bailment lease provision of the Emergency Sales Tax law is at a standstill today pending word from the Department of Justice as to whether it would agree to a hearing of the case in Dauphin County courts if a specific instance in controversy was presented.

The action was begun several days ago by Wyoming Valley merchants who transact a large portion of their business on bailment leases, which the Department of Revenue holds are taxable.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(Gems from the 5 and 10)

That Alphonse Capone's is now the most valuable American autograph and is worth $14 here and $110 in Yurrup.

That Manhattan is not an Island. (You can win bets on that!)

That bloodhounds do not bite—merely track you down—woof!

That the Pilgrims did not set aside the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day. (Say! What did they have to be thankful for?)

That sixty per cent of the women in America don't know whether they are blondes or brunettes, according to a beauty expert.

That besides perfuming rubber articles they now have perfected a gadget to perfume hosiery. (How about perfuming a column?)

That only 20 per cent of the merchandise sold in drug stores is drugs. Eight per cent is prescriptions. (What! No sandwiches?)

That the Constitution itself is unconstitutional, according to a Tampa man. According to its own provisions, he asserts, it was to be valid when ratified by nine states. But the Articles of Confederation, which superseded the present document, couldn't be changed without consent of 13 states.

That the smallest fish (not columning rivals) are the pan-duka-pygmies. They measure 6-16 of an inch. (But who cares about small fry?)

That the movie starring one of the more popular radio singers is registering a new low throughout the country for box office receipts.

That elevators in buildings over 20 stories high cost exactly four and one-half cents for every trip.

That a recent survey disclosed that there are about 30,000 too many doctors in America. (Let's stop eating apples.)

That Americans spent four billions for amusement last year.

That there are more than three trillion stars in the heavens. (Now's your chance to hitch your squeaky wagon.)

That more baseball programs are sold in the Cincinnati ball park than in any other. (New York sells the most hot dugs.)

That a horse is afraid of a camel. (A gee-gee simply cannot stand its form or aroma and will run a mile from a camel.)

That the Homeric Greeks went to war with Troy not to secure a new trade route (as some nice Nellie historians would have you all believe) but because the Trojans thefted their women.

That recent headlines stated that the average American was healthy despite the depresh. (What you don't eat won't hurt you, huh?)

That there's a barber shop in Corona, L. I., where a sign reads: "Pay what you think your shave and haircut is worth. We've no prices!"

That 9ber, 10ber, 11ber and 12ber may be used for Sept., Oct., Nov. and December, according to Webster's dicksh.

That one man can carry a whole carload of Balsa Wood. I wonder if he can raise a quarter for me? (Just a gag, bay-bee.)

That our new President's initials F. D. R. are plenty appropriate — Franklin Delano Roosevelt — Fight Depression Right!

That out of the 7,000,000 people paying the high incomes in the fiscal year of 1930—a little over 4,120,000 were born under the same sign, Aries.

March 22 to April 19. Mine is April 7—just my luck.

That no man born under the zodiacal sign of Gemini (May 21 to June 21), was ever elected Pres. of the United States.

That the heart is supposed to last for 800 years, according to scientists. The ear (140 years) is the weakest organ in the human.

That the chemicals that compose the body of a man of average weight are worth about 98c. (Not Sidney Numbskullsky!)

That they belittle women who wear pants, but Manhattan got its name from Indian squaws who insisted on wearing men's lids. You can check it in Washington Irving's History of New York.

That nobody has actually flown around the world!

That the best tooth brushes are made from the hair of the wild boar which is found in Russia, where they don't clean their teeth!

That the movie studios today buy almost as much gunpowder as an army. (No wonder they're blowing up so fast!)

Peace Made By Studio, Raft

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—Peace reigns once more between Paramount and George Raft. The star returns here about the twenty-seventh to take up his work in "The Trumpet Blows."

While the settlement of the dispute has not been unexpected in Hollywood, definite news is the cause of satisfaction both at the studio and among George's friends.

Thanks to the fact that the actor's manager, Nat Goldstone, never allowed money to become an issue in the fight, this matter can, and will, be taken up with both parties in an amiable frame of mind.

Mr. Raft

Meanwhile, George won his main point. He did not have to appear in "The Story of Temple Drake."

In his new story, an original by Oliver H. P. Garrett and Porter Emerson Browne, the star plays a young Mexican, who refuses to follow family tradition and become a bull-fighter. He takes up dancing instead and falls in love with an American girl (Mirian Hopkins). Jack La Rue, as printed heretofore, will play Raft's brother in the production.

And, to save Paramount a lot of abuse, there will be no bull-fight scenes in the picture. Not long ago, a certain Hollywood studio announced a bull fight story and received thousands of indignant letters.

The first installment of Charlie Chaplin's book is slated to appear in the September number of a national magazine. The comedian delivered the manuscript nine days ago. Since then, he has been spending most of his time inspecting boats. He has his eye on a modest craft that can be operated by two men. Charlie still insists he will start another silent picture in two months.

Today sees Clara Bow and Rex Bell off to their ranch for a couple of months. The red-head's cousin, John, has gone ahead, but the other twin, Lillian, is with Rex and Clara . . . The plan is now for Joel McCrea to do "Rafter Romance" with Dorothy Jordan. That would make him unavailable for the Constance Bennett picture. Or maybe Connie will have something to say about that when she returns on the twenty-fifth . . . Dorothy Jordan and Merian C. Cooper, by the way, are Hollywood's most devoted couple of the moment. Saw them dining at Levys the other night. Dorothy in a white outfit despite the rain . . . And Ginger Rogers was at the "42nd Street" opening with Howard Hughes . . . The young Earl of Warwick is being much entertained by the film folk. He was luncheon guest of the Adolphe Menjous at the Ambassador.

That excited look in W. C. Field's eyes is due to the fact that he has $250,000 in the Harriman Bank in New York. . . . Ramon Novarro is off for Europe, not to return until the middle of June. His artistic home is being taken over by Myrna Loy.

Tune Satire In Nixon Is Fun

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Of Thee I Sing" began the second lap of its nine-day engagement in the Nixon last night before an audience that had just as much fun as the folks who greeted this delicious musical satire on its local premiere a week ago.

In the book, George S. Kaufman and Morris Ryskind demonstrate that the art of spoofing a nation on matters close to its heart did not expire with the passing of W. S. Gilbert, who, with Sir Arthur Sullivan, slapped down English dignity and kidded bureaucrats in their own inimitable way in "H. M. S. Pinafore."

The satire is just as pertinent, just as pointed, and is far more timely, and more happily clownish, with the additional quality of being native in its humor.

As to the lyrics of Ira Gershwin and music of George Gershwin, they are, of course, appropriate to the general motivation, hence, satisfactory.

Characterization is felicitous, too, in the bemused vacancy of Victor Moore as Alexander Throttlebottom, unconscious vice president; in the opportunity-grabbing of William Gaxton, as John P. Wintergreen, president, and in the promotion of the "love-in-the-White-House" idea by Lois Moran.

It's a good show for the greatest need of the country—a hearty laugh.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The opening of the box-office sale of seats for "The Green Pastures" occurred yesterday, three days in advance of the customary day, Thursday. This play will open next Monday in the Nixon, with the principal characters acted by cast seen in the original production in New York three years ago. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

* * *

The annual musical play of the Pitt Cap and Gown Club will be given in the Nixon the week of April 24. It is described as a musical romance of the day when Pittsburgh was young, and will introduce early Pittsburgh characters. The title is "All to the Point," book by G. Norman Reis and music and lyrics by Gus Schnable, John St. Peter and Dr. Benjamin Levant.

PLEASANT WASHDAYS AHEAD — by D'Alton Valentine

WHY, FRANK—WHAT IN THE WORLD ARE YOU DOING?
TRYING TO SEE IF ANYTHING'S WRONG WITH THE WASHER. YOU SAID YOU WEREN'T SATISFIED WITH THE LOOKS OF THE CLOTHES
SILLY! IT ISN'T THE WASHER. THE SALESMAN JUST TOLD ME IT'S THE SOAP I'VE BEEN USING. HE SAID TO USE RINSO IF I WANTED REAL SNOWY CLOTHES
NEXT WASHDAY
SEE, MOTHER—IT'S JUST AS THE SALESMAN SAID. RINSO GIVES MUCH RICHER SUDS THAN ORDINARY SOAP
YOU USED SO LITTLE RINSO, TOO
THIS FIRST BATCH WAS DONE IN HALF THE TIME IT USED TO TAKE MY, WHAT SWEET, CLEAN CLOTHES—AND SO WHITE! I MUST TRY RINSO—AND FOR DISHES, TOO

"Makes loads of rich, lively suds!" says Mrs. Mary Williams, 5173 Broad St.

"IN MY mind there isn't any soap in the world to compare with Rinso! I never saw the like, even a small amount of Rinso makes loads of rich lively suds which loosen dirt. And Rinso washes clothes so much whiter than other soaps; I know because I've actually compared results. Rinso makes dishwashing easier, too; its creamy suds loosen grease in half the time. You'll be surprised to see how easy Rinso is on the hands!"

MRS. MARY WILLIAMS,
5173 Broad St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

The home-making experts of 316 leading newspapers—the makers of 40 famous washers—recommend Rinso. Cup for cup, it gives twice as much suds as puffed-up soaps. In tubs, makes out dirt—saves scrubbing. Clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. Great for dishes. Get the BIG package

Yiddish Play Has Tragic Thrills

By GEORGE SEIBEL

An old German novel by Karl Emil Franzos, called "Judith Trachtenberg," has been turned into a film romance by a troupe from Vilna, and is presented in Yiddish on the screen of the Avenue Cinema under the title "A Daughter of Her People." Anybody who understands German could easily follow the narrative, for Yiddish is mostly German with words of other languages and Hebrew combined to a picturesque jargon.

Mr. Seibel

And anybody who does not understand either Yiddish or German could easily follow the picture through the acting, for here is acting of the old-fashioned school which left nothing to the imagination and registered every emotion at least three times. Judith's father rolls his eyes until you think they are going to roll on the floor. Her panting bosom heaves until you fear the ozone will be exhausted.

It is all about a Jewish girl who forsakes her paternal roof to be the bride of a Polish count. There is a fake wedding arranged by a rascally commissar, and afterward there is a real baby which is bathed in copious tears. Judith tries suicide once and succeeds in dying the second time.

The count is very noble and loves her very much, but what can he do against commissars, disguised bandits, hardhearted bishops and laws that would confiscate his estate if he marries a stranger to the faith? Even a faithful count wilts when his people taunt his bride as a "Jewish countess."

With all its stilted pathos and crinolinish romance, the story has melodramatic moments of power, and the ceremonials in the Jewish household and cemetery are impressively done. Impressive, also, is the acting—which is acting as it was in the good old days that aren't dead in Vilna.

Romance Seen In Variety

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

Romance that blossoms in a police court forms the basis for "Slightly Married," a film in the Variety this week. Both the romance and the picture are slightly shaky because of the inability of Walter Byron and Evalyn Knapp, in the leads, to realize they've found a good thing.

Both know they're in love after Byron's alcoholic generosity in marrying Miss Knapp to save her from jail. But his money, and meddling mother and "pal," seem rather illogically to prove insurmountable obstacles. When Miss Knapp begins knitting baby clothes, you can probably guess the rest. With the picture inclining toward the humorous, Marie Provost turns in the best performance as a "tough" girl friend.

Two comedies prove to be better than the feature. In "Huntin' Trouble," Louise Fazenda, with a competent supporting cast, leads her husband, two dog sellers, and a great dane a hilarious chase. Skeets Gallagher stars in an amusing parlor and bedroom farce "The Finishing Touch."

The Douglas Wright Company revives "Spark Plug" on the stage in an amusing parody of a trained animal act. Campbell and Brady provide a juggling act which features billiard cues. Mansfield and Madeleine give a pleasing comedy and song performance. Trapeze work of the Geddes Trio and dance and comedy by Healy and Garnella complete the bill.

Comedy

Jimmie Durante is the co-star of Buster Keaton in "What! No Beer?" picture in the Enright tomorrow.

Variety To Reduce Price For Kiddies

Beginning next week lower admission prices for children in the Variety will prevail, Manager George Jaffe has cut the admission price for kiddies to 15 cents for all shows. The admission price for adults will remain the same, 25 cents from 11:30 a. m. until 5 p. m., and 40 cents from 5 p. m. until closing. A complete bill of five vaudeville acts will be continued each week, along with the featured picture, Mickey Mouse, news reel and selected comedies.

28th Ward Mine Fire Still Gives Trouble

In a letter to be read today in Council's committee meeting, Robert S. Chess, solicitor for Crafton Borough, requests the city to make further studies of the troublesome mine fire in the Twentieth Ward. Chess wrote that the fire is not yet entirely extinguished along Crafton's eastern boundary in the Sterrett street district.

MUSIC

Paderewski
Syria Mosque

ALL-CHOPIN PROGRAM

Fantasia, Opus 49.
Two Nocturnes, Opus 27.
Four Preludes, Nos. 17, 16, 21, 24.
Sonata G flat minor, Opus 35.
Grave — Doppio movimento—Scherzo—Funeral Marche—Presto finale.
Ballade F minor, Opus 52.
Three Etudes, Nos. 6, 8, 12, Opus 25.
Scherzo C sharp minor, Opus 39.
Polonaise E flat minor, Opus 26.
Two Mazurkas, B flat minor, Opus 24; D major, Opus 33.
Grand Valse brilliante, Opus 18.

A well deserved ovation was given Paderewski when he stepped upon the stage of Syria Mosque last night. The grand old man of the piano, statesman and poet was as always before, a portrait out of better musical days and a prophet of the new day in which art must find its place beside all the practicalities of life.

Mr. Lissfelt

Paderewski played a program built entirely of the works of his compatriot Frederic Chopin. It is now pointless to enter into any discussion of this great musician's technical makeup, for there is now something so triumphant about his playing which obliterates any personal feeling regarding phrasing or interpretive conception.

There are moments of the deepest contemplation; there is more than poetry, for one senses a profounder vision than the poet's; there is now a magnificance which can come only from the soul of an empire builder. I am certain that Paderewski can say better through his music all he has learned of this life than through political philosophies, but can he say all?

Like Beethoven in the works of fullest maturity, Paderewski must overstride the powers of his medium of expression. It comes upon us, this music, like the voice of the elements breaking all bounds that dam the torrent.

For the many young students in the audience the achievement of this man must be a mighty inspiration, and when he had finished this monumental program, he sat again to the piano and played all the old standbys of Chopin which these children must be learning—the F Sharp Nocturne, the C Sharp Minor Waltz, the "Butterfly" Etude, the Liszt paraphrase on "Maiden's Wish" and then the "Military" Polonaise.

Chopin's music was borne of his love for Poland. If we got that message through Paderewski's playing last night we must be content. J. FRED LISSFELT.

'New Dealers' Also Needed, Voters Told

Not only a "new deal" but "new dealers" are demanded in municipal administration, Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, chairman of the Pennsylvania Conference on Election Laws, declared last night before members of the Thirty-second Ward Independent Republican organization, meeting in Independence Hall, Sawmill Run boulevard. He added:

"The organization clique is opposed to progressive changes in the election laws and other constructive measures because approval of these would take away its political influence."

CHORINE WINS WINGS AS FLIER

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—Girls can fly—even when they're chorus girls and more than usually attractive.

David M. Cauffman was compelled to admit that today. The compulsion was provided by Miss Jane Ray, Chicago beauty and member of the "Of Thee I Sing" company, now appearing here. Cauffman, as manager of the company, was incredulous when Miss Ray informed him that she intends to fly herself to Portland, Ore., when the company leaves San Francisco on Saturday. Cauffman said:

"Girls can't fly."

So Miss Ray dragged Cauffman to San Francisco Airport where she climbed into a plane, all by herself, took off, and soared above the field for several minutes, and then made a perfect landing.

Miss Ray explained that she had obtained a private pilot's license in Chicago two years ago, and had had numerous hours in the air.

THRIFT GARDENS FOR JOBLESS

Any unemployed family or any family partialy employed may apply for a thrift garden this year, according to an anouncement by the garden committees of the Pitsburgh Community Council and the Allegheny Emergency Association, predicting a greater number of such gardens this year than in the past.

Where land is not available at home, individual plots will be provided in group gardens, the announcement states, with provisions being made for lime, fertilizer and tools.

Transportation plans are now being completed in the interest of persons living in congested areas.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barlo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

INQUEST SIFTS QUAKE DEATH NEGLIGENCE

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—(AP.)—With District Attorney Buron Fitts in attendance, an inquest into the causes of death during the March 10 earthquake opened here today.

Coroner Frank Nance said:

"I am going to use every effort to bring out all the facts. The inquest will not only be for the purpose of determining possible criminal negligence on the part of some builder but also to determine what types of structures or methods of construction withstood the shake and can withstand others."

The inquest is expected to take two days. Expert testimony from approximately 30 building engineers and scientists is scheduled.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Particular emphasis, the Coroner stated, will be placed on school building construction. To open this channel of investigation, the inquest technically is being conducted over the bodies of Walter de Buxton and Tony Guglliermo, students killed in the collapse of school buildings.

The Red Cross has tabulated an official death list of 121, including heart attack victims. Mrs. Jane Spivey, who died at Long Beach yesterday from injuries suffered when caught by falling debris, was the one hundred and twenty-first victim.

Los Angeles felt two minor shocks Monday, one at 6:01 a. m. and other at 7:26 p. m.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted an emergency building ordinance which requires earthquake proof repairs to buildings damaged by the tremors, as well as safe construction of all buildings in the future.

School Safety Pushed In Earthquake Area

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 21.—(Universal.)—California has moved with grim determination to make its schools safe for occupancy.

Confronted with evidence that many school buildings collapsed like sand blocks in the recent earthquake, state officials went into action, with the result that a bill preventing future construction of unsafe type and regulating all repairs to damaged structures, may become a law by tonight.

Meeting in Gov. James Rolph's private office, a group of legislators and state officials reviewed reports of damage in the Southern California area and promptly set in motion machinery to give the state immediate supervision over all school buildings.

EMERGENCY MEASURE

Under the proposed emergency measure, no public school could be erected or repaired in California without the plans being approved by the Department of Public Works, the state architect and state engineer.

The bill was suggested to Gov. Rolph and to the legislators by George Hearst, representing the Los Angeles Examiner and the board of eminent architects, engineers and exports selected under his supervision to study the recent quake damage and make recommendations for future safety.

In reviewing at the conference the findings of the technical board, Hearst presented to the Governor copies of laboratory tests showing that the mortar in many of the collapsed school buildings was appallingly weak and that some of the reinforced concrete was far below requirements of the building code.

Prof. S. M. Kingsbury To Head Labor Group

HARRISBURG, March 20.—(AP.)—Prof. Susan M. Kingsbury of Bryn Mawr College, is to head the Pennsylvania Labor Standards Committee to co-ordinate efforts on behalf of social legislation now being made by a number of organizations.

One major demand of the committee, Prof. Kingsbury said, is immediate enactment of compulsory insurance.

BRITISH NAVAL HERO DIES

LONDON, March 21.—(AP.)—Admiral Sir Martyn Jerram, leader of the Second Battle Squadron at Jutland, died yesterday at the age of 75.

His naval career started in 1871 and he saw service in waters throughout the world. From 1913 to 1915 he was vice admiral and commander in chief of the China station. He became an admiral in 1917 as a result of his brilliant service in the early years of the war. He also served in consular and diplomatic roles, and was decorated by several countries.

Early in his career Sir Martyn was awarded the Royal Humane Society's medal for life saving, a decoration he always prized highly. He headed the committee investigating lower deck grievances at the end of war and his pay revision suggestions were adopted.

Greene Taxpayers Back Highway Bill

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 21.—The executive committee of the Greene County Taxpayers Association has adopted a resolution indorsing a bill providing for the state highway department to take over more than 53,000 miles of township highway but allowing present township commissioners to be retained in office.

ACTION NEEDED ON STREET JOBS

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang informed Council late yesterday that the city must contract for the improvement of Carson street from Telford street to the city line and the relocation of Noblestown road from east of Obey avenue before May 31 or no state funds will be forthcoming to help with the jobs.

Widening and improvement of Carson street from Telford street to the city line at Chartiers Creek and construction of a retaining wall would cost the city $131,000, Lang said, to which the state would add $20,000. Relocation of Noblestown road east of Obey avenue would cost the city $22,000 and the state $16,500, his figures show.

Lang has submitted to Council a letter from H. E. Kloss, district state engineer, saying there is no need to delay the work and that it must be contracted for before May 31 if state funds are to be available.

EQUITABLE GAS JOINS RATE REDUCTION MOVE

POLITICS

Herron Credited With Adroit Move

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 21. — Allegheny County politicians discussing about the Capitol today the request of President of Council John Herron that the Citizens Tax Committee, which recommended a 10 per cent decrease in the Pittsburgh tax rate, proceed to its next function, the suggestion of new tax sources, and crediting Herron with an adroit political move.

Mr. Shields

The request by Herron has that aspect because of recent developments, though it is a logical step to be taken, and was included as a part of the committee's duties when it was created.

The chairman of the committee is W. P. Witherow. It was he who led the citizens' group which studied budget cuts to bring about a reduction of the city tax rate, carried into effect by a vote of Council.

* * *

Laying New Taxes Not Conducive to Popularity

That was a popular move, with all except the city payroll which was compelled to accept cuts, and others who were entirely removed from the public service because of economy. To the credit of those who remained, it must be said that they accepted the reduction, both city and county, in good grace as an exemplification of what was being done in private business.

But laying taxes on new sources or suggesting new avenues of revenue, is not so translatable into popularity.

Since the tax cut was effected Mr. Witherow has barged forward as a potential candidate for the mayoralty. The attention he received through the tax cut started the ball rolling. For a time little attention was paid to the matter except in a restricted circle, and Mr. Witherow himself did not take it too seriously though any man has a natural satisfaction in reaching a stature in the public eye where he can receive such mention legitimately.

* * *

Mayoralty Virus In Witherow Veins

But the virus of the mayoralty has gotten into the Witherow veins in the past few weeks with a feverish intensity.

No one knows that better than Mr. Herron, who suffers from the same malady in what is probably an even more violent form, and who has been in the grip of the disease for a longer period. He views Mr. Witherow as a serious potential challenge to the Herron desire to retain by election the seat as Mayor he will take by automatic charter operation and councilmanic election when and if Mayor Kline steps out.

No one knows better than Mr. Herron the unpopularity of suggesting new taxes at this time. He probably had something of that in mind when he instructed the tax committee to proceed with its business. He probably will request from it frequent reports, particularly if his power increases through accession to the mayoralty.

It is a very pretty piece of boxing and the political acumen of Mr. Witherow will receive an immediate test.

* * *

Coyne's Friends Urge Him to Relax Opposition

Some friends of Senator James P. Coyne who can see beyond a hundred feet are advising him to relax his opposition to the Pittsburgh city manager bill, which is the subject today of a public hearing before the Senate Elections Committee. They are admitting that some amendments might be introduced, and adopted, which would make the city manager method less obnoxious to a political organization.

But they urge that the principle of home rule, of the right of the people to decide for themselves how they shall be governed, should not be blockaded by any action of Coyne and his followers in the Legislature.

* * *

Declare Such Course Would Disarm Criticism

To adopt that course would be to disarm much of the criticism now directed at the Oakland Senator, they declare. It would be time enough for him to marshal his forces, along with many not in his outfit who do not believe in the city manager form of government, at the subsequent election to decide whether it would be adopted for Pittsburgh.

In theory and ethically this is sound advice.

But it will be surprising if it prevails, in view of the Senator's past expressions of unalterable objection to any such permissive measure. The Senator, once his mind is set, is tenacious of purpose, even though his judgment appears to be colored by shortsightedness.

BUTCHER KNIFE NEW TORTURE DEATH CLUE

Suspect in Slaying Of Aged Pair to Be Freed by Police

County Detectives today were prepared to release Rufus Johnson, 34, Negro, held for questioning in the murder of Frank Koszula and his wife, Katherine, both 70, whose bodies were found in their home at Champion Hill, near Sturgeon, Friday.

As they discarded the robbery motive and launched an investigation "along other lines in which finger prints and a blood-stained butcher knife may play important parts," the detectives said they were convinced that Johnson had nothing to do with the murder.

He was arrested yesterday at his home after a neighbor woman said she had seen a Negro leaving the backyard of the Koszula home two days before the murder.

Acting Chief County Detective James S. McGinley disclosed that his men had found a butcher knife at the scene of the murder. He said:

"I have reason to believe the knife is an important clue."

Steel Plant Reopens, Employs 100 Men

Resumption of activities at the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, McKeesport, started today. Employment for about 100 men was being provided, according to Manager S. M. Cooper. The plant, which had been shut down since May, resumed work to handle material on hand, it was said. No orders were credited for the resumption, which is expected to continue several weeks.

At Last We Are Starting to See America First

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Took the Democrats to discover that honesty is economy.

Government is going to spend plenty of money. But it is going to spend it where it will show like the mole on the old lady's nose.

There will be building, relief and improvements. There will be no skimping like the fellow who built himself a summer bungalow. The thing was so hollow it collapsed when he took down the scaffolding before he put up the wall paper.

It will take some time to get the public used to new ways of doing things. We're going to inaugurate in January, our Congresses work until summer and we can get real beer in the spring. The politicians have had their heads yanked out of the feed trough and the public will get a square shake and a long roll.

And in the race between the grafters and the nation it looks like we are finally seeing America first.

MISS VERA DAWSON . . . MEETING AN AMBASSADOR AGAIN

Much Honored Co-Ed Going to French Meet

'Prodigy' Selected Second Time to Represent Pitt

French Ambassador Paul Claudel will renew his acquaintance with one of the most talented young women ever to attend the University of Pittsburgh, when he meets Vera Dawson at the Alliance Francaise convention in New York next month.

Miss Dawson, of Bakerstown, chosen to represent the university's French Circle at the convention for a second year, is the youngest person ever to receive a master's degree in French at Pitt. Still under 21, she has almost completed work for her Ph. D.

At Allegheny College, from which she was graduated in three years with highest honors, she received a prize for being the best all-around girl in her class. She was a member of the girls' varsity basketball team and received awards for skiing and other athletics. She was a member of the debating team and of the staff of the college paper.

With scholarships, office and teaching work, Miss Dawson has supported herself since starting to college. She designs and makes her own dresses.

Her career? Since the death of her mother, it has consisted in raising a family of four younger brothers and sisters. She said:

"You ought to see how my 15-year-old brother can cook."

She admitted she could cook, too.

She hopes to get a chance this summer to complete her Ph. D. thesis by studying the language of natives in Dutch Guiana. Later she may attend Johns Hopkins. Then perhaps—marriage, if she can find the right man.

Meanwhile she's looking forward to a grand time at the convention of the Alliance Francaise. She had one there last year.

WOMEN VOTERS HERE RAP DUCE ON SUFFRAGE

Mrs. Miller Declares Feminine Vote Aids Good Government

Pittsburgh women civic leaders were vigorous in voicing their protest today to Premier Benito Mussolini's declaration that women are unsuited for political life.

Il Duce, in a statement published in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, gave as his reasons for his opposition to votes for women the opinion that a larger number of votes means less quality and his belief that women do not have the capacity for scaling the dizzy heights of genius necessary for the supreme art of politics.

MRS. MILLER'S VIEWS

Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the county government committee, League of Women Voters, said:

"Women have voted only 12 years, but the system was set up and entrenched by men. Twelve years is too short a time to show what women can do.

"But I agree with Mussolini when he says that there are a great many people who ought not to vote. I believe that most women politicians advocate a strict educational test, equal, at least, to a passing of the sixth grade.

"As for his statement that women are unsuited for politics, I can point out that many women have been among the ablest rulers and politicians in history. If it is necessary for a good politician to have a good judgment of men, who should know more about men than women?

"Men politicians are more supine and cowardly than women. Why, women have had to make budgets balance for years!"

MUSSOLINI DICTATOR

Mrs. Ralph L. Smith, member of the board, League of Women Voters, was just as emphatic:

"Mussolini is an absolute dictator in Italy and is, of course, in a position to try out any of his theories. It will be interesting to see what happens.

"Government we can't escape, and government good or bad is determined by politicians good or bad.

"Women pay over half the taxes. Does Mussolini propose taxation without representation?

"The votes and political activity of organized, intelligent, interested women have already had a beneficial effect upon the government of this city, county, state, and nation. Roosevelt has appointed Miss Perkins Secretary of Labor, to mention one advance."

Thryssa W. Amos, dean of women at the University of Pittsburgh. She said:

"It is preposterous to claim that women do not have the capacity to vote as intelligently as men. But I am not surprised to hear that Mussolini believes a doctrine so outmoded."

"DESERVE VOTE"

"Women deserve the vote because it is only just that they should have it. As for the men geniuses he speaks of, if we really had a few of them we wouldn't be in the mess we are in today."

County Court Judge Sara M. Soffel commented:

"Government is not a question of sex. Women do not claim that they can vote more intelligently than men; they demand the vote as their right as citizens and taxpayers. Eventually, I believe, Italy, too, will grant the vote to women."

Man's Knitting Keeps Family in Sweaters, Socks

MR. RICHTER AKNITTING

Fashioning Garments Long-Time Hobby Of Ex-Florist

Life to Frederick A. Richter, retired Etna florist, has been just one ball of yarn after another.

Knitting has been the hobby of this 60-year-old man since early youth. His sons and daughters and grandchildren have never had to want for hand-made sweaters, socks and scarfs.

Born in Germany, but for 52 years a resident of the Mt. Royal road district, near Etna, Richter explains his hobby:

"My florist business is now managed by my son, and I have much time on my hands. Although I do a great deal of reading, knitting seems to rest my mind from the confused thoughts of the world."

Although his fingers are not as speedy as in the war days when he knitted "a sock a day" for the American soldiers, he still manages to furnish his family with their knitted needs.

He tells of a war-time experience in a street car, when he was knitting alongside a woman similarly engaged. Her knitting was rough and knotted, and Richter told her that he pitied the poor soldier that would have to wear her socks. Thoughtlessly, he said:

"You ought to knit the way the old Germans do."

A near riot ensued in the car, and Richter was saved by a Civil War veteran who came to his rescue.

Richter lives near his greenhouses with two sons, two daughters and four grandchildren.

THIRD UTILITY CUT TO SAVE $500,000

Larger Consumers Benefit by New Graded Schedule

The Equitable Gas Company has announced a reduced rate schedule for its larger consumers, thus falling in line with action previously taken by the Peoples Natural Gas Company and the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company.

The new schedule, announced by Frank R. Phillips, president of the Equitable Gas Company, makes no change in the charge of 60 cents net per thousand which has been charged for the first 15,000 feet per month. The old first step was 60 cents per thousand net for the first 50,000 feet.

For the next 85,000 cubic feet, 45 cents net per thousand will be charged as compared with 55 cents net per thousand for the next 50,000 feet under the old schedule. For the next 150,000 cubic feet under the new rate 42 cents net per thousand will be charged as compared with 50 cents net per thousand for the next 100,000 under the old rate.

SERVES FIVE COUNTIES

In the steps above that, the reduction amounts to as much as 20 cents per thousand for very large industrial users.

The Equitable Gas Company serves approximately 150,000 consumers, chiefly in Allegheny, Armstrong, Greene, Washington and Westmoreland counties.

All gas consumers whose bills do not at present exceed $9 per month receive no benefit from the rate reduction. This would include most small home owners who use gas only for kitchen range and water heater.

Where gas is used for heating the home, either in furnace or in stoves, the rate would probably run into the higher brackets where there is some saving. As an example, a consumer whose monthly bill was formerly $30 would pay $24.75 under the new rate.

CITES COMPETITION

A consumer whose monthly gas bill was $57.50 under the old rate would pay $47.25 under the new.

Petition to the Public Service Commission to file the new rates was made today, and bills rendered on meter readings taken on and after Thursday will be computed on the reduced rates.

On the three lower steps the new rate is premanent, but in the higher brackets it is being put in effect for an experimental period ending May 15, 1934.

In a statement, Phillips declared that the revenues of the Equitable Gas Company are already inadequate, inasmuch as he contends they fail to produce a resasonable return on the par value of the property. He said:

"The competition of other fuels now selling at unusually low levels forces the gas company to take some steps toward stabilizing its revenues."

SAVINGS $500,000

The reductions provided would mean a savings of approximately $500,000 to the consumers of the company, he stated.

The higher steps over 200,000 cubic feet filed for the period of experiment include next 750,000 cubic feet at 40 cents net per thousand, next 4,000,000 cubic feet at 37 cents net per thousand, next 5,000,000 cubic feet 32 cents net per thousand, next 20,000,000 cubic feet at 30 cents net per thousand, and next 30,000,000 cubic feet at 25 cents per thousand.

Rate reductions of the other two gas companies were similar, the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company putting in effect alternate plans providing for reductions for those using more than 11,000 or more than 15,000 cubic feet of gas per month.

Under the schedule introduced by the Peoples Natural Gas Company, consumers using in excess of 15,000 cubic feet a month receive reductions increasing with the amount used as in the case of the Equitable Gas Company schedule.

Another utility to announce reductions in its rates is the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, operating in Central Pennsylvania, which has volunteered electric rate reductions totaling $700,000 a year, according to word from the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg. Their new rates are to take effect April 20, and apply to residential as well as commercial consumers.

WATERS PERILING OVEN FALL AS WOMEN PRAY

Community Baking Place Survives Flood Threat

Prayers offered by women dependent upon a McKeesport community oven for their daily bread today were credited with saving of the structure when flood waters of the Youghiogheny River threatened it last week.

The oven, which supplies bread for 65 men, women and children, was built on the river bank at Second street about seven months ago. The men and women of this group all share in the baking.

The oven, built by George Shunko, George Manzlak, John Dobos and Alex Sabo, is fired by the men folk after the women have made the dough. Once the fire is built the women test the oven to obtain the proper heat.

The community spirit prevails in the little group. When the flood waters threatened to overflow the river bank and destroy the oven, the women offered prayers. The water shortly receded without doing damage.

McKeesport Tin Plant Reopens

The W. Dewees Wood works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, McKeesport, closed since last May, was to be reopened today, according to S. M. Cooper, general superintendent. About 105 men will be employed, he said.

SEEKING GIRL'S ASSAILANT

East End police today sought a man who struck Virginia Delfanso, 19, of 7521 Tioga street, on the head in Hamilton avenue, near Collier street last night.

The girl was returning to her home from Westinghouse High School when the man seized her, policed said. She screamed and fought, and he struck her on the head and fled.

Dazed by the blow, the girl walked to a garage at Hamilton avenue and Sterrett street and asked the attendants to telephone police. After receiving treatment for lacerations and bruises on the head at the Pittsburgh Hospital she was taken to her home.

Surety Charge Against Socialite Dropped

Mrs. John S. Kennedy, the former Miss Jean Kirk, Sewickley social registerite, was free today of a surety of the peace charge filed against her in connection with an alleged quarrel with her brother-in-law, W. K. Jenne, wartime aviator, of Philadelphia.

The charge was dismissed by Justice of the Peace W. S. Edward, of Glenfield, last night when Jenne failed to appear for the hearing. After waiting an hour Mrs. Kennedy was freed of the charges and $500 bail bond posted by her mother, Mrs. David M. Kirk, in whose Sewickley Heights home the family strife was said to have occurred. The costs of the case were assessed upon Jenne.

Jenne, who married Mrs. Kennedy's sister, the former Mrs. Robina Kirk Quimby, two years ago, made the information against his sister-in-law two weeks ago, after a visit to the Kirk home in Blackburn road with his wife. Mrs. Jenne accompanied her husband to Edwards' office when he made the information against her sister.

It is understood Jenne is at his home, 6030 Drexel road, Philadelphia.

It's Smart to Be Plump In Italy; Duce's Orders

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
Universal Service.

ROME, March 21.—"The buxomer the better."

"Thin women make poor mothers."

"Plump mothers have healthier babies."

In other words, Premier Mussolini has ordered a new nation-wide campaign in Italy to "glorify" the buxom feminine figure.

Il Duce's press bureau, which dictates what Italian newspapers print, has banned photographs and sketches of slender women.

Magazine artists, including Umberto Onorato who is famed for his lithe fashion sketches, are compelled to fatten women's figures, "rounding them"—here—and there.

Newspapers henceforth are not allowed to describe slender women as "attractive." The measurements of the statue of Venus and other ancients are being cited as ideal.

Il Duce has suggested that doctors advise patients against the diet fad. It is Mussolini's theory that thin women are poor mothers, and hence menace his campaign to increase the birth rate.

In Italy it is smart to be puffy.

KLINE 'VICTIM OF POLITICS,' JUDGE SAYS

The situation in which Mayor Kline finds himself is directly traceable to the voters' neglect of the franchise, Common Pleas Judge Frank P. Patterson said last night, speaking to the Washington Heights Board of Trade in Diller Post Hall, 24 Prospect street, Mt. Washington.

He said:

"Our Mayor was the unfortunate victim of a political system. He got into a whirlpool of politics and became its victim. When I knew him as judge he was socially and morally above reproach."

CITES CRIME SWAY

He declared lack of interest in public affairs by the average person makes it possible for officeholders to forget their constituents and join hands with the criminal, who in many districts are the political powers, and the politician naturally favors those who control the votes.

Judge Patterson declared that despite his recent insistence on activity by constables and the Monaca Club raid he is not a crusader or a reformer.

He added that the courts are a branch of the government, and when vice flaunts itself before them it is a direct challenge to the government of the country and cannot be overlooked.

MUST SUPPRESS VICE

He concluded:

"We will never be without vice. It is just as bad and just as liable to occur as always. As long as government controls vice it can be looked upon as a necessary evil, but when vice begins to attack government it must be suppressed if the government is to prevail."

Speaking of liquor he held that it is a matter of personal conscience, and should not be prohibited but should be controlled by law.

RENT CUT ASKED ON PARKING LOT

The automobile parking business being what it is, R. Gazel and H. Kail, who outbid Burford (Eppy) Epstein $6,600 for the former site of the old Grant School on Grant street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, last night asked the Board of Public Education to cut their rent from $15,000 to $12,000 this year.

Epstein was ousted from the lease January 1, 1932, a recollection which caused N. R. Criss to remark:

"We learned later that there was some personal enmity involved, but by that time we had accepted your offer and had virtually thrown 'Eppy' out on his head, without giving him a chance to renew his lease. If a change is made now, he should be given a chance to get back there if he still wants back."

The board offered to cut the rental if the lessors would agree to permit Eppy to take over the lease at the end of the year on the present terms if he desired. They refused.

Ex-'Big Shot' Slain As Petty Bandit

CHICAGO, March 21.—(INS.)—Reduced to petty banditry by the decline of the beer racket, Robert B. Keating, once a powerful cog in the Danny Stanton gang, was dead today with a rifle bullet through the back of his head.

Keating was shot and killed by Edward Felch, a former Alaskan bear hunter, when the one-time beer gangster and a companion robbed a filling station owned by Felch.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets brings no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

SCHOOLBOYS VOLUNTARILY LEARNING TO COOK

WESTINGHOUSE HIGH SCHOOL BOYS' BUSY IN THEIR "COOKING CLUB" . . . ORGANIZED TO STUDY AFTER SCHOOL HOURS!

CLASS OF BOYS STUDY COOKING

Even if the girls they may marry can't cook, 30 boys at Westinghouse High School will be able to prepare their own meals. Organized as the Westinghouse High School Boys' Cooking Club, when the time comes to break eggs or to mix up a sauce the only women in the room are their sponsors and teachers, Miss Caroline Foresman and Miss Millicent Leach.

Inspired by the depression, many of their meals are prepared from menus compiled by the Pittsburgh Public Health Nursing Association and distributed through welfare associations. They are designed to be economical and nourishing. Some menus, however, are the boys' own, planned to add more variation without extra cost.

In addition to cooking, the boys are also learning table etiquet and serving courtesy.

Over 150 boys applied for membership in the club, but because the domestic science room has facilities for only 30, the club's membership was restricted to that number.

Shovel-Killer Gets One to Three Years

Clifton Turner, 29, Negro, 1867 Rowley street, changed his plea to guilty today in the shovel-killing of Jesse Morgan, 40, Negro, of 1858 Rowley street, last November 11. He contended he struck Morgan in self-defense. Turner was sentenced from one to three years in jail. Visiting Judge I. J. Kenrick fixed the crime at voluntary manslaughter.

'WOODS OPERA' STAYS CLOSED

CHICAGO, March 21.—(Universal.)—Louis Eckstein, sponsor and financial backer of the Ravinia Opera, famous "Opera House in the Woods," announces its suspension will continue through the 1933 season.

The opera, which has had many noted artists in its performances, was obliged to discontinue last year because of the economic situation and the added financial burden upon its guarantors.

In announcing there would be no opera this year, Mr. Eckstein said:

"I arrived at this decision with great regret and only after the most careful deliberation. To keep up the standard of 20 years of operatic development would run into a loss high in the six figures."

PARIS, March 21.—(INS.)—Suzanne Lenglen had extended her blessing today to Baldwin M. Baldwin, California millionaire reported secretly married early this month to Margaret Wilson, Indianapolis heiress.

Over a long period of years, Baldwin was frequently reported engaged to the former world's tennis champion. Suzanne said:

"I knew he was going to marry, but I didn't know the ceremony had already taken place. I hope it will be a very happy marriage. They have my best wishes."

Mlle. Lenglen said she and Baldwin, grandson of E. J. "Lucky" Baldwin, mining prospector and race horse enthusiast, "correspond regularly."

LIBBY TO PRESS BABY'S CLAIM ON ESTATE

Universal Service.

PHILADELPHIA, March 21.—Libby Holman Reynolds has traded her torch song for a lullaby as she remains in Pennsylvania Hospital here anxiously overseeing the careful diet of her tiny son, the $11,500,000 baby who, though 10 weeks old today, weighs only a little more than five pounds.

The exotic singer who once was the sensation of Broadway has for the time being put aside thoughts of further stage triumphs to stay at the side of little Zachary Smith Reynolds, Jr., who graduated from his incubator to an ordinary hospital crib three weeks ago.

HEIR TO RICHES

The baby, born prematurely here January 10, is heir to the tobacco fortune which his father, the slain Zachary Smith Reynolds, would have inherited on his twenty-eighth birthday. He will share the $23,000,000 with his half-sister, little Anne Cannon Reynolds, young Reynolds' daughter by his first wife, according to the best legal opinion.

Although the baby is now reported thriving, Mrs. Reynolds, on the advice of Dr. Charles Fife, has decided to keep the child in the hospital for a while longer, lest his removal upset the meticulous dietic and exercise program the doctor has mapped out.

HEARING NEXT WEEK

The first step in untangling the estate of her young husband is to be taken in Winston-Salem, N. C., next week, when a hearing will be held on the appointment of an administrator.

Libby will receive only the personal estate of young Reynolds, valued at about $100,000.

The vast inheritance of the 20-year-old millionaire is to be divided between his two children.

Thus far the former blues singer has taken no step in regard to appointment of an administrator, but it is known her counsel, Benet Polikoff and William Graves, are keeping in close touch with every more to see that she and her little son are represented when the appointment is made.

Moses Shapiro, public administrator, has served notice he will apply for papers as administrator of the estate if someone is not appointed.

River Captain Here Lauded for Bravery

A letter commending him for his bravery has been received by Capt. S. H. Smith, of the steamer E. K. Davidson, from Maj. W. D. Styer, United States Engineer. Smith rescued James S. Eyler, of Springdale, whose skiff was caught in an ice gorge in the Allegheny River, near Lock 3, February 16.

Relieve Blood Pressur

Sends Treatment on FREE TRIA

Quick Relief, Or You Only Pay When Satisfie

Anyone who suffers from High Blood Pressure, dizziness, ringing in the ears, weak, shaky, nervous feeling; can't sleep nights, has bad taste, pounding of the heart, and who fears a paralytic stroke, should write to the Dr. Hayes Association, 2719 Coates House, Kansas City, Mo. To demonstrate the value of Dr. Hayes' Prescription, they will send you a regular one-dollar size of this famous prescription on absolutely FREE TRIAL. While this treatment is non-specific, many cases report remarkably quick relief, saying that Blood Pressure was reduced, the heart pounding stopped, and that normal sleep returned often within three days. Mrs. J. H., Cincinnati, O., says: "My pressure is down 20 points; doctor very pleased." Mrs. E. F., Pasco, Wash., states: "I can now walk a mile to town without tiring." A Texas bank president writes: "I derived more benefit from this treatment than anything I have ever gotten hold of." A Illinois minister says: "I was near death twice; today I am a new man." Mr. C. C., Gloucester, N. J., reports: "My pressure was reduced 25 points in one week." H. C. H., an old soldier in Washington, says: "Your medicine reduced my pressure 20 points; a short time ago it was 204, today it registered 180." Dr. Hayes' Prescription contains no salts, physics, opiates or dope, and is absolutely harmless for people of all ages. You can take it with any diet, or with any other treatment you may be taking, as it will not conflict. Under this free trial offer, you pay nothing for the treatment unless greatly benefitted. You are the sole judge. When satisfied with the results, send one dollar, otherwise your report cancels the charge. If you suffer from High Blood Pressure, don't hesitate to write to the Dr. Hayes Association, as this wonderful treatment will come to you, postpaid, by return mail, on absolutely FREE TRIAL.

FARRELL JOB FIGHT APPEAL ARGUED HERE

Argument was heard here yesterday by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court on the order of the Mercer County Court ousting Julius Schermer from the office of alderman in the Second Ward of Farrell, from which decision an appeal was taken.

It was testified that Joseph A. Franek was in 1929 elected justice of the peace in the borough, now the city of Farrell. At the general municipal election in 1931, Schermer was elected to the office and filed his acceptance.

Schermer declares he entered on his duties but found his interests in the office were jeopardized and hampered by Franek's continuing to act as an alderman even though he had since been elected mayor.

Schermer began quo warranto proceedings and Franek sued out a cross quo warranto proceeding. In the first case the lower court sustained the motion to quash and wrote no opinion, but merely signed judgment of ouster, thus sustaining the demurrer of Franek.

Among other cases heard included the Commonwealth versus Dominic Robanic on appeal from judgment and sentence of the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Indiana County, and the case of Mary Helen Daugherty Merz and Anthony A. Merz, her husband, against Mary C. Brady on appeal from the decree of the Common Pleas Court of Westmoreland County.

VOTE PROLONGS ENAMEL STRIKE

Employes of the Federal Enameling and Stamping Company, McKees Rocks, voted not to go back to work at a meeting in the firm's offices yesterday.

Although 25 deputies from the Sheriff's office were present, no disorder was experienced. Of the 607 employes, 238 voted to remain out, 234 voted to work, with 135 not voting.

C. E. Christman, president of the company, stated that the plant will remain shut down until the strikers return at the old rate.

Steven Gorney, chairman of the strikers, announced that a final decision will be made at a meeting of all of the employes, but felt that they would not return until their demands are met.

TWO INDICTED IN BANK FRAUD

WHEELING, W. Va., March 21.—(AP.)—More than three months after his disappearance, Ben S. Baer, president of the Union Warehouse and Storage Company, is under indictment charging grand larceny.

His brother, Eugene M. Baer, chairman of the Wheeling Recreation Commission, was indicted with him yesterday charged with theft of $43,000 from three Wheeling banks.

Eugene Baer posted $10,000 bond for a hearing March 25, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of his missing brother.

The indictment says that Ben Baer left his wife in Columbus on December 3, saying he was going to New York on business.

Naming the two Baers jointly on seven charges, the indictment alleges that they obtained the money by posting forged warehouse certificates as collateral on loans.

Paced Floor 5 Years, Wife Seeks Divorce

CHICAGO, March 21.—Kenneth Walden, his wife Irene charged in a divorce bill, not only couldn't sleep himself but for five years he made her get up and pace the floor with him. She estimated that by the time he allegedly deserted her in 1930 she had covered more ground than Burton Holmes.

Mrs. Walden lives in Suburban River Forest. Her husband, she said, is in Long Beach, Cal.

Young Married Folk Should Manage Own Homes

Do you manage your life?

Or do you "just drift along" and let life manage you?

And if you're just drifting, what is it buying you?

Gloomy gobs of grief—that's what drifting is buying for Emmie. But she still can't see that she's to blame.

She's sure it's Mamma-in-Law's fault—entirely.

Have you, too, a Mamma-in-Law in your family circle? And are you, also, hoping that "something will turn up" to iron out the tangle? Then here's Good Medicine for what ails you!

Dear Elsie:

Something has been bothering me for a long time, and I must get it off my chest before I explode.

Here it is. Jack and I have been married for six years, and all this time his mother has lived with us. He is an only child, and his mother has enough income to make her independent, so she has been no burden financially. But she could easily live in a place of her own, as she is still a young woman. Also she has several widowed relatives with whom she could make her home, part of the time at least.

But not once since we have been married have Jack and I had breakfast or dinner alone at home. Always his mother is there, and she is always with us afterward in the living room.

As a result, Jack and I have become regular "stick-in-the-muds." We never make love to each other any more, or even discuss the little happenings of the day. The three of us just sit there and read or something.

Once a week he and I go out alone, and then we act like ourselves. We chat and talk and laugh and kiss each other, and gee! we have fun! And that once a week is the only chance we get to really enjoy each other.

AVOIDS FRICTION

In all these six years we never have had a quarrel with his mother. She really is a lovely woman. But why on earth can't mothers realize that their married children want to be alone once in a while?

I would hate to hurt her feelings and thereby cause friction with the relatives, who all like me now, and who think our living together is a "wonderful" arrangement. They certainly would be shocked if they knew how I feel!

Really this problem is getting me down, and making an old crab of me. Can't you write something in your column which will help discourage mothers from living with their married children from the honeymoon on down through the years? I wish you would. Please! I am sure it would be a big help to a lot of people.

EMMIE.

Yes, that's a mighty mean situation, Emmie. Young people should be left alone to manage their own houses, and sensible mothers should keep out of the picture.

But whose fault is it if your mother-in-law doesn't move? . .

It's yours, Emmie, and nobody else's but!

HAPPINESS ENDANGERED

You think Jack should do this for you. But why? This situation isn't spoiling Jack's life. He's accustomed to having his mother around. It's unfair to expect him to see that she's a nuisance. But you can see it—and you're able to realize that the happiness of your home is endangered.

Then, since that home is your job, it's your duty to keep it safe. And if you won't—if you just "drift along"—then you must endure the painful consequences of drifting, which is exactly what you're doing now.

So stop being sorry for yourself and mad at your mother-in-law and get busy, Emmie. Face this problem quietly, cooly, fairly, as you'd face any other problem. Don't fly into a tantrum, or fall into a panic because you're "afraid of what people will think."

It doesn't matter, in this case, what people think. You're in the right, and you're not trying to harm anyone. You are simply trying to protect your home against all outsiders, even the most loved ones.

So tell Jack that, and then go with him and tell his mother. It's bound to hurt you all a little, at first. But if you can keep your head cool and your heart warm, it will mean greater happiness for you all in the long run, and greater respect for each other all around.

Fay King Finds Consolation in Robinson Crusoe

By FAY KING

Whenever I get worried or upset over anything, I go to my bookcase and get good old Robinson Crusoe, or Scott at the South Pole.

Directly I begin to read these, I find myself restored to poise and purpose again.

Books with backgrounds of luxury and love are all very well when one's own life is quite smooth. But when things go wrong, nothing is so sustaining and inspiring as books that are filled wi' the faith and courage that bravely faced hardships and despair.

In these days it is good to have encouragement from compat ions like Robinson Crusoe and the noble old explorers.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Psoriasis" One of the Common Skin Disorders

The skin is subject to many inflammatory and infectious diseases. Some skin diseases are more annoying than others. "Psoriasis" is one of the most common and troublesome of all the skin disorders. It is an embarrassing disease because of the blemishes that appear on the skin.

Psoriasis is more common during cold weather. Certain persons are more susceptible to it than others.

Circular patches of inflamed skin appear on different parts of the body. In the mild form, there is a thickening and scaling of the skin, perhaps on the elbows and knees. In the more severe form, patches appear in large areas all over the body.

The patches have a red base and are covered with a dry, silvery adherent scale. The inflamed area is "crusty" looking, has no pus and rarely itches. Psoriasis is often confused with eczema.

The patches in eczema are moist, larger and itch continuously. There are no silvery patches in eczema. Contrary to the common belief, psoriasis and eczema are not contagious. Neither of these skin disorders can be transmitted from one individual to another. This is fortunate, for otherwise they would be widespread.

The cause of psoriasis has never been discovered. Within recent years, investigations in diet and nutrition have led to the belief that this skin disorder can be traced to faulty diet. It is now definitely known that a diet low in proteins is of benefit to sufferers from this disease.

As in other skin disorders, victims of psoriasis resort to many salves and ointments in an effort to cure the disease. Ointments are beneficial but should only be used when prescribed by a physician. Bear in mind, too, that an ointment which is beneficial to one person may be harmful to another.

An ointment containing small portions of tar is helpful in many instances. Exposure to a quartz lamp aids the affliction. This lamp treatment should be given slowly and the length of exposure gradually increased. In severe cases beneficial results have been obtained by X-ray treatment.

Before applying the salve prescribed for you by your physician, remove the scales and rough skin. Do this by taking a daily warm bath. Use a stiff brush and plenty of soap. Tincture of green soap is best for this purpose. It is antiseptic and cleansing. The salve may then be applied to the involved area.

Local treatment is important, but every effort should be made to improve the general health of the victim. Alcohol, pepper, spices and other condiments should be omitted from the diet. Protein foods, such as meat, fish, fowl, meat soups, eggs, liver and kidneys should be avoided. Daily elimination is imperative. Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily.

If you are a sufferer from psoriasis do not be discouraged if you have had difficulty in curing the disorder. It is a chronic and stubborn disease to overcome. Persistence and patience will reward you.

Answers to Health Queries

Q.—What should a boy of 22, 5 feet 7 inches tall weigh?

A.—He should weigh about 142 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Contract Bridge

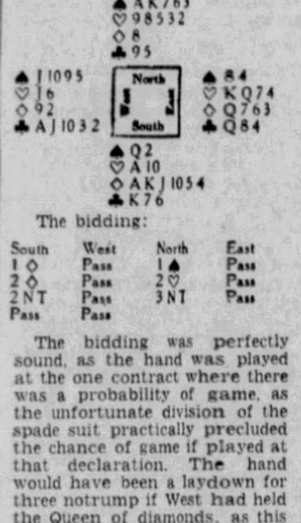
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Hoping to Lose a Finesse

It is a habit with many Bridge players to complain bitterly that they can never win a finesse. The player who held the South hand given below is a member of that large brotherhood, only with this holding he felt deeply chagrined because he wanted to lose a finesse and did not.

South, Dealer.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding was perfectly sound, as the hand was played at the one contract where there was a probability of game, as the unfortunate division of the spade suit practically precluded the chance of game if played at that declaration. The hand would have been a laydown for three notrump if West had held the Queen of diamonds, as this would have given the Declarer 5 diamond tricks, 3 spade tricks and the Ace of hearts.

Unfortunately for South, however, East not only held the Queen of diamonds, but the diamond suit did not break, and as West held the other vital card, the Ace of Clubs, South was unable to make his contract, because, when East cashed the Queen of diamonds, he, of course, returned a club, setting the contract 1 trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North bids one diamond, which South raises to two diamonds. What rebid should North make on the following hand:

♠ 7 6 ♡ A K Q 4 ◇ A K Q J 7 6 ♣ 8

Answer—Two hearts, an inferential Force which South must not pass. This bid is inferentially Forcing because of the logic of the situation. South must raise the heart bid or make a minimum response of three diamonds.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Color of Ink

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct for a man to carry this color ink in his fountain pen—green? This, of course, makes it necessary to use this color ink whenever he is obliged to write, and because of my earlier training, the very sight of his fountain pen gives me the creeps. Am I just being old-fashioned? PUZZLED.

I should think that it would "give you the creeps" to see a man carrying a fountain pen equipped with green ink! And no, you're not being old-fashioned . . . you're just showing your good taste about such poor taste.

A man's fountain pen should be filled with either black ink or very dark blue ink. It's pretty awful to think that he would consider green ink in good taste. I never saw a time when I thought that green ink was in good taste—and I'm sure that you agree with me.

Lee Chow Arouses Madge's Curiosity

There was that in Lee Chow's voice as he told the bound miscreant, "You will beg for the police before I get through with you, if you mislead us," that sent a shiver of terror over me. That the captive also recognized that venomous inflection was evident when he quavered, "Before God! boss, I'll come clean."

"See that you do," Lee Chow answered, then he turned his head slightly away from the man on the floor.

"Wynne!" he commanded crisply, "you and—our friend—carry Mr. Brixton a few feet up the trail, just out of earshot. Mrs. Graham and Miss Mary will go with you. Wait till you hear this call,"—the musical notes of a whip-poor-will sounded so naturally that I started—"and then come back here alone, so that we can gag him and make him appear a realistic substitute for Brixton. Please make haste."

Wynne started into action as if galvanized by the quiet command. A word to Hen-ner-y brought the big mountaineer to his side, and the two men put the unconscious figure of Samuel Brixton tenderly upon the stretcher and started up the trail. Mary and I followed afterward, and if we were not meek in our obedience to the mandate of Lee Chow, we were at least thorough. Neither of us looked backward, although I knew that Mary's curiosity had mounted to the same fever mark that mine had scored.

It was only too evident that Lee Chow was playing a lone hand.

BRIXTON STILL BOUND

"This is about right, I reckon," Wynne said as a turn in the trail disclosed a little grassy, level space between it and the mountain side. "We'll just set him down here, and rest our muscles."

They put their burden down, and then Wynne spoke to me, his tones betraying the awe of Lee Chow that was upon him.

"It seems as though we ought to take the cords off Mr. Brixton," he said. "They're drawn pretty tight, but I don't know what Mr. Lee Chow would say."

"Take them off, of course," I said quickly, more in resentment at Lee Chow's dominant attitude toward us all than in concern for Samuel Brixton's comfort. Yet common sense told me that I was deciding correctly. We had not a scintilla of real proof that the step-father of Carolyn had either knowledge of, or part in, the diabolical plot that had snatched her and Marion from the shelter of Whitney Hall. Without such proof to bolster our suspicions of the man, it was preposterous that he be kept bound.

"That's oke by me," Wynne said. "I only wanted somebody to back me up. I'll have him out of these in a jiffy."

HEAR SIGNAL

He took a clasp knife from his pocket, opened it, and with swift deftness slashed the ropes that bound Samuel Brixton. When he had removed them, he bade Hen-ner-y help lift the unconscious man to a different position upon the stretcher.

"There!" he said when he had finished, "that's a little easier for him, anyway. Not that anything can be much better for him, poor devil, until we can get him to a bed."

He straightened himself, and closing the knife, put it back into his pocket. As he brought his hand out again, the call of the whip-poor-will sounded, and I, standing nearest to him, sensed rather than saw, that his fingers clenched involuntarily. I wondered if he shared the vague half-terrified recognition of Lee Chow's ruthlessness that was mine.

"Come on!" he said to Henner-y.—"No! you must stay here with Mrs. Graham and Miss Mary."

"He must do nothing of the kind," I said sharply. "We surely do not need anybody here for the little time you are gone."

"Sorry!" Wynne said apologetically, but his voice was stubborn. "It doesn't do to go against Mr. Lee, and he told me a while back that you mustn't be left a single second tonight without some one of us to guard you."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pouches under the eyes are caused by lack of fresh air, loss of sleep, or intestinal upsets. Local treatment consists of bathing first with hot water then with cold, sponging with witch hazel, rubbing with ice. Plastic surgeons have a neat way of taking tucks in them. But that indulgence costs plenty money.

Any shoe that forces the big toe inward and presses on the little toe isn't the right shoe for that particular foot. The inner side of the shoe should be straight, permitting toes to extend forward, according to the original design. The foot of the new born babe is widest across the toes and that's the way the adult foot should be if it would sustain a firm hold on the pavement, be free of tormenting, twinging ills.

LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Hundreds of Colleges Helped by Carnegie

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mr. Andrew Carnegie

For some time Carnegie had been building a city residence at Ninety-first street and Fifth avenue, New York, the house in which he had lived since marriage, on West Fifty-first street, having long been inadequate. That he should pitch the family tent in so unaccustomed a region seemed at first surprising. Only a man indifferent to the dictates of "fashion" would have dreamed of migrating to such a spot. Thirty years ago America's premier thoroughfare, at that point, had only recently emerged from the stage of shanties and goats; no place this for the abode of millionairedom!

Soon the truth became apparent to Carnegie, in choosing this location, had acted with his usual foresight. The primitive architecture in the neighborhood began to disappear, and something resembling a scramble took place in the direction of the "Highlands," as the newspapers dubbed the new residential area.

The Carnegie house, a structure of brick and granite trimmings, was sumptuous but not ornate, and the green expanse of garden, in which the proprietor liked to stroll, provided a relief to Fifth avenue's forbidding stretch of masonry. Yet the simplicity that had marked existence in the home on Fifty-first street was continued in the large place. Here, for the rest of Carnegie's life the winters were spent, varied usually by a visit in February, to the estate of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Carnegie, on Cumberland Island, off the coast of Georgia.

For 15 years millions in a constantly rising stream flowed from the sanctuary. "Millions" is the descriptive word, for Carnegie liked to deal in these impressive aggregations. One day a gentleman having, by valid letters of introduction, gained admittance, was expounding a proposal that at first seemed to be making favorable headway.

"How much money do you need to start with?" asked Carnegie.

"I think as much as $5,000," was the timorous answer.

"I am not interested in the retail business!" Carnegie almost snapped, bringing the interview to a hopeless termination.

To waste his time on trifles of that sort was almost insulting! In the early period, indeed, Carnegie's mind apparently worked in $10,000,000 units. Most of his benefactions — the Scottish Universities Trust, the Carnegie Institution, the Foundation, the United Kingdom Trust, the Peace Endowment—began existence on this financial basis.

Music Fostered

Carnegie, in distributing his wealth, depended for the most part on his own judgment, reinforced by suggestions picked up in various ways. Besides libraries, two agencies of social amelioration were cultivated on systematic lines. A taste for good music, he declared, was as necessary to progress as a taste for good reading. Carnegie fostered symphony orchestras in several cities, and his devotion to organ music prompted one of the most unique of his experiments.

Gladstone's proposal that part of the Carnegie wealth be set aside for religious ends was not approved, in the sense that statesman had in mind, yet one form of worship, untainted by theology or sectarianism, was joyfully supported.

"Music sacred tongue of God, I hear thee calling and I come"—this quotation from Confucius, frequently on Carnegie's lips, led him to sprinkle the United States, Canada and Great Britain with not far from 8,000 organs, at an expenditure of nearly $7,000,000.

Any church that made application, and answered satisfactorily Mr. Bertram's questionnaire, automatically obtained such an instrument. The awards were made with no regard to sectarianism, all Protestant denominations, Christian Scientists, Swedenborgians, Roman Catholics and Jews, participating in this bounty on equal terms.

"You can't always trust what the pulpit says," Carnegie would remark, "but you can always depend upon what the organ says."

Colleges Aided

In the same period not far from $20,000,000 found its way to small, struggling colleges. America's great universities, already well equipped and heavily endowed, were seldom favored; places like Harvard, Yale and Princeton, in Carnegie's eyes, were the preserves of the upper social classes, and thus failed to fulfill the mission he had chiefly in mind—the democratic levelling up of mass intelligence. Just as, in Great Britain, he could not be persuaded to increase the emoluments of Oxford and Cambridge, but concentrated on the four Scottish universities that drew their students from the cottage and the city, so, in the United States, it was the "freshwater" college, engaged, for the large part, in training the sons and daughters of farmers and the proletariat, which received the most friendly consideration.

Favorite gifts were libraries and science laboratories. Requests for "administration buildings," "halls" and the like met with a frown; this signified display, ostentation, money not set aside to serve primarily the cause of instruction. So it happens that the catalogue of colleges helped by Carnegie has an unfamiliar ring. It includes from 300 to 400 institutions, many—perhaps a majority—utterly unknown to the general public.

Trade schools and the like seldom appealed in vain. Cooper Union in New York, and the Mechanics' and Tradesmen's Institute, each obtained $750,000. One day a committee of engineers explained the most pressing need of their professionsome common building that would serve as the center of their activities. The outcome was a check for $1,500,000 and the resulting structures on Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets, New York.

At another time, Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, then president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was spending a few days at Skibo; he told Carnegie of Benjamin Franklin's unique bequests to Philadelphia and Boston. To each city a sum had been left, with the proviso that this capital sum should be untouched for a hundred years, accumulating interest and then should be used for some public purpose. The century had now expired; the Boston fund had snowballed up to $420,000, and Franklin's birth town was planning to build the Franklin Institute—a night school for the education of artisans in the scientific principles of their crafts. Franklin was one of Carnegie's heroes, and the purpose of the school also fitted into his plans.

"Unfortunately there is no endowment," said Dr. Pritchett. "All the capital has to be devoted to building and equipment."

"I'll match Franklin's gift," Carnegie replied immediately, and in this way the Franklin Institute found itself with an endowment of $420,000.

Simplified Spelling

About 1906 a change took place in Carnegie's orthography. His correspondents were startled to see "enough" spelled "enuf" and "tough" changed to "tuf." "have" cruelly clipped to "hav," "called" deprived of the 'e' that had done service for ages and diminished to 'calld.' These were only a few of the revolutionary transformations.

Funny men of the press began pleasantly ridiculing Carnegie's effort to modernize English spelling by creating an endowment of $280,000 for that purpose. "Carnegie assaults the spelling book" one newspaper headline proclaimed, and Mark Twain said that Torquemada had never committed any crime comparable to "St. Andrew's" treatment of the English language.

Certain leader writers in Great Britain were almost ready to declare war on the United States; Swinburne, in a fine poetic frenzy (or "phrensy," to the usual spelling) attacked Carnegie's modernizations as a "monstrous barbarous absurdity," and the London Times plaintively suggested that if changes were to be made, possibly the homeland of the language might be represented on the committee.

To such taunts Carnegie responded by pointing to eminent scholars who had indorsed his scheme: Brander Matthews, of Columbia, Thomas R. Lounsbury, the distinguished English authority of Yale, Prof. W. W. Skeat, of Oxford, probably the world's greatest etymologist, and—crushing blow to English critics—Dr. Murray and Dr. Bradley, editors of the New Oxford Dictionary.

A quick convert was Theodore Roosevelt, who ordered the Government Printing Office in future to use new spelling in all White House documents, including Presidential messages.

Points to 'Fysshe'

When the unpersuaded railed at Carnegie for changing "bright" to "brite" he tellingly retorted that books in Queen Anne's time printed "spighte" for a word since shortened to "spite." If "fysshe," a common Elizabethan spelling, could be truncated in three centuries to "fish," why were "fantom" or "filosophy" so absurd?

It soon appeared that the Simplified Spelling Board was not engaged in a general massacre, but had merely adopted a list of about 300 words as candidates for reform. Some of these, like "tho," "thru," "medieval," "anesthetic," "program" had little difficulty in making their way, but others like "laf" (laugh), "red" (read), and "tung" (tongue) are still knocking at the doors.

Carnegie bravely maintained his position to the end—backsliding occasionally, it must be granted—and traces of simplified spelling appear in those parts of his will written in his own hand.

On the occasion of Dr. Pritchett's visit to Skibo, mentioned above, something was said, almost casually, about an outstanding fault of the American educational system—the poor payment of college professors and the general failure to make provision for their last years. It was a subject to which Carnegie had given much thought, appeals for distressed, broken down teachers constantly appearing in his mail. The subject was only touched upon at the time, but the following November announcement was made that Carnegie had given $10,000,000, the income to be used for retiring allowances for professors.

Thus was created the Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, with Dr. Pritchett president, and the heads of the leading American universities as an advisory board. Few of Carnegie's benefactions met with such acclaim; the idea, that of making comfortable the last days of a neglected and deserving class, was the kind that went straight to the popular heart.

ILLUSION: The magician exhibits a flower pot with hinged sides on a table in the center of the stage. He opens out the sides to show that this container is empty. Closing it up, he places a screen between it and the audience. After a short period of magic incantations he removes the screen. The astounded audience sees a beautiful girl, covered to the shoulders in lovely flowers, rising from the "empty" container. Where did she come from?

EXPLANATION: The girl was hiding behind the drape of the table. There is a trap door in the bottom of the flower pot, with a hole large enough to allow her to crawl through. The flowers, called "magicians' feather flowers," are a regular part of a magician's outfit. The flower girl wears a rubber tunic and a bathing cap to keep the flowers compressed into small space. She slides the tunic down and the flowers expand when she emerges.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

A trick frequently worked in cigarette advertising is the illusion that mildness in a cigarette comes from mysterious processes of manufacture.

EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

That is why Camels are so mild. That is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made.

It's the secret of Camels' rich "bouquet"... their cool flavor... their non-irritating mildness.

Give your taste a chance to appreciate the greater pleasure and satisfaction of the more expensive tobaccos.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
–With–
Patricia Pitt

In spite of last night's downpour, crowds of faithful concert-goers were at Syria Mosque to hear Paderewski. Entering the Mosque early in the evening I saw Mrs. Hugh Campbell Shaw, in blue lace, accompanied by her attractive daughter, Betty, who wore an effectively simple gown of white crepe, with a deep V-decolletage, and a vivid lip stick red velvet wrap.

Another representative of the younger set, Katherine Frazer, was there, in black velvet and an unusual coat of black velvet having the sleeves and deep shawl collar of ermine. With her was Mrs. James Chambers McKay in electric blue crepe and a cloth-of-silver wrap.

And I caught a glimpse during intermission of Mrs. George Burgwin, Mrs. David Meade Gilmore and Katherine McCloskey, in the crowded corridor.

Wears Black

Mrs. J. O. Miller was there, in a black tulle gown with a girdle of green and having long streamers to the hemline.

Mrs. William Jackson Crittenden's gown was of deep violet satin with touches of lace with which she wore a brown velvet wrap. Mrs. A. Polland Brill wore black satin.

I noticed Mrs. Reginald Quaile, too, in black crepe with a smart, short caracul jacket having an ascot scarf.

Brown lace fashioned the gown of Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, and scarlet crepe, that of Mrs. C. E. Lott.

Gives Tea Tomorrow

Mrs. James Childs Rea, of Woodland road, is giving a tea in her home tomorrow afternoon, for her guests to meet Miss Marjorie Pratt and Miss Jessie Simonson, heads of the Thurston Preparatory School for Girls, Shady avenue.

* * *

Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the county government committee of Allegheny County League of Women Voters, will leave Saturday for Emerson Point, Md., for the Easter holidays. She will be accompanied by her daughter, Barbara, a student at Thurston School. They will be joined a week later by her sister Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the League of Women Voters and her two sons, Templeton and Kennedy Smith, students at Arnold School.

Girls Active

The members of the younger school set are very much up in the clouds these days, every bit as busy as their mothers and fathers and debutante sisters. The various girls' schools have been having plays and exhibits and the Thurston School students have been busy for weeks preparing for their dramatic club's presentation of "She Stoops to Conquer" to be given Friday evening in the Arnold School gym.

One group of girls has been designing and making posters, but of course the busiest have been those of the cast, who are having final rehearsals this week.

And there is to be a dance after the show!

Additional patronesses who are lending their support to the affair include Mrs. George S. Baton, Mrs. Henry Vaughn Blaxter, Mrs. John G. Buchanan, Mrs. Albert P. Burchfield, Mrs. Francis J. Chesterman, Miss Julia Morgan Hardy, Mrs. Arthur L. Humphrey, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt and Mrs. William R. Jarvis.

Sponsors For Play

Still others are Mrs. H. Fred Mercer, Mrs. R. V. Nuttall, Mrs. Robert M. Repp, Sr., Mrs. George Phelps Rose, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, Mrs. William Schoyer, Mrs. Walter B. Spellmire, Mrs. Charles H. E. Succop, Mrs. Oscar Wikander and Mrs. William P. Witherow.

Catholic Women Form Margaret Brent League

A new organization, which is called the Margaret Brent Civic League and which has been formed by Catholic women for civic, social, political and educational purposes, will meet tonight in headquarters in the Monongahela House. Cards, in charge of Mrs. Leonore Shea, will supplement the business meeting. Units of the league are being formed in various voting precincts.

The league takes its name from Margaret Brent, who was the first woman in the Maryland Assembly to request woman suffrage. Miss Margaret C. McQuade is president.

THE GLOSSY FABRIC FAVORED FOR BRIGHTNESS AT NIGHT

FASHION IS going in for glossy fabrics again. After months of matt-like crepes and chalky silks, there is a welcome for dresses of taffeta, satin and those textures of artificial silk which have a shining finish.

* * *

ARTIFICIAL SATIN, which has brighter gleams under night lights than ordinary satin, is becoming a great favorite. It is appearing not only in black and in white but in colors as well. There is something about its texture that gives it an appearance of thickness; it is especially successful in dresses that have draped lines, for its folds catch the light.

* * *

THE DRESS in today's sketch is fashioned of artificial satin. Many women who would ordinarily avoid beige as an evening color because of its flat tone, choose this frock because of its brightness under artificial light. The entire frock is smooth down the front, save for its bertha collar and draped sash, but at the back a graduated panel hangs from the decolletage, widening as it approaches the hem.

* * *

THE OTHER frock alternates, its entire length, horizontal bands of black taffeta and black net.

* * *

THE WIDE bertha collar marks a neckline that is just around the base of the throat at the front, but which falls to a deep V-shape at the back. Bows of taffeta are posed on the skirt, just below the knees.

Interference of Western Nations Prolongs War, Century Club Told

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

If Western nations will mind their own business and not interfere, Japan and China will come to an understanding within a month, George Sakolsky prophesied in closing a profoundly interesting address before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning.

Mr. Sakolsky, speaking on "America's State in Asia," said western interference from the start of the trouble in Manchuria has prevented direct negotiation on the status of the moment. And, he added, today China's status is more unfavorable than ever before.

After commenting on "the vicious geographical distribution" in Europe and the "vicious economic situation," Mr. Sakolsky asked "Shall the United States become a spearhead for Europe's opposition to Japanese expansion or shall it remain a nation selling goods to other nations?"

America became a Pacific nation by doing in Cuba exactly what Japan is doing in Manchuria today, but western countries have already done their dirty work and now will be honest and honorable, whereas the Japanese are the only people who still have their dirty work to do, he remarked. Japan, which is only overpopulated if her markets do not expand, is the only Asiatic country seeking to become a first-class nation.

Mr. Sakolsky prefaced his talk by warning that his views might not prove popular, but that he regarded the question unsentimentally and only as a matter of facts. Western nations have altered the social, economic and all other processes of China and out of the resistance to these alterations a new country is beginning to unfold. It looks like chaos but it is a sound movement, he believes. He spoke of the American investment of millions in China and said America's largest state in China is in its missions. Only two of China's hospitals were not established by missionary effort. No country, he said, has ever "let China down" as badly as the United States, insisting, as it has, on certain policies, but never maintaining them by military force.

SOUTH OPPOSES DUQUESNE

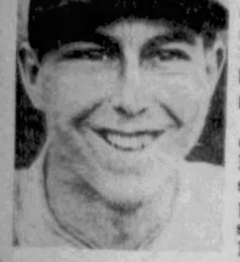
SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Buc Lefty Unimproved. Control Still Lacking. Fresh Start by Martin. Lary Yankee Shortstop. Floor Outdraws Grid. Derby Tempts Sande.

WOOD LIKELY TO GO TO MINORS AGAIN

WHILE MANAGER GIBSON has not yet announced his decision as to the relative merits of the extra men trying to make the Pittsburgh pitching staff this spring, it may be surmised pretty safely from unofficial reports of the training camp proceedings that Southpaw Charley Wood will have to go back to the minors again for a spell. There has been nothing to indicate that the young left-hander has overcome his one weakness, inability to locate the plate, and as long as he is lacking in that respect he can't hope to get anywhere in fast company.



Charley Wood

Wood still has all the other stuff he displayed when he first came up to the Bucs, an exceptional equipment that led such a good judge as old Ed Morris to pronounce him at the time the best southpaw prospect he ever had seen. But in the big leagues a pitcher is no better than his control, so it won't be surprising if Wood is sent to the minors again to get command of the ball. If that course is decided on he probably will be placed in higher company than formerly, perhaps a Double A league. That ought to make or break him, and his future will be in his own hands.

WHETHER OR NOT Frankie Frisch reports, Gabby Street apparently has given up all idea of trying to turn Pepper Martin into a third baseman. The Cardinal manager intimates that he will stick to his latest move in sending Martin back to the outfield to fight it out with Ernest Orsatti for the job in center.

Street is hopeful that Martin will pull a big comeback after his disastrous slump in 1932. Pepper's fault of overstriding in running has been corrected to some extent, and another thing that should help him is that he is no longer in the spotlight and is relieved of the feeling that he must deliver in spectacular style every day or disappoint his public.

IT WAS BECAUSE they felt sure of his return to stardom in baseball that the Cardinal owners last fall ordered Martin to quit playing football immediately.

The speed of several baseball players has been impaired by knee trouble resulting from football injuries. Club owners do not fear basketball so much, but they feel that a magnate who permits his athletes to play football during the off season is playing fast and loose with his assets.

A LIGONIER READER thinks the Pirates will win the pennane because of the versatility of the regulars, who can be shifted around in so many ways that Manager Gibson will not be left without a capable man for any position. The Ligonier correspondent writes: "The versatility of the Bucs will come in handy in case of injury. For first base there are Suhr and Paul Waner; for second base, Piet, Thevenow, Young and Grosskloss; for shortstop, Vaughan, Thevenow, Young and Traynor; for third base, Traynor, Lindstrom, Thevenow and Young, without counting Brubaker; for the outfield, Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner, Lindstrom, Jensen, Comorosky and Young, the last named being able to play the outfield as well as the infield."

IT HAS BEEN said that no club can win a pennant without a steady shortstop, but the Yanks came through last year in spite of much uncertainty at that important position. Sometimes Lyn Lary was in there for a stretch, sometimes Frank Crosetti, and there were occasions when one supplanted the other in the same game.

Lyn Lary

The result was that Crosetti appeared at shortstop in 83 games and Lary in 80. The shifting did not stop there, for Doc Farrell held down the job in five contests. Because Crosetti got the assignment in the world series it was figured he would be first choice this year, but seemingly that is not the case. Lary has the inside track.

AT LEAST THAT'S what camp reports say of the only position in the Yankee lineup that is open to competition. Crosetti, Farrell and Bill Werber have not been counted out of the running yet, but Lary is so clearly in front at present that he'll have to slip before any of the others can crowd past him.

Lary until now has followed the free and easy way of many a youngster. But this year he began to take a very serious interest in the business of playing baseball and has improved so greatly that Joe McCarthy is known to feel he is the best of the lot. Crosetti hasn't quite matured as a big leaguer. Werber is better fitted for third base and Farrell is good for only short stretches.

THE FIRST PLAN of Jimmy Johnston was to hold the Sharkey-Carnera fight early in May. When Sharkey protested that such a date would not be late enough to be profitable, and others interested joined the champion in the stand that it would be unwise to gamble on the uncertain weather of that month, Johnston reminded them that Tex Rickard ran a heavyweight outdoor show on May 12, 1923, and got away with it. It seemed that Rickard always got a better break from the weatherman than any other promoter, but on that occasion 10 years ago he came close to being rained out. It was an afternoon show, with Jess Willard meeting Floyd Johnson, and Luis Firpo facing Jack McAuliffe II in the feature bouts. At noon it was raining hard, but, true to the Rickard tradition, the sun came out and the show began at the scheduled hour under smiling skies.

SOME IDEA OF the interest in basketball in the Middle West may be gained by glancing over the figures in an athletic report from the University of Iowa. The Iowa football team, with four Big Ten Conference games included in its schedule, played to a total of 66,000. Football is supposed to be the big moneymaker at most colleges, but when Iowa's basketball season closed, 95,000 fans had watched the varsity five in action, and a couple of post-season games boosted the floor attendance fo rthe year into six figures.

DON'T CLOSE THE book yet on Earl Sande. The one-time king of jockeys has a notion that he'd like to try for the Kentucky Derby once more, and if things pan out according to his hopes he may be in there on May 6 aiming at his fourth victory in the 58-year-old classic of Churchill Downs.

Earl Sande

Sande is training and exercising two thoroughbreds at Belmont Park. They are Resurrection and St. Stephen's, and both are eligible for the big event in Kentucky. If either shows Derby quality, Earl will be among the starting riders.

SANDE DID NOT fare so well as an owner a couple of years ago, so last season he took over Col. H. Maxwell Howard's stable to train, and he believes there is a good year ahead for the Colonel's colors. According to present plans, the entire stable will be shipped to Chicago for World Fair year at Arlington and Washington Parks in addition to running at other big tracks. If Sande should start in the Kentucky Derby and come home in front he would establish a record as being the only jockey ever to win the classic four times. Only he and Isaac Murphy, star Negro rider of other days, piloted three winners. Murphy did it on Buchanan in 1884, Riley in 1890 and Kingman in 1891. Sande equaled the feat on Zev in 1923, Flying Ebony in 1925 and Gallant Fox in 1930.

PIRATES LOSE TO PORTLAND BY 12-5

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

SANTA CRUZ, March 21.—Manager George Gibson was not in his best frame of mind today when he assembled his Pirate battalion for a joust with the Seattle Indians, who are in training in this resort town.

Gibby's peeve concerns his pitchers, who have failed to reflect the fine form they are supposed to have attained at Paso Robles. Faulty slab work was deep in a defeat handed the big leaguers yesterday at San Jose by the Portland Beavers, champions of the Coast League. The score was 12 to 5. The Pirate skipper avers his sharpshooters will have to acquire better control or he will act accordingly. Touching on the situation, he said:

GIBSON WROTH

"Unless the pitching situation improves there will be morning practice sessions in Los Angeles after we arrive at that city. The control of the hurlers has been very bad and it will have to improve. We must get to a point where the pitchers can get the ball over to the batters. There have been too many passes recently.

The Buccos are due to reach Los Angeles tomorrow morning. Three battles with the Giants at Wrigley Field are on tap and Gibby wants his club to make a better showing than it did while losing three out of four to the Cubs in the San Francisco sector.

Larry French and Bill Harris will face the Seattle club this afternoon. The Indians are managed by George Burns, who starred for American League clubs.

Steve Swetonic had poor control as he worked for five innings against Portland in the San Jose game. Steve's support was none too good, but he was wilder than any Pirate has ever seen him. He yielded nine runs in five frames. Charley Wood finished the game.

SANKEY BRILLIANT

Ben Sankey, once a Pirate shortstop, helped to down the Buccos by cleaning the sacks with a double in the second. Gus Suhr smacked a three-run homer over the right field wall with two out in the first to give the Pirates a big bulge on the Beavers. Portland caught up with the Bucs in the second when they scored twice on four hits.

Suhr's double and Vaughan's single put the Pirates in front in the third. They added one in the fourth on P. Waner's double and Traynor's single, but the Beavers sent 11 batters to the plate in their half and netted fire runs. Eddie Mulligan, a star third sacker of the Coast League and the same Eddie who did a short trick for the Pirates, enlivened the contest in the fifth when he walloped a homer into the left-center pocket.

Chilly Sauce

San Jose business men were anxious to make a proposition to the Pirate owners relative to acquiring the Buccos for training purposes. But if the Buccos return to California they are likely to hold to their Paso Robles camp.

Earl Sheely, former Pirate first sacker, is now a catcher for the Portland club. Sheely caught a part of yesterday's game.

Ben Sankey looked like one of the outstanding players in the San Jose game. Ben has polish as a short fielder and he has developed a punch. His cleanup double was a feature of the contest.

Eddie Mulligan's homer seemed to be the longest drive of the game, but Gus Suhr also tagged one.

Rip 3-21

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: NAMES OF OUR PUMA—The name "puma" probably is of native origin, having been introduced into European literature by the early Spanish writers on South America for one of the largest cats (Felis concolor) of the New World. It has an exceedingly wide range of geographical distribution, from Canada to Patagonia, and formerly from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The name "cougar" was introduced by the French, "panther" by the Anglo-American hunters and "painter," "catamount," "mountain lion" and "Mexican lion" all are names applied locally in different part of the United States. But these names all are for one and the same animal, the puma. The color of the puma varies slightly in different localities, but is generally a tawny, yellowish brown, sometimes having a grey or silvery shade, and in some cases dark or inclining to red.

TOMORROW: STEEL THAT BURNS

WARNER, STAGG START ANEW

PALO ALTO, Cal., March 21.—(AP.)—Two of football's oldest and most famous coaches are headed toward new and greener pastures today.

Glenn Scobey Warner said goodbye to Stanford last night and left for Philadelphia, where he will take over the coaching duties at Temple University. At the same time, Amos Alonzo Stagg was traveling westward from Chicago to Stockton, Cal., where he will become head coach at the College of Pacific.

Their trains will pass somewhere along the transcontinental route. Before leaving, Warner said:

"I'd like to see old man Stagg en route. I'd wish him good luck. Maybe he would do the same for me. Probably we'll both need it."

Jimmy Thomas Bows To Pete De Grasse

MONTREAL, Quebec, March 21.—(AP.)—Pete De Grasse, New York featherweight, took a judges' decision over Jimmy Thomas, Pittsburgh Negro, in a 10-round bout at the Forum last night before a crowd of 2,500 persons.

De Grasse won the verdict as a result of a fast finish. Thomas seemed to have the edge at the end of nine rounds, but De Grasse speeded up his attack to win the tenth by a wide margin.

The decision was not unanimous, one judge voting for a draw De Grasse weighed 122½ pounds; Thomas, 120¾.

GRIDDERS CALLED OUT

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 21.—Coach A. A. (Buzz) Wesbecher, newly-elected athletic director at Greensburg High School today issued a call for football candidates for spring practice. Letter men from the 1932 squad will report this afternoon and the balance of the candidates Wednesday and Thursday.

COLLEGE GOLF PLAY JUNE 26

The twenty-seventh annual individual and team championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Golf Association of America will be staged at the Country Club of Buffalo, Williamsville, N. Y., from June 26 to July 1, inclusive, it was announced by the association today.

Eighteen holes of medal play on June 26 and a second 18 on June 27 will determine the team champion, as well as the individual championship qualifiers. The teams are to be of six men, but each college is to be permitted to enter an additional three men in the individual play. The first and second rounds of match play will be at 18 holes, and all other rounds at 36 holes.

Yale is to defend the team title, won last year at Hot Springs, Va., where Johnny Fischer, of Michigan, annexed the individual crown.

Entries are to be made with A. M. Reid, secretary of the United States Golf Association, 110 East Forty-second street, New York City, on or before June 15.

Pitt and Duquesne are contemplating sending teams to the tournament, and Carnegie Tech also maly be represented. The Dukes, coached by Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, are to practice at Stanton Heights, Oakmont and Shannopin. Pitt has yet to select a home course, and Tech has not definitely decided to back a links team.

STRANGLER DEFEATED

NEW YORK, March 21.—(INS.)—Jim Browning, of Verona, Mo., recognized as wrestling champion in some states, today had demonstrated that his victory over Ed (Strangler) Lewis here a month ago was no fluke. In a return match at Madison Square Garden last night, the lanky Missourian again used an airplane scissors, his pet hold, to pin the former champion in 50:58.

CATHOLIC ICE TEAM LOSES

Central Catholic High School's ice hockey team has suffered its first defeat of the season in the Scholastic Hockey League. The Central skaters bowed to the University School team last night, 1 to 0.

Jackie Powell scored the winning goal in an overtime period after the two teams had staged a furious battle all the way.

In the second game, the Arnold School skaters nosed out Dormont, 1 to 0. Pollock took a pass from Briodo after 5 minutes and 48 seconds of action in the first period to record the lone tally of the contest.

Campbell Scores First Cue Victory

Dale Campbell, defending champion, scored his first victory in the annual city three-cushion billiard championship tournament last night in Tobin's parlors, defeating Sam Lytton, 50 to 27. It was Lytton's thir consecutive setback.

The match went 84 innings, with Campbell having a high run of 6 and Lytton 3.

NORTH SIDERS EVEN SERIES

Paced by Crum and Peffer, the North Siders evened the play-off series for the West Penn League championship with the Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. passers last night on the North Side Social Hall floor, winning, 41 to 27, with surprising ease.

Crum accounted for 16 points and Peffer 10, the former sinking seven field goals. Leech led Wilmerding's attack with nine points.

The third and deciding contest will be played on the neutral McKeesport Y. M. C. A. floor tonight. The lineup:

School Floor Champs Receive Trophies

Duquesne High School, winner of the W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship, was presented the Fintex Trophy this morning at an assembly held in the high school. Myles Zeleznik, star forward, and Mike Radvansky, star center, each received a gold medal as a reward for winning a place on the all-tournament team chosen by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The awards were made by Melvin Morgan, representative of the Fintex Corporation of Pittsburgh.

Tomorrow morning the McNaugher School basketball team, of the North Side, will be presented the Fintex Trophy, emblematic of the Pittsburgh grade school championship

566 CIRCUIT ENTRIES

SALEM, N. H., March 21.—(AP.)—A total of 566 entries for the 23 stake events have been made for the Grand Circuit meting at the Rockingham track here from July 31 to August 12, it was announced today by Allan J. Wilson, manager of the meeting.

SCHOOL CHAMPS MEET TONIGHT IN STADIUM

By JULIUS LEVIN

Champions having been crowned in all 12 districts of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, play for the state basketball title gets under way tonight with five inter-district contests listed for disposal.

Featuring the eliminations for the state crown is the battle between South High, City League champion and District VIII representative and Duquesne High, champion of the W. P. I. A. L. and District VII representative, in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight. The other inter-district contests tonight follow:

Lancaser, District III, vs. Williamsport, District IV, at Sunbury; Boswell, District V, vs. Altoona, District VI, at Altoona; DuBois, District IX, vs. Erie East, District X, at Brookville; Lower Merion, District I, vs. Palmerton, District XI, at Villanova.

DUQUESNE FAVORITE

Duquesne, admitted to be one of the best teams developed in this section, takes the floor a favorite to defeat South High, but the Pittsburgh quintet is expected to give the Steelers quite a battle.

The game brings together two teams, both boasting a star forward and a brilliant center. Duquesne's attack is built around Myles Zeleznik at forward and Mike Radvansky at center, while the South attack is centered around Bill Jesko at forward and Eddie Spotovich at center. All four of the boys earned all-scholastic recognition during the regular season.

Duquesne, still fresh from its W. P. I. A. L. triumph, is in excellent shape for the game. South likewise will take the floor in fine physical condition after a series of exhibition games played since the close of its post-season series with Perry High School for the city championship.

STEELERS SEEK REVENGE

Duquesne will strive to get revenge for the defeat suffered by the W. P. I. A. L. champion at the hands of the City League representatives last year, when Fifth Avenue High tripped Braddock and then went on to defeat Huntingdon at Altoona.

If Duquesne defeats South the Steelers will get a bye into the Western regional final to be played in the Pitt Stadium pavilion on Tuesday, March 28. Should South upset the Steelers, however, the bye will go to the Boswell-Altoona winner and South will be called upon to play the Dubois-Erie East survivor in the Pitt Stadium pavilion Friday night.

The game in the Pitt Stadium pavilion should attract one of the biggest crowds of the season, as both teams have been well supported. South, back in the running for the state title for the first time since 1918, likely will be accompanied by a banner turnout of fans.

Coach Grover C. Washabaugh, of South, has obtained some valuable data on the Steelers by attending all W. P. I. A. L. tournament games and he believes he has built a defense that will check the scoring activities of Myles Zelenik and Mike Radvansky. Coach Ray Henry, of Duquesne, has had little opportunity to scout the South Siders due to the busy program mapped out for his team in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

BILOXI, Miss., March 21.—I see there won't be any Sunday ball games in Pennsylvania this season. The Legislature voted to stick to the blue laws of 1794, so whenever we play Philly I expect to be arrested for smoking on the street, hunting for a lost collar button on a Sabbath morning or reading such racy publications as the Atlantic Monthly or the Yale Review.

Nick Altrock

That's quite a town on a Sunday—Philadelphia. Vas you ever dere, Sharlie? Well, Rip Van Winkle could take a nap at Broad and Chestnut and never be molested—if he didn't snore. They don't have picture shows running on Sundays, either, and about the only excitement is to go up and look at the crack in the Liberty Bell.

Ball games, you see, would ruin the Sunday silence, so when the experts fit together the Sunday dates for the 1933 schedule, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will be missing pieces in that annual jigsaw puzzle.

Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight flash, is a step nearer a title match with Tony Canzoneri at Forbes Field this summer or a handicap meeting with Ted Yarosz, our leading welterweight, today as a result of a decisive victory over Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in the 10-round main bout in the Motor Square Garden ring last night.

Last summer, at the Meyers Bowl, Wolfe and Herrera met for the first time, and the crowd booed the decision in favor of Herrera. It was a close fight. Last night, it was a walkaway for Tony after he had spotted his rugged opponent the first two rounds.

TONY MOVING TARGET

This was the same Eddie (Kid) Wolfe who had fought two draws with Yarosz and won one decision over him in four bouts, losing only the first one. But last night he was not fighting Yarosz. He was in there against a fast-moving target which blocked his best punch, a left hook to the body, and peppered him on the body and head with a long left and occasionally shot a right to the head.

From the eighth round on, Wolfe was so tired he could barely push his punches and he soaked up a boxing lesson then until the final bell.

Tony was slow to get under way and let Wolfe crowd him all around the ring in the first two rounds. In the third, he began to circle about and scored with those long, clean punches, and from then on there was nothing to the fight, except that Tony's nose was skinned in the fifth round and bled until the end. Wolfe bled from the mouth and right eye in the fifth and had a patch knocked off the eye in the ninth.

Wolfe weighed 143¾ pounds and Herrera 140.

SUBSTITUTE BOUT STOPPED

The fans were shortchanged when Jimmy Dean, Negro lightweight of Erie, was substituted for Tony Sciolino, of Buffalo, a good fighter, against Pete Gulotta, of New York, and proved such a human punching bag that Referee Joe Zivic obeyed the calls of the crowd to stop the one-sided affair with Dean in his corner at the end of the fifth round.

It was announced that the bout was stopped because of an injury to Dean. He was not injured, but outclassed and never should have been permitted to be palmed off in a semi-final against an opponent of Gulotta's known ability, as demonstrated in a recent victory in the same ring over Louie Severo. No announcement was made when Dean was introduced that he was a substitute.

LITFIN DECISION VICTIM

Nat Litfin, of the Hill, all but massacred Charley Burns, Johnstown featherweight, for four rounds of their six-round bout and then tired and Burns came on with a desperate rally to carry the last two rounds, after which the judges disagreed and the referee's vote gave the thing to Burns, proving that they still pay off on finishes and forget early rounds in scoring. Litfin was so far out in front going into the last two rounds that he couldn't have lost except on a knockout, and even then he might have rated a draw.

Elmer Wilson, Hill Negro welterweight, outpunched George Bordell, of New Kensington, in the first six-rounder, and Mike Barto, New Kensington southpaw lightweight, fighting his second professional bout, won by a technical knockout over Charley Blozevich, of Johnstown, in the final round of the four-round opener. He had Blozevich helpless on the ropes from head punches when the referee intervened after only 32 seconds of fighting in the round.

Al Grayber refereed the main bout. The crowd was fair in size. It was announced that Mose Butch and Tommy Paul will box the windup at the Garden next Monday night.

Local Elks Roll In Pin Tourney

Six bowlers representing Elks Lodge No. 339, North Side, will leave here Thursday night to compete in the Elks' national tenpin bowling tournament at Indianapolis, Ind.

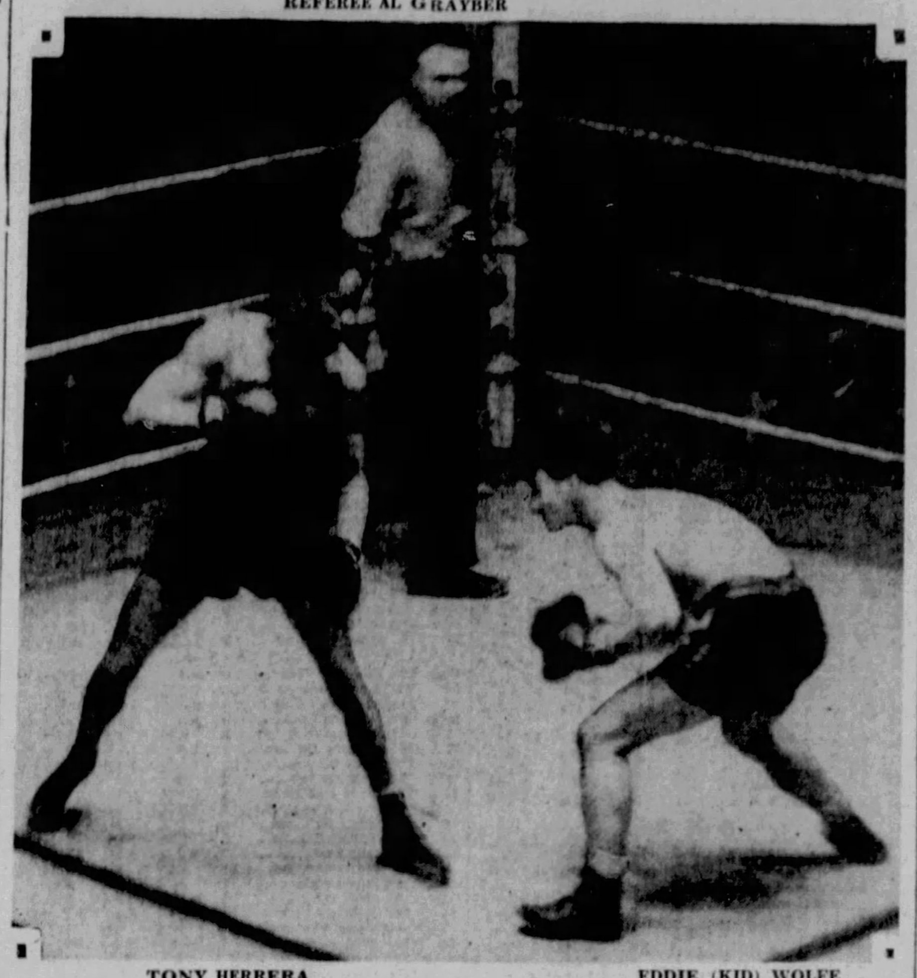
The local team is to be made up of Art Ober, Bill Moore, Fred Barth, Joe Lehner, Charley Martin and Jim Kline. After rolling at Indianapolis Friday night, the Pittsburghers will appear in the A. B. C. tourney at Columbus, O., Saturday.

Ellsworth Vines Scored by Tilden

DENVER, March 21.—(INS.)—Fear that the supposed superiority of amateur tennis players over professionals would prove a myth and that the professionals would carry off the honors led Ellsworth Vines to refuse to consider participation in an open tournament, Bill Tilden, ace professional, declared today.

Herrera's Left Beats Wolfe

REFEREE AL GRAYBER



TONY HERRERA — EDDIE (KID) WOLFE

Herrera easily succeeded last night where our own Ted Yarosz has failed, taming Wolfe in their second meeting at Motor Square Garden. He carried the last eight rounds after a slow start. He is seeking a match with Yarosz in which he will give away weight and also has a title bout with Tony Canzoneri in the making here. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Tony Herrera defeated Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, 10 rounds; Pete Gulotta won by technical knockout over Jimmy Dean, six rounds; Charley Burns won referee's decision over Nat Litfin, six rounds; Elmer Wilson defeated George Bordell, six rounds; Mike Barto won by technical knockout over Charley Blozevich, four rounds.

At Montreal—Pete DeGrasse defeated Jimmy Thomas, 10 rounds; Wilbur Chevalier defeated Harold Stewart, 6 rounds.

At Paris, France—Kid Francis defeated Carlos Flix, 10 rounds.

At Buffalo—Lou Scozza won by a technical knockout over George Nichols, 5 rounds; Steve Halaiko defeated Sam Bruce, 10 rounds.

At Chicago—Jack Kilbourne defeated Jack Moran, 8 rounds; Sammy Levine defeated Jackie Stewart, 6 ounds.

At Holyoke, Mass.—Joe Kaminski defeated Tony D'Alessandro, 10 rounds; Jimmy Leto defeated George Salvatore, 10 rounds; Jimmy Flinker defeated Elmer Chase, 10 rounds.

At New Orleans—Tiger Burns defeated Jumbo Roveiro, 10 rounds.

At St. Paul—Frankie Knauer defeated Sherald Kennard, 6 rounds; Jackie Sharkey defeated Wayne Short, 6 rounds.

JOHNSON QUITS BASEBALL

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(INS.)—Back to the farm, for Walter Johnson, former pitching ace of the American League, and late manager of the Washington Senators. This was the prospect viewed by the oldtime strikeout king, as hope faded for his control of the Jersey City International League franchise.

The Big Train no longer is interested in the Jersey City property he declared at his home near the Capital today. Johnson said:

"I notified my New York lawyer we would withdraw.

"Expect I'll be farming here all summer unless something good turns up."

Hoppe Holds Lead In Challenge Match

CHICAGO, March 21.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, world three-cushion billiard champion, took the second block of his 600-point three-cushion billiard challenge match with Willie Hoppe here last night by the score of 56 to 50 in 42 minutes.

Each player has won a block, Hoppe taking the afternoon match, 50 to 32, in 49 innings. In total points Hoppe now leads 100 to 88 in 91 innings.

The third and fourth blocks will be played this afternoon and tonight.

Buc Pilot Hears From Fan in India

SANTA CRUZ, March 21.—Pirate boosters, it seems are not without representation in India.

George Gibson, Pirate pilot, today received a letter from Rev. Luman F. Marsh, former Pittsburgher now a Baptist missionary stationed at Jamshedpur, in which Rev. Marsh said that he was following the fortunes of the Bucs very closely, and wished the Corsairs well in the 1933 pennant race.

15-Round Boxing Bill Passes House

HARRISBURG, March 21.—The Steedle-Jaffe bill, permitting 15-round boxing bouts in Pennsylvania, today passed the House unanimously. The present limit on bouts is 10 rounds.

The measure now goes to the Senate, where its path may be obstructed.

TROOPER ROLLS 300 SCORE

COLUMBUS, March 21.—(AP.)—It remained for a soldier, one Jack Karstens, member of Company C, United States Army, stationed at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, to set a fair sized crowd at the Coliseum here yesterday on their collective heels when he turned in a perfect game in the American Bowling Congress tournament.

Karstens' performance has been equalled only twice in A. B. C. history. Bill Knox, of Philadelphia, was the first A. B. C. roller to score a 300 mark, in 1913, at Toledo. Charley Reinlie, of Racine, Wis., toppled the pins for a perfect score game, also at Toledo, in 1926.

Karstens, 40 years old, has rolled five other perfect games, but this was his first in A. B. C. competition. The leaders:

CARR REALIZES CAREER OVER

PHILADELPHIA, March 21.—(AP.)—Bill Carr's flying feet, which carried him to the athletic heights, will pound around no more cinder and board tracks.

Injured in an automobile accident, the Olympic champion and 400-meter world record holder from Pine Bluff, Ark., philosophically accepted the dictum of physicians yesterday that he could not run again this spring, and announced his sprinting days are definitely over.

Six Teams Enroll In Eastern League

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP.)—The Eastern Baseball League, disbanded last summer, will be reorganized Sunday on a 25 and 50-cent basis when the representatives of six New England cities meet in Hartford, Conn.

According to plans formulated by Walter Hapgood, representative of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, the circuit will have six members, Springfield, Bridgeport, Hartford, New Haven, Providence and Pittsfield. The New York Yankees again will operate the Springfield club.

U. S. Track Stars In Canadian Meet

TORONTO, March 21.—(INS.)—The United States will be represented by several track and field stars in the Canadian National championship meet here tonight.

Glenn Cunningham, Kansas University's great miler, George Spitz, crack New York high jumper, and such noted sprinters as Emmett Toppino, New Orleans, and Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette, are among the Americans entered.

GREGALACH FAVORED

LONDON, March 21.—(AP.)—With the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree only three days away, the big Irish jumper Gregalach and Dorothy Paget's Golden Miller today remained joint favorite for the classic at odds of 9 to 1, with the American-owned horses rank outsiders.

ARENA'S CARD ARRANGED

Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, on the North Side, needs the name of only one more boxer on a contract to complete his program for next Friday night's show.

Here's the lineup:

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, vs. Paulie Walker, of Trenton, N. J., if no ill befalls Walker in his eight-round battle with Young Ketchel in Philadelphia tonight, 10 rounds.

Johnny Datto vs. Johnny Chiodo, who recently knocked out Sammy Burns in the first round at the Arena.

Jack Wilson (the middleweight) vs. Anson Green, Homestead's Negro belter.

Harry Weekly vs. Johnny Durso.

Joey Zelano vs. opponent to be named.

All of the preliminaries are of six rounds.

Between Rounds

Here's one for the book. Tommy Grogan was to box Buddy Jackson in Denver tonight, but he fell asleep under a violet ray lamp and was so badly burned he had to ask for a week's postponement. And he's not a southpaw, either.

Here's another one for the book. Battling Gizzy, who was supposed to box Roger Bernard in Flint, Mich., last night, changed his mind at the last minute and didn't make the trip. So what?

And here's another one for the book. Carl Baldridge, owner of the Meyers Bowl, who was besieged by just about every promoter and would-be promoter in this section for the lease on his arena for the summer months when he took it over at a constable sale, is tired of waiting for these bidders to close a deal and is going to close it himself within a few days with the first gent who comes across and proves his sincerity by putting up the dough. No more stalling.

The amateur boxing show of the Paramount Club, scheduled for the 176th Field Artillery Armory, next Saturday night, has been postponed until April 8.

Chuck Mullins is recovering at his home in Beechview from his appendicitis operation, but probably won't be able to resume fighting for a couple of months.

Jimmy Gilligan showed the best form of his career in beating Harry Boyle at Erie last Friday night and is gunning for the local featherweights.

Billy Jones will box Tony Shucco for eight rounds and Sammy Slaughter will oppose Chick Devlin, Juanito Olequibel will meet Marty Fox and Harry Allen will take on Al White in five-round preliminaries to the Maxie Rosenbloom-Bob Godwin light-heavyweight title fight in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night.

Pete Barry boxes Steve Kobeda, Joe Kladdick meets Larry Snyder, Tony Sharr is in with Joe Clark, Jimmy Clark engages Felix Casiatta, Wally Tamaumas battles Charley Napper and Johnny Gifell tangles with Jackie Peters in amateur boxing bouts under the auspices of the Pastorious A. C. in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tonight.

Ernie Maurer and Joey Lombardo box a 10-rounder in Detroit, Friday night.

A benefit amateur boxing show will be held in the Glenfield Firemen's Hall, Friday night, under the auspices of the Glenfield Hunting and Fishing Club.

PONZI LEADS CARAS

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP.)—Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, won the second block of his exhibition pocket billiard match with Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del., at Doyle's last night and gained a lead of 250 to 247.

KILBOURNE AHEAD

CHICAGO, March 21.—(AP.)—Kilbourne, clever California middleweight, easily outpointed Jack [illegible] in this eight-round main bout at White City here last night.

CAREY THINKS TEAM SET TO FINISH HIGH

MIAMI, Fla., March 21.—(AP.)—Max Carey has risked the prediction that his Brooklyn Dodgers will finish in the first division. He said:

"How far up we finish depends upon the pitching. We have a curious pitching staff. We have a lot of fellows with a big 'if' attached to them, and whatever success we have depends on them.

"It's a case of 'if' Beck comes through, 'if' Rpan comes back, 'if' Benge is as good as he was in Philadelphia, and so on. Right now young Ray Lucas looks as good as any of them."

N. L. Briefs

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—Capt. Pinkey Whitney's fourth-base drive, that cracked against the right field fence and netted two runs, gave the Phillies a 5-to-5 tie with the Montreal Marcons in a 10-inning Grapefruit League contest yesterday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—A heavy rain storm yesterday ended the Boston Braves' first exhibition clash with the St. Louis Cardinals after six scoreless innings of brilliant pitching. The Tribe had the swatting edge, pounding Bill Hallahan and Billy Walker for seven safeties. Harry (Socks) Seibold and Leo Mangum limited the Cards to four scattered hits.

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP.)—After promising the Cub squad a day of leisure, Manager Grimm changed his mind yesterday and left the pitchers out of the holiday. While the rest of the squad did as they pleased, the hurlers, notably Bud Tinning and Barry Richmond, got in a good workout. It was Richmond's first hard drill in two weeks, a sore arm having handicapped him.

LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—Hank Leiber, former Arizona collegiate athletic star, seems to have clinched one of the reserve outfield jobs with the New York Giants. Just as John Ryan has been the outstanding rookie infielder, Lieber has made a brilliant showing in the outfield. He fields well, has a strong throwing arm and has been hitting at a terrific clip.

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP.)—Regardless of where the Cincinnati Reds finish in the pennant chase this year, President Sidney Weil announced today, they'll be right back in Tampa for spring training next season. The club takes on the Boston Red Sox this afternoon at Sarasota.

NAT PITCHING STAFF CUT

BILOXI, Miss., March 21.—(INS.)—Departure of another rookie pitcher was in prospect today as the Senators' management announced the release of John Burrows, Phoenix, Ariz., youth, to its Southern League farm at Chattanooga.

Bob Burke, slim southpaw, was sent to Chattanooga to have his ailing whip mended, cutting the pitching staff to 10 men.

A. L. Briefs

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP.)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, of the Cleveland Indians, decided today that Forest Twogood, southpaw hurler and former University of Iowa athlete, is a real big league prospect. He said:

"Twogood is the best left-hand prospect the Indians have had since I took over the management of the club six years ago."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—It appears that from the point of view of weight alone, Babe Ruth had better hurry up and sign a New York Yankee contract. The Babe took off seven pounds in his first week of intensive training, but now is back at his former figure of 232 pounds. He has been doing little baseball training lately, warming up for an hour or so and then retiring for the day, while his teammates tackle exhibition games without him. The Yankees and their little brothers, the minor league champion Newark Bears, played five innings to a 7-7 tie yesterday as rain halted further play.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—Manager Bucky Harris, of the Detroit Tigers, definitely has given up the idea of converting Hank Greenberg, heavy-hitting Texas Leaguer, into a third-baseman for the Tiger squad this season. Greenberg is a first baseman, and attempted to play the hot corner at Harris' request. Last week's practice games convinced Harris that Greenberg is not a third baseman.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Athletics registered a 4-to-0 shutout victory over the House of David nine yesterday. Jimmy Foxx, big league home run king, was nursing a bruised shoulder, and his first base post was held down by Doc Cramer.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—Informed that Rick Ferrell, his only holdout, had announced he would come here for a salary conference, President Phil Ball, of the St. Louis Browns, said:

"Of course I will talk with Ferrell, but if he signs it will be at the club's terms, not his."

PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Our Flag Contenders Answer Quiz, Giving Fans Lowdown on What's What and Why.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

No. 19—OUTFIELDER LLOYD JAMES WANER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.

Hey, there, Sprout—you've been a big league star for nigh on to six years now and the boys say you are still on that load of hay. How about it?

L. Waner

I guess they are right, feller—and derned if I ain't goin' to stay right on there, too. I don't want to be city brokeafter seein' so many slickers lose everything but their spats in the panic. You can tell the folks back home that I have something left for that rainy day. And it ain't an umbrella.

Speaking of city slickers, isn't it true that the big town boys "booted" you? What did the Pirates pay for you?

I guess they were stuck for carfare from the Pacific Coast, but if everybody else is satisfied it's hunky dory with me.

Tell the fans something about your kid baseball days, Lloyd. When and where were you born, where did you first play and how did you get into the professional game?

I reckon y'all heard of Druggist Green, of Ada, Okla. If you haven't, he's the feller who put both Paul and me in the sport. I was born in Harrah, Okla., on March 16, 1906, so you see I just celebrated my twenty-seventh birthday. I played grade school ball and I guess I was a fair-to-middling' player when I graduated from McCloud (Okla.) High School. Later I attended the normal school at Ada and it was there that Druggist Green saw me. He already had Paul on his club and he asked me to play, too. Green had a good semi-professional team.

How did you get with San Francisco?

Oh, I guess it was that brother of mine. I reckon he was a-tellin' everybody he had a brother who could play better'n him, and in 1925 they asked me to join the Seals. I was glad to get the chance, but I guess I didn't look so good to the Coast League men. I played about 30 games for the Seals in 1925. That was the same year the Pirates paid a fancy price for Paul.

Did you report to the Seals in 1926?

"Yes, they wanted me back, but there was a mixup on the money. I thought I was to get a certain amount if I stayed around 60 days. I got my release out of it and then I hustled around and found Joe Devine, the Pirate scout. You see, Paul was gone by this time and I was kinda on my own hook. Joe must have liked me as a player, for he fixed it up for me to report to the Pirates, and I hurried to Pittsburgh. Joe told me I would be farmed out, and that is what happened. After working out with the Pirates for a few days in the spring of 1926 Mr. Dreyfus fixed me to play with the Columbia club, of the South Atlantic League. That club was controlled by the Pirates.

How did you fare in Columbia?

I sort of hit my stride in that league. While the season was on, Scout Bill Hinchman came to town and gave me a big puff to the Pirate bosses. I finished the season with a batting mark of .345, and that won me a real trial with the Pirates.

You were quite a puzzle to the Pirates in the spring of 1927, weren't you?

I reckon I was. Donie Bush had some good outfielders and I fooled around second base for a while, but I guess he thought I would do better in the outfield.

How did you finally break into the regular lineup?

After the Paso Robles training was over, we went on one of these long jaunts like we are takin' now. We were playing in Texas and the club was gettin' spanked regularly and Donie got a little hot. About a week before the season started he put me in left field, and dinged if I wasn't there when the season started.

You hit well your first year, didn't you?

Yes, I was in one bad slump, but I finally got to goin' and finished with a mark of .355, but that durn brother of mine made me look a little bad by battin' .380 that year. He won the valuable player prize, too.

How do you feel as regards the coming season?

I'm all right, I guess; anyhow, I just bet Paul a hat that he wouldn't beat me by more'n five points this year.

GRAPHIC GOLF

KEEP SWINGING EVEN ON TROUBLE SHOTS

Trouble shots have a tendency to cause tension in many players. Whether it is due to anger, indecision or an attempt to gain the objective by power the average golfer faced with such a condition generally resorts to a hurried and forced swing.

The expert player, on the other hand, believes in letting the clubhead do the job and takes his time and a leisurely swing. He does not frantically dig for the ball, as does the duffer, but employs the same fundamentals that govern his swing when he has a good lie on the fairway.

In the bunker the average player often becomes panic-stricken and lashes at the sand in back of the ball with all the power at his command. The same tactics, in many instances, govern his play through bad situations in the rough.

The times when even the most expert golfer does not land in trouble at some time or another during the course of a round are few. Yet, instead of worrying over the situation and tightening up his muscles, he employs his usual pivot and swings with perfect timing.

The average golfer should remember that such occasions are just part of the game and adapt a like attitude.

Favored contenders enter battle today as second round competition looms in the annual senior Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., handball title tournament on the courts of the Keystone Athletic Club. Eight contests grace the card as Champion Theos Manos, ace of the home organization, heads the parade of aspirants to the quarter-final list that will remain after completion of this afternoon's skirmishing.

The starting field of 24 glovesters was reduced to 16 as result of yesterday's initial frame contesting. Two of the seven matches actually staged went the extra-game limit, while but a single default abbreviated the schedule of hostilities.

APPLEBY VICTOR

F. E. Appleby, Keystone performer, rallied gallantly to capture the marathon decision of the session by dint of downing his clubmate, C. A. Landau, 20-21, 21-12, 21-14. In the other overtime affair, the veteran Curtis Clark, also a Keystoner, slowed down after an impressive start to drop a 16-21, 21-5, 21-0 verdict to speedy Bill Rohaly, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Parker Smith, K. A. C. entry late of the East Liberty Y, annexed feature fray of the opening seance by trimming Eddie Roche, P. A. A. luminary, 21-13, 21-20, in torrid tussle replete with protracted rallies. Smith and Roche met in the final of the A. M. A. Novice event at the Keystone several weeks ago with Smith triumphing after dropping the first game.

Al McCabe, Downtown Y darkhorse from Sewickley, caused stir by overwhelming Preininger, also of the Y. M. C. A., 21-6, 21-3. McCabe's stanza two tilt with Dave Olbum, husky Y. M. H. A. satellite, at 5:15 p. m. today should be worth watching. Frank Koubek, Keystone entry and brother of Tourney Chairman Dick Koubek, likewise flashed form in accounting for Remmy Houck, Winged Head redoubtable, 21-20, 21-5. The summary:

First round—Upper half: N. Y. Polling, Y. M. C. A., defeated Regis Wallace, Y. M. C. A., 21-20, 21-18; W. A. Rohaly, Y. M. C. A., defeated E. Curtis Clark, K. A. C., 16-21, 21-5, 21-0; E. T. Ryan, Y. M. C. A., defeated M. P. Hirschbein, K. A. C., 21-3, 21-2; A. D. McCabe, Jr., Y. M. C. A., defeated R. Preininger, Y. M. C. A., 21-6, 21-3.

Lower half: J. Parker Smith, K. A. C., defeated Eddie Roche, P. A. A., 21-13, 21-20; Frank L. Koubek, K. A. C., defeated R. C. Houck, P. A. A., 21-20, 21-5; F. E. Appleby, K. A. C., defeated C. A. Landau, K. A. C., 20-21, 21-12, 21-14; Dr. Phil Lapidus, Y. M. H. A., won from Harbaugh Miller, P. A. A., by default.

D. O'LOUGHLIN LOSES

Bill Hutchins, spectacular Pitt pre-medical student, added another cubit to his stature in the local squash racquets realm yesterday by defeating Dr. Dave O'Loughlin in consecutive games in the final match of the annual P. A. A. intra-mural handicap tournament. Hutchins, playing minus 2 to his opponent's minus 4, flashed an almost air-tight exhibition in compiling a 16-14, 15-3, 18-17 victory as a sizable gallery applauded one of the hardest-fought engagements of the campaign.

LEAGUE TO REORGANIZE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 21.—(INS.)—Karl Nikkel, of Joes Col., high scorer of Yale's basketball team for the last two years, last night was elected captain of next year's quintet. Harry Niles, of Carbondale, Pa., was appointed manager.

BE THRIFTY

● It's a pleasure to be thrifty when you use the "BLUE BLADE." Man after man has turned to this blade for economy's sake and found far greater shaving satisfaction at the same time. Why be wasteful when pennies count! Get a degree of comfort impossible to describe and actually save money. Beyond question the "BLUE BLADE" provides the cheapest shaving method known. This is true because "BLUE BLADE" edges are hard enough to cut glass, and amazingly sharp. Prove this. Try the "BLUE BLADE" on our positive money-back guarantee.

No package contains genuine "BLUE BLADES" unless it carries the portrait of King C. Gillette.

CARRIERS BUCK STOCK MARKET DOWNTREND

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP.)—Stocks leaned toward heaviness today, despite occasional efforts of the rails to resume their advance. Trading was again at a slow pace.

Offerings were light and the market had a professional tinge, the assumption being that shorts, after sharply reducing their commitments last week, had put out new lines. Declines ranged from fractions to a couple of points for an assortment of industrial specialty and utility favorites. Carriers moved narrowly, but were unable to make much headway against the general downward trend.

Word that the House Interstate Commerce Committee had been called to meet Friday to take up railroad legislation indicated that little time was to be lost in considering problems of the carriers. One of the first steps, it appeared, was to be action toward repeal of the recapture transportation act.

How much freight traffic was able to recover last week from the paralyzing effects of the banking holiday cannot yet be estimated, but preliminary returns suggest at least a fair improvement. Santa Fe, the first large carrier to report, had loadings of 19,005 cars last week against 17,514 the week before; the seasonal trend is higher at this time of year.

Foreign affairs received considerable prominence, especially the progress of Hitler toward complete dictatorship and evidence that the French were favorably disposed toward the Mussolini peace plan. The debt question pushed to the foreground in word from Washington of President Roosevelt's reported intention of seeking an advisory congressional committee which would serve as a contact between executive and legislative branches of the government before and during the debt discussions.

Money markets maintained their easy tone. Call loans on the stock exchange renewed at 3 per cent, which was yesterday's closing rate, against Monday's renewal figure of 3½.

WHEAT PRICES IN TUMBLE

CHICAGO, March 21.—Grain prices averaged lower early today. Uncertainty over proposed agricultural measures at Washington, together with fear of further liquidation of future-delivery wheat holdings by government-finances agencies, had a bearish influence. Opening ⅛-½ down, wheat rallied a little and then dropped lower than before. Corn started unchanged to ⅛-¼ off and subsequently advanced somewhat.

A transient advance of wheat prices to above yesterday's finish was associated with misinterpretation of a Washington announcement about the Red Cross taking over the stabilization corporation's wheat holdings.

Independent strength developed in corn values. Talk among corn traders was that tariff duties would be made effective on imports of black strap molasses and foreign starch as well as on vegetable and mineral oils. It was contended this would create demand for corn.

An additional factor relative both to corn and oats was wintry weather over the corn belt likely to retard the movement of corn and to cause resumption of livestock feeding operations on a big scale. Likelihood that the beer bill would be signed today was also a subject of comment.

Provisions lacked support.

Wholesale Price Index Advances

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(INS.)—Wholesale commodity prices were higher last week, according to the index of the National Fertilizer Association. The general index number advanced 3 points compared with a gain of 9 points for the preceding week. The latest index number is 57.0, a week ago it was 56.7, and a month ago 56.0. A year ago the index stood at 62.6. (The three-year average, 1926-1928, equals 100.)

Daily Oil Output Takes Sharp Jump

TULSA, Okla., March 21.—(AP.)—A reduction of 56,000 barrels in the daily average production from California failed to offset Oklahoma and Texas increases and total national crude oil output last week rose 54,535 barrels to 2,200,898 barrels daily, the Oil and Gas Journal reports.

California's output dropped from 471,000 to 415,000 barrels, due to temporary suspension of activity

Treasury's Latest Issue cost 1.83%

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The offering of $100,000,000 Treasury bills was oversubscribed, with subscriptions of $386,906,000. The bills were awarded at on average of 1.83 per cent against a rate of 4.26 per cent on the previous issue.

TRADE OUTLOOK DULL AS SEEN IN STATISTICS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 21.—In the excitement and apprehension over bank suspensions and currency shortage, we have almost forgotten business conditions as shown by statistics.

At the moment, there is a tendency further to ignore objective facts in favor of "sentiment," an effort is being made to spur up "confidence."

We have had a forcible reminder of the important part played by money. In our present-day business world, in which credit is so large a factor, a reasonably stable value of money is vital.

Credits are extended in terms of money, and if the value of money is uncertain, the whole credit mechanism is thrown out of gear. Then business comes to a standstill, except for the limited volume which can be done on a cash basis.

NEW LOWS TOUCHED

We can readily understand, therefore, why the latest weekly figures concerning business activity show that new lows for the depression have been touched. Railway car loadings and steel production fell through the lows of last summer. Automobile production literally crashed.

This was to have been expected during such a period of financial collapse. Nor should we expect an immediate recovery of the ground lost. The banks are not yet functioning normally. Checks on some banks are, rightly or wrongly, regarded with uncertainty when presented at other banks. So intersectional buying and selling are much retarded.

Nor should we lose our perspective as a result of the period of suspension. This is March; last month was February; April is coming. So let us see what the February returns show, remembering that the figures represent conditions before the suspension occurred. They show what the trend was before the temporary collapse and thus throw light on the amount of recovery that may be expected.

VOLUME AND DEMAND

First, I note that "the P-V line" (a general business barometer which I prepare) was down in February. The final January index was 83.9, which is below normal, and the February preliminary is 83. This indicates that the physical volume of trade was too large for demand at current prices.

Accordingly, while iron and steel production gained a little in February, we find unfilled orders off, prices weak and railway freight shipments lower in that month.

Building activity was very low in February. Construction contracts (floor space) were the lowest of the depression, except for last December. According to the Bureau of Labor statistics, building permits were about 46 per cent below both January and a year ago.

Department store sales (preliminary) held unchanged at the lowest level of the depression, 25 per cent below February, 1932.

COTTON EXPORT DOWN

Our foreign trade figures show the collapse of international business and reflect declining exports of cotton as well as the absence of a foreign market for our relatively high priced wheat. Exports were the lowest in many years, while imports were nearly down to the low level of last July.

Commodity price averages touched new lows in February, nor did raw materials, as a group, make any recovery.

It seems, therefore, that the cold facts of production, sales and prices prior to the financial crisis should make us cautious in interpreting any rebound as the beginning of a sustained turn. Some rally from such a shock is normal, but we must expect some bad after-effects and can hardly hope to break in a day the trends of the preceding month.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

White Motor Company and subsidiaries preliminary statement for year ended December 31, 1932, shows consolidated net loss of $3,618,000, after interest depreciation but before loss on liquidation of White Motor securities corporation stock, this compares with net loss of $2,234,956 in 1931. As of December 31 last, current assets amounted to $19,410,000, including $7,171,000 cash, and current liabilities were $1,096,000.

Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit System, including Brooklyn and Queens Transit Corporation, reports for eight months ended February 28, 1933, net income of $4,508,014 after taxes, charges and minority interests, equal after dividend requirements on the $48,353 shares of $6 preferred, to $4.74 a share on 741,251 shares of common. This compares with net of $4,687,781 or $4.79 a share on 769,911 common shares for eight months ended February 29, 1932.

Rund Manufacturing Company report for 1932 shows net loss after charges and depreciation of $200,084, compared with net loss of $111,483 in 1931. Cash and marketable securities, at cost, amounted to $1,767,805; current assets totaled $2,604,901, while current liabilities were $25,774. Total current assets as of the end of 1932 were $2,604,901.

Pure Oil Company net income for 1932 equaled $2.14 on the combined 300,000 shares of 8 per cent, 6 per cent and 5½ per cent preferred stocks, against $1.56 a share on the combined preferred stocks in the year ended March 31, 1932. Current assets were $24,718,661 and current liabilities $11,852,350.

Houdaille Hershey Corporation and subsidiaries 1932 net loss was $590,523 after all charges, against net profit in 1931 of $226,232.

G. R. Kinney Company report for 1932 shows net loss of $590,004 after charges, depreciation and amortisation. In 1931, loss before inventory adjustments was $685,771.

Servel, Inc., report for quarter ended January 31, 1933, including subsidiaries, shows net loss of $240,799 after depreciation, bond interest and after applying reserves specifically set up for the quarter's operations. This compares with net loss of $27,209 in the quarter ended January 31, 1932.

W. T. Grant Company reports 1932 earnings of $1,588,498, equal to $1.53 a capital share against net income of $3,105,698, or $2.59 a share in 1931.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, March 21.—The market was due 5c lower, opened ¼ to ½c off and at 12:15 p. m. was down ½c. At 2:15 p. m. the market was ⅝ pence higher to ⅜ pence lower.

Rubber Market.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Crude rubber futures opened quiet. March, 3.01c bid; May, 3.08c bid; September, 3.27c bid.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 21.—The trend of bond market prices was lower in a sluggish market today, the boom having apparently faded a trifle from the recent full-blown rally. An early advance in various foreign issues, notably the Germans, slowed down perceptibly, and United States government securities were quite heavy at one time.

NEW YORK, March 21.—(A.P.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Consolidating Gains Is Now Healthy Sign

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

ADVANCING ARMIES talk about "consolidating gains." That is what this country is now doing.

Since their spectacular rush forward on reopening, the security and commodity exchanges have been marking time. This is altogether healthy, encouraging reassurance. Indeed, a further spell of firm quietness would be interpreted as salutary at this stage.

We are perhaps too close to the scene to get a proper perspective of the importance of all that has happened during the last fortnight. That Europe has been greatly impressed is reflected by the high appraisal it now puts on the American dollar. Europeans are under no delusion that the United States is abandoning the gold standard after the fashion of Britain. That this country will adhere to gold need not be doubted for an instant.

Our banking crisis has been most successfully met. Our national finances have been handled thus far in masterly fashion; expenditures are being drastically cut and income promises to be increased substantially. The prohibition problem, which long has torn the country, promises to be tremendously relieved. President Roosevelt has been granted unprecedented powers to cope effectively with any and every situation that may arise. America has decisively ceased drifting. It now has aggressive direction.

All this has transformed sentiment in responsible circles. Bankers have ceased to shiver. Industrialists have thrown off acute nervousness and are now in a mood to act constructively. Investors' holdings have literally increased billions of dollars in market value. Agricultural commodities likewise have rebounded from their recent inordinately low levels.

In short, the almost universal feeling is that a new and more inspiring chapter has been opened. It is well, however, that gains be consolidated rather than that reaction be invited by too-rapid, uninterrupted advances.

I UNDERSTAND that certain national advertisers who pulled in their horns when banking and buying were paralyzed are now planning to adopt enterprising sales policies.

PRESSURE IS being exercised by certain chain and other large buyers to induce manufacturers and other suppliers to guarantee not to increase prices for six months or the balance of the year.

Such demands are utterly unreasonable.

Almost every price today is unduly and unprofitably low. Manufacturers, producers and others should not bind themselves not to improve the lot of their employes and their stockholders for many months to come. The sooner wages can be increased and dividends restored, the better will it be for the nation.

It is one thing to pledge no increase in prices for a brief period—as Kelvinator, for example, is doing; but it is a very different thing to seek to compell sellers to undertake not to avail themselves of improving conditions for half-a-year or nine months.

It is to be hoped that long before 1933 ends, the general price level will have advanced materially.

SEVERAL CALIFORNIA readers assure this column that eastern newspapers have greatly exaggerated the actual property damage done by the earthquake. One emphasized that "not a single modern building has been destroyed."

The president of Southern California's leading insurance company advises me that it has sustained no loss whatsoever, life, accident or property.

BANKERS ARE amazed at the vast amount of hidden savings revealed. The Chemical Bank of New York in one day received, through its various offices, seventy $10,000 yellowbacks of the old size!

America is not down and out!

(Copyright, 1933, B. C. Forbes.)

Kelvinator Move Guarantees Price

DETROIT, March 21.—Announcement of new low prices, guaranteed for the next 40 days against the possible effects of an expected upturn in commodity prices, was made today by George W. Mason, chairman of the board and president of Kelvinator Corporation.

In making this announcement, Mr. Mason pointed out that the new prices for this limited time affect his company's entire line of 1933 household electric refrigerators. Expressing his opinion that before the period has elapsed the cost of raw materials will be climbing, he reminded that this eventuality would necessitate a price revision upward.

Business Failures Decrease Sharply

NEW YORK, March 21.—Business failures in the United States during the past week, according to Dun and Bradstreets, Inc., were only 382 as compared with 494 and 556 respectively in the two preceding weeks, and 708 in the corresponding week of last year.

Baron to Die, Jack Pearl Decrees

By AIRCASTER.

"Yeah, I know—it's like homicide, but my mind is made up. The Baron is doomed. I'm killing him after June 22."

Jack Pearl's lips were drawn tight as he said it between shows in Baltimore, where, with Cliff (Sharlie) Hall, the comedian, he is vaudevilling.

Jack feels that he owes much of his success to the character of the modest Munchausen. The weekly ritual of luxuriant lies, the incredulous interpolations of "Sharlie" have made the broadcasts an institution.

But Pearl is basically a showman, and he senses that even an ace character can be overworked. Hence, the aerial Baron succumbs and passes completely into oblivion in just 14 weeks. At that time, Pearl will desert radio temporarily to go into pictures. When he resumes his broadcasts on October 5, he will assume a new role, but will maintain, of course, the German dialect. Pearl explains wistfully:

"It's like parting with an old friend, but I am firmly convinced that to continue the Baron in the autumn would be overplaying. And I wish you would do me a favor. I want your readers, if they will be so kind, to send me some suggestions as to the type of German character they would wish me to portray after the summer lay-off."

Announcements Cut

If, during the coming 10 days, the aerial ballyhoo should wax a bit intensive, it must not be regarded as cause for alarm on the part of esthetic listeners. After that period, the commercial talk will be drastically curtailed by most major programs.

As pointed out previously, none of them wants to lose the Canadian radio outlets, which, by a government order, are prohibited more than 3 per cent advertising per hour. The Magic Carpet hours, by official order of the sponsors, have already sliced the ballyhoos to three 30-second announcements. At least nine other major programs will follow suit by April 1, but in the meantime, will, no doubt, try to make up for future brevity by rubbing in thickly during the 10-day respite.

The combination for musical and verbal ballyhoo, rendered facetiously, and introduced by Phil Baker on his debut last Friday, charts something of a new course in commercial procedure and affords a pleasant change, made more pleasant by Baker's comedy, heightened by the presence of at least three stooges. With more experience and better gags, it seems to me that Phil Baker is going to sound a new note in radio comedy.

Tony Mourns Dog

Tony Wons, sojourning in Chicago, has just learned that his pet dog, the animal which he frequently discusses on the air as a canine prodigy, was killed by an auto the day he left New York. Patsy was Tony's pride and joy, and when the accident occurred, Mrs. Wons, fearing that the news would interfere with Tony's tour withheld it. But Tony, somehow, had a hunch that something was wrong and telegraphed home. It was then that the bad news was given him.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, everybody:

Right off the bat, another big national problem is presented. John E. Hamadock, of Elizabeth, is wondering who was the President of the United States from midnight March 3, 1933, to the time the new President was inaugurated on March 4.

It doesn't seem to make much difference now but in order to clear the matter up and remove the worry from anyone who might think this country was struggling along part time without an executive we refer to the constitution which says that the President shall hold office for four years. It doesn't say anything about the four-year period expiring at midnight of March 3, so Mr. Hoover was the President until the actual swearing in of Mr. Roosevelt.

From a constitutional question to home beautifying usually is no trouble at all for the Trotter, but this time it's different and so Mrs. Miller you will have to wait yet for your answer to the question as to how to prevent the roots of trees from penetrating the house. Any globe trotter who has had similar difficulty is invited to write.

Thanks to Hubert F. Lassiter and John W. Cavenchi, of the steamer R. J. Heslop, who told me that I did as much damage to the pronunciation of the name as the flood did to the steamer P. F. Pfeill. It is pronounced "File."

It was awfully nice of Mrs. L. W. Martin, of Carnegie, to write that description and send me the picture postcard of the Pittsburgh flood of 1908. Liberty avenue, near the Wabash station, looks like a scene from Venice with the exception that the local citizenry appear anything but romantic, with men wearing stiff, uncomfortable looking derbies and women painfully erect and grim as if each moment they expected their luxuriantly flower bedecked headgears to topple over. Twenty-five years from now we will look just as funny to ourselves.

Flapper

Sondra Kostner plays a leading role in the third dramatic episode of "The Flapper's Daughter" on WCAE at 6:45 tonight. The presentation is one of a series based on Beatrice Burton's new story which starts in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

'The Chorus Lady' On Two Stations

"The Chorus Lady," a dramatization of an article published in the next issue of the American Weekly, with Nancy Welford, famed comedienne, portraying the title role, is presented today on WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., at 5:15 p. m., and WKBN, Youngstown, O., at 9 p. m.

The American Weekly is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.

Seibel Discusses 'Plays, Players'

George Seibel, dramatic and literary critic of the Sun-Telegraph, chats about news and personalities of the theater during his weekly "Plays and Players" talk on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

A quarter-hour of fun with Uncle Bob and Betty as they read the Sun-Telegraph comic pages is listed for WCAE dialers at 6 p. m.

Speaking from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest bulletins over WCAE and WJAS daily at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Joan Blondell In Hollywood Broadcast

Stepping into the role of "Papa Fussenfumer" with the broad German dialect that has brought him success on musical comedy and vaudeville stages, Solly Ward launches the new Five Star Theater Tuesday night shows on WJAS tonight at 10 o'clock.

Labeled "the perfect radio program," the presentations will replace the symphonic series featuring noted guest soloists. The musical portion of the program will continue to be under the supervision of Josef Bonime, alias "Mr. Stickshaker." Although Ward's name has been a prominent one on the stage for more than a decade, tonight marks his first appearance before the microphone in a major program.

Ed Anthony, stage and screen writer who, with Frank Buck, wrote the best seller, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," comes to the air as guest speaker on the CBS-WJAS "Going to Press" broadcast tomorrow at 4:45 p. m.

Another dramatic episode based on Beatrice Burton's new story starting in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph, "The Flapper's Daughter," is presented by an all-star cast under the direction of Ed Harvey on WCAE at 6:15 tonight. Helen Wayne and Sondra Kostner play the principal roles.

Joan Blondell chats about Hollywoodoings as guest star on the "California Melodies" program over WJAS at 9:30.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF

NEW GAS RATES

by

THE MANUFACTURERS LIGHT & HEAT COMPANY

...o all residential and commercial customers using gas for ...ice purposes in the following Pennsylvania counties— ...eaver, Butler, Greene, Lawrence, Mercer and Washington

TWO NEW RATE SCHEDULES, both of which offer substantial reductions—permitting the individual consumer to select the one which is best adapted to his own circumstances, and which promises him the greatest savings.

1 A reduction of 25% on monthly consumptions of gas between 15,000 and 100,000 cu. ft.—and an additional reduction on quantities over 100,000 cu. ft.

This new rate—after the regular cash discount of 3c—will be 45c per thousand cu. ft. for monthly consumptions between 15,000 and 100,000 cu. ft. instead of the present net rate of 60c—and 42c net per thousand cu. ft. for quantities above 100,000 feet.

These reductions are effective at once—as discounts from present charges—and apply to bills received by customers on or about March 27 and thereafter.

This new rate will apply automatically to all customers except those who elect the Optional Rate, described to the right.

There is no change in the rate for the first 15,000 cu. ft. of monthly consumption.

2 An Optional Rate which, for certain customers—and particularly for many of those using in excess of 10,000 cu. ft. per month—will effect even greater savings than those already mentioned.

This Optional Rate is as follows:

First 500 cu. ft. per month.....60c
Next 4,500 cu. ft. per month.....60c net per 1,000 cu. ft.
Next 5,000 cu. ft. per month.....55c net per 1,000 cu. ft.
Next 15,000 cu. ft. per month.....50c net per 1,000 cu. ft.
Next 75,000 cu. ft. per month.....45c net per 1,000 cu. ft.
All over 100,000 cu. ft. per month.....40c net per 1,000 cu. ft.

This Optional Rate can be elected—for a period of one year—at any time prior to April 30, 1935.

With these two rates to choose from, the customer can select that rate which—on the basis of his own consumption—promises him the greatest saving.

A still further reduction in gas rates to churches, public schools and public hospitals is also offered.

All these rate changes will be effective immediately, as discounts from present charges. They will continue until April 30, 1935, or the regular meter reading date nearest to that date.

It is a matter of real regret that we cannot make any reduction in rates for the smaller consumers. Most small accounts are already serviced at a loss, and a reduction would simply add to our already critical problem of continuing service to these customers.

The savings made possible by these new low rates should create a new and expanding interest in gas for all heating purposes, and particularly for central house heating. The home owner already heating with gas will find that the new rates bring substantial reductions. The home owner who would like to heat with gas, but who has been compelled to forego the extraordinary convenience and comfort of this ideal fuel, can now turn to gas with assurance of real economy.

In commercial and special industrial applications, too, gas, at these new rates, offers new possibilities in lower costs and greater efficiencies.

For more complete information on the new gas rates, write, phone or call at any Manufacturers' office for a copy of the booklet—"Your Choice of Two New Gas Rates." Company representatives will be glad to explain the new rates and to show you in detail just how they may affect you.

Coal Operators Here Plan Central Agency

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

COAL OPERATORS in the Pittsburgh district are planning the formation of a regional sales agency in an effort to eliminate cut-throat competition which has brought the industry to the brink of ruin.

Action here follows a recent United States Supreme Court ruling favorable to the pooling of sales efforts by coal producers in individual districts. The court refused to uphold a decision of a lower court which enjoined Appalachian Coals, Inc., an organization formed to centralize the sale of coal in southern fields. Appalachian Coals never actually operated on a wide commercial basis. It was formed to test the legality of the co-operative sale of coal.

The favorable court action will result in the development of Appalachian Coals into a commercial organization with the sale of a major share of the Eastern Kentucky and Southern West Virginia coal under its domination. Ohio operators are planning a similar organization as are those of Western Pennsylvania.

* * *

Pittsburgh Program Remains Incomplete

THE DETAILS of the plan to place the sale of all the Pittsburgh district coal into the hands of a single sales organization still are incomplete. The proposal is being favorably received by a majority of operators although some point to serious difficulties which must be overcome before they will be willing to join in the plan.

During the time that the Appalachian Coals case was before the courts, a series of meetings was held by leading coal operators in order to lay the groundwork for the new organization. The Supreme Court decision now has let down the bars and will permit further efforts to complete the plan.

* * *

Distribution of Orders Proves Serious Problem

THE DISTRIBUTION of orders booked by the central sales organization appears to be the most serious problem confronting the leaders of the movement here. If all mines produced the same kind of coal the plan would be simple. The regional sales agency would merely fix the price, sell in competion with agencies and individual operators in other districts, and divide the orders among the mines in this district in proportion to their capacity.

As an actual fact, however, wide variations are to be found in the quality of coal obtained from individual mines. Consumers through experience have developed preferences for the coal of particular companies and particular mines where their operations make exacting requirements necessary.

These conditions would make it difficult for the regional sales organization to represent all mines and to treat them all impartially. Where customers demand the product of a particular mine, the less favored operators will be likely to complain that the sales agency is not giving them fair treatment.

Some coal operators declare that the success of a regional sales organization for this district will hinge on the ability of the sponsors of the plan to work out an agreement satisfactory to producers of all types of coal.

Refiners Follow Advance in Sugar

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP.)—Several more sugar refiners, including American Sugar, today announced price advances of a tenth of a cent per pound in refined, bringing the quotation to 4.20c. The Pennsylvania Sugar Company initiated the movement yesterday.

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

GRIPPING SERIAL OF A BUSINESS GIRL'S BATTLE FOR LOVE

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"Be quiet!" Judith's voice boomed through the little apartment. "You, of all people, to talk of bad behavior, Loranda! Why, you should be down on your knees and thanking me for saving those letters that could have absolutely ruined you! They're in that trunk, if you want to know . . . they've never been out of it! Nor have I, nor anyone through me, looked at them. But if you dare to come here and insult me—"

"You threaten me?"

"It's you who's doing the threatening! Barry did come here—he's an old friend of mine—you followed him and spied on him——"

"No. Simpler than that." Loranda's hand shook as she opened her cigarette case and lit one. "I'd a detective watch your building . . ."

There was a pregnant pause.

"So things are as bad as that between you and Barry?" Judith said slowly.

DEMANDS LETTERS

Loranda spat out: "Keep your hands off my property, I'm warning you! And here and now I want my letters!" She made a quick dart towards the trunk.

"Sit down a minute, Loranda. It's locked. If you want me to help you, you'll have to take a different tone with me. I assure you I'm nobody's fool. It's true I took those letters from Genevieve — she asked me to take them and show them to Barry! I have not done so yet. But had I not got them out of Genevieve's hands, most assuredly she would have made trouble with them."

Loranda drew a long breath.

"Genevieve's nerves are shot to pieces. There's no counting on anything she does or says! But now I'm here I want my letters. I'll admit I had a flirtation with Cliss before I fell in love with Barry—when you met me that night at the door of his apartment. I'd gone to try and get my letters back."

Zella walked into the apartment.

"I didn't know you were here, Loranda! I've been telephoning all over town, trying to reach you! Your mother's taken sick! Jump in a taxi and get home—she's had a heart attack."

MOTHER DIES

Loranda was startled. She wasn't particularly fond of her mother—they bickered incessantly—and there had been plenty of false alarms about that weak heart of hers.

"All right. I'll go. I'll see you tomorrow about this other matter, Judith."

"You'll find Barry at your home, Loranda," said Zella. "I called him, to find out where you were. He's at the apartment."

"Gracious, is it as serious as that? Poor mumsie! I'll rush—"

Loranda went off.

* * *

Barry did not come to see Judith that night, nor did he telephone until 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Tewson, it seemed, was very sick.

She died at 3 o'clock in the morning.

"Loranda will inherit plenty now! 'To him that hath shall be given.'" Zella said grimly.

But a few days later, it transpired that Loranda had come into a great deal less than was expected . . . what with the death duties, and the slump in stocks, and the fact that her mother had been steadily digging into her capital, Loranda would have no more, all told, than about $6,000 a year.

PITIES LORANDA

"Why, that wouldn't even keep her in clothes, poor kid!" Betty Graves declared.

"She's got the shop, of the business depression have affected it badly, as everything else."

Zella had reason to be worried, not only on Loranda's account, but on her own.

If trade dropped away to nothing, contract or no contract she would lose her position!

In the days following Mrs. Tewson's unexpected death, Barry and Judith managed to meet only twice, at lunch time.

"Oh, Barry, what are we to do? You can't break things off when she's in such trouble——"

Barry was thinking: "What can I do? What on earth can I do?"—for Loranda seemed wonderfully softened, broken up by the loss of her mother. It was as though she feared Barry out of her sight. She claimed all his time and attention.

"Of course," Jack Ordway said, "that's making money, isn't it?"

"No, Zella's rather worried. The slump on the market and Judith had spoken no word to him about Loranda's letters, or the detective hired by Loranda to follow him that evening.

That was all bluff, no doubt. Wretched as she was over the dilemma she was in, Judith felt a queer kind of pity for Loranda.

Things would have to drift. In the meantime, there was no other way out.

As for eloping with Barry—both of them throwing up their jobs—ruining Barry's splendid prospects in New York—that was unthinkable.

During the day, Judith rarely had a glimpse of him, for her work was on the other side of the building.

LETTERS RETURNED

One evening there was a trying scene with Loranda. A chastened Loranda had implored Judith to return her packet of letters. Loranda had declared that she would kill herself if she lost Barry Deane . . . she had even attempted to bribe Judith with a diamond wristwatch.

"I wouldn't dream of accepting such a thing! Here are your precious letters. I've only been waiting the opportunity to give them back to you," Judith averred.

She tried to thrust Barry out of her mind and heart.

Loranda loved him. Loranda had reformed. She had very influential friends, was close to the Graves family, and had $6,000-a-year.

What had Judith to offer in comparison to that, except that she, too, loved Barry?

Her mind and soul perplexed, anxious to do the right thing—lonely too—she turned to Jack Ordway for companionship.

He took her to gay restaurants, to roofs, to theaters.

One night, after a show, they went to a new place for supper.

"Why, we've got this room all to ourselves!" Judith exclaimed. "How's this come about?"

"I fixed it we would be alone, because there's something I want to talk to you about," Jack said. Jack's hand touched Judith's when the waiter had gone.

New Beatrice Burton Serial Begins Tomorrow

What is the flapper's daughter going to be like? This is a question that thoughtful parents and educators have been asking themselves for some time as they have watched many of that famous generation of girls keep up their flapper extravagances even after they become mothers. It is a question that is answered by the famed novelist, Beatrice Burton. For in her new novel, "The Flapper's Daughter," to be published serially by the Sun-Telegraph beginning tomorrow, the flapper's daughter comes of age! And her name is "Sharlie."

There are thousands of "Sharlies" coming of age all over the country but Miss Burton, who wrote "Mary Faith" and other novels which have been best sellers in America and England, is the first to write about these new modern misses. Don't miss the first installment of "The Flapper's Daughter" in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Why is it that many husbands and wives appear so bored when seen together outside their home?

You'd think they had not one thing in common to talk about—the way so many preserve that silent stare.

The only time that either smiles is when a third party joins them.

It is said that people in love are happy and contented just to be together.

In some instances this happy state exists among married couples but to observe quietly the couples around you in a public gathering you'd doubt it.

There is no prettier sight than married couples with their families who talk in an animated way with one another—parents and bright happy children.

How much more pleasant the picture than the one in which husband and wife sit with scowls on their faces, voices raised in raucous tones as they command or reprimand their little ones.

The grouchy parents lose a lot of happiness they might enjoy.

Ill temper is largely a habit that grows with the years.

It is hard to understand parents who are so short-sighted that they cannot see that they will eventually lose the friendship of children by scowls.

1920: Volstead knocked everybody dry with punch to stomach. He tapped us with 18 left amendments and got away without a return.

1921: Brewers start home training for return match. Tried hard, but it was dry round.

1922: Wets developed corkscrew punch. It was the real McCoy, according to impartial bootleggers.

1923: Wets went in for plenty of roadwork. Ran between here and Canada. It failed to strengthen anybody's legs.

1924: We accepted European challenge by the thousands. We won every championship abroad from light to dark.

1925: Rushed around the ring by prohibitionist seconds. However, with 50,000 blind pigs in New York we had no trouble finding a table in a neutral corner.

1926: Drys still slugging. But wets develops marvelous short punch by rapping on doors.

1927: Drys admit they're groggy, but ask for the same long count that Tunney got in Chicago.

1928: Wets train Al Smith at Houston, Tex. Kid Hoover punches bag at Kansas City. But they failed to meet. Al sprained his thumb in South and West.

1929: Drys fail to draw big purses as usual. Rockefeller cancels ringside seat.

1930: Wets shadow box in Congress looking for opening.

1931: Plenty of wet footwork with drys hollering foul.

1932: Young Roosevelt is champion of Wet A. C. Wins club title at Chicago. Kid Hoover gets dry honorable mention on his past record. They meet in world's biggest ring and Young Roosevelt knocks the Kid curly.

1933: The referee and judges think it over in Washington and give decision to the wets.

1934: How the old place has changed. Thirty-six straight punches, Wets win.

A National Obligation

The Protection of the Ohio Valley From Flood is a Task For the Federal Government.

Sweeping down the river, the high water that invaded Pittsburgh last week has brought flood to four other states in the Ohio Valley.

Broad and deep as it is, the Mississippi may not be able to hold the excess water within its banks.

The extent of the flood-stricken area witnesses that the protection of Pittsburgh from high water is not a local but a national obligation. The protection of Pittsburgh would give protection to the down river states.

Sharing the benefits, they should share the expense. The only feasible plan, accordingly, is to handle flood control in the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio as a Federal project.

It will cost $60,000,000 to build the storage reservoirs at the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela which the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh says are necessary for protection.

If the present flood were a unique disaster, the nation might well hesitate to spend so much money to prevent another such visitation.

But it is not unique. It is necessary to go back only 20 years to find another of equal magnitude in the lower Ohio Valley, and smaller floods occur every few years. The Flood Commission says it is probable Pittsburgh will have a flood greater than any hitherto experienced.

The construction of the proposed storage reservoirs is well fitted to be an unemployment relief enterprise.

The objection has sometimes been raised to the proposal that the Federal Government engage in extensive public works to break the industrial slump that months or years would be required to prepare the plans and surveys for such works, and that by the time the projects were ready for construction the slump might be over. That objection cannot be raised to the storage reservoirs, for the Flood Commission prepared the plans years ago, and United States Army engineers recently checked the surveys carefully.

Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, delivered a radio address Saturday night in which he said the administration planned, as an unemployment relief measure, to put men to work restoring trees in national forest areas which have been denuded of their timber. He mentioned flood control as one of the benefits that would follow. Cut-over forests, Dr. Tugwell explained, prevent the water from resting in the natural sponge of vegetation and let it loose upon the streams and valleys.

The Allegheny and Monongahela National Forests were acquired by the United States Government to control the stream flow of the rivers from which they take their names. The Roosevelt administration presumably will conduct reforestation operations on those tracts.

Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well. Timber at the headwaters of the rivers will give partial protection from floods, but only partial protection. Our main reliance must be on the storage reservoirs. The forests will be but supplementary.

If the flood control job is to be done completely, the reservoirs should be constructed at the same time that the reforesting work is done.

City Tax Study Resumed

It Is Gratifying That An Effort Will Be Made to Lighten the Burden on Real Estate.

The Legislature last year passed a law authorizing the City Council of Pittsburgh to tax anything not already taxed by the state. The object was to permit municipal revenue to be raised without burdening real estate excessively.

Council asked a committee of citizens, headed by W. P. Witherow, to study the subject and recommend new tax sources. The committee did not recommend additional taxation of any kind, however, but instead that municipal expenses be reduced and the tax rate cut.

The committee won public confidence and respect by this praiseworthy action, which was an important factor in gaining a lower millage for the taxpayers.

Now it is announced that the committee will resume its study and endeavor to find sources of taxation which will ease the strain on land and buildings.

It is a welcome announcement; for the tax on real estate is still excessive. It is responsible for many of the empty storerooms and offices downtown. High taxes necessitate high rents, and high rents make it difficult for merchants to make money.

If Mr. Witherow's committee can devise an equitable plan for distribution of the tax burden, which will permit a profitable use of real estate now rendered idle by an insupportable impost, it will render a public service of the first importance.

A Stone and a Serpent

It is High Time That Gov. Pinchot and the Legislature Became Practical

"What man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?"

Four hundred thousand families in Pennsylvania, dependent on the State, will face starvation in two weeks unless Gov. Pinchot and the Legislature come to their aid in the meantime.

This is how Pinchot proposes to aid them. He asks the counties to let the State collect certain taxes. If the State collects more than the counties would be able to collect, half of the excess is to go to the poor.

"Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?"

Representative Clinton A. Sowers has introduced a bill providing for unemployment relief by legalizing and conducting lotteries.

SUN-TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

1—A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
6—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
7—Development of river transportation.
8—Development of air transportation.
9—Electrification of railroads.
10—Fair public utility rates.

Breaking the Jam

(Copyright, 1933.)

Only 17 days have elapsed since Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his Inaugural Address, promised ACTION. But those 17 days will be memorable in the nation's annals.

The business of government seemed hopelessly jammed when the new President entered office. And already the jam is broken.

The banks have been rescued from panic and the gold reserve has been saved from foreign raiders and hoarders.

Sane solution of the beer problem is under way.

Drastic reduction of the Federal budget has been assured.

Farm relief, to be effective this year, has been formulated.

Unemployment is receiving deserved and expert attention.

The jam in government has been broken. The nation and the people can GO AHEAD.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 21.—Not even the serenest small town is more house-keeping conscious than rock-ribbed Manhattan. There is scarcely a metropolitan newspaper that does not carry a column or so daily of hints to housewives and on Sunday, usually a double-page spread.

The telephone directories show an amazing list of cooking schools and housekeeping institutes. Theatrical folk, assured of a long run, immediately desert hotels for furnished apartments. High-priced chorus girls have their flats, presided over by "professional mamas."

In front of the theatrical clubs every dusk, are wives in cars, waiting to escort their husbands to the suburbs for home-cooked dinner. On the surface, New York seems filled with cafes and assorted eating places, but these depend chiefly upon the city's enormous floating population.

There's an informality, too, about city folk, often not seen in towns. Out yonder, they speak of the Rogers, the Goldbergs, the Rices and the Aylesworths. In New York, it's always Betty and Bill Rogers, Rube and Irma Goldberg, Grant and Kate Rice and Dot and Deac Aylesworth. And so on.

Many actors try to buy their way to Broadway, but seldom do they try to buy their way off that street. Last year, Fred Stone contracted to do a show for a producer. After a few rehearsals, Stone went to his bank and secured a large sum to offer the producer to withdraw it. The latter stood firm—a contract was a contract. Stone appeared. His judgment was vindicated. The play was a flop.

Several years ago, I received a shyly-written letter in schoolgirl hand from one who wanted to breast the theatrical currents here. She lived in a midwest town, and planned to run away. I scribbled across it to wait until she was graduated from school, at least, and even then it was a gamble. She did not take my advice. Today, she called, a victim of the usual Broadway metamorphosis. A hard-bitten little creature, badly rouged and with the suggestion of a gin husk in her voice. She smoked cigarets furiously, and talked blatantly of the loose world in which she evidently has been living. Anyway, she is on her way home, but I do not think to stay. They seldom do.

A soap-box hot gospeler in Columbus Circle, fevered by anti-capitalistic syrup, was predicting civilization's doom. "I hear already," he shouted, "the onrush of the thundering herd. It soon will sweep the nation, and with righteous hooves trample the tides of the rich." And Verne Porter, grabbing my arm, whispered: "Let's hurry home. I scar easily."

When the sun drops toward setting, there is not a more entrancing vista than that of Washington Bridge from that upsweep of Riverside Drive, known as Inspiration Point. Such artists as Leon Gordon, Howard Chandler Christy, Joseph Urban and Dean Cornwell are frequent visitors, and an acre of autos park there, nightly. It is impressive, how tip-toey people are leaving cars for a better view. For the moment, they seem stormy city souls at armistice with the fight to live!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

To Venture

To venture: This is all of life,
To brave the conflict and the strife.
To go undaunted, though with fear
At heel forever, drawing near.
To test, to seek, though doubts are born
That all the quest must be forlorn.

To venture always, not to quail
Before the dread that means to fail;
To press ahead with lifted gaze
That finds, beyond the moment's maze,
The golden hope which, like the sun,
Gives life to all it shines upon.

To venture into unknown seas,
To spurn the charted ways of ease,
To thrill with purpose to explore
The deeps no ship has sailed before;
This, this is life, and this alone
Brings joys the greatest souls have known!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Here's a new one. "FOR WOMEN ONLY." To be answered by YOU. By special request.

A well known American author is writing a book about women. Not one of those usual chit-chat things which gentlemen broadcast about ladies—and at which most ladies snicker up their sleeves. But—and don't you admire his nerve?—a book that's Going to Tell the Truth.

Ha-ha! And also tee-hee! Yes, but wait a minute before you get too hilarious, sister!

This author happens to be pretty good when it comes to knowing the truth about women. Almost TOO good! But, of course, you never can tell. You may know the Truth About Women at 3:49 P. M., and yet be entirely haywire at 4:23. If you don't believe it, ask any married man!

And so the famous author isn't going to take any chances. He intends to get his information direct—from the girls, themselves. Which means YOU.

Here's the plan.

He wants me to broadcast this query:

"WHAT HAS HAD THE GREATEST INFLUENCE ON YOUR LIFE?"

What does he mean by "influence?" Good influence? Bad influence? He doesn't specify—and it doesn't matter. He simply wants to know what sort of experience, be it good or evil, has contributed most toward making you what you are today.

Think back. Ten years ago, twenty, thirty or fifty, you were a little girl. Pretty much like all other little girls. Dreamy, Tomboyish. Sassy. Lovable and lazy. Delighted with a new dress and bright beads. Beginning to be excited about little boys. A regular little girl with the usual makings.

And now, today, you're—what?

A woman. Different from all other women. With a different personality—distinct notions and desires. Perhaps a housewife and mother. Perhaps an unmarried worker. Or a Big Business Executive. Or a successful Professional.

WHATEVER YOU ARE, WHY DID YOU GET THAT WAY?

What outer experience — what secret impulse—has made you what you are?

Romance? The love of a man—

Family loyalty? The pressing need of your blood kin—

Motherhood? The clinging helplessness of a child—

Did some gnawing grief or searing shame drive you to seek forgetfulness in work—or in marriage?

Or was it Love of Self—balked egotism—the determination to "show 'em?" Many a woman has made good for that!

Or perhaps the emotions played little part in your decision. Did your head, rather than your heart, shape your career?

Did the adventure of business lure you?

Of the glamour or art?

Of the downright need of good, hard cash?

What made you want to do the thing you've done? Or have you never done the thing you want? And if not, why not?

Come on now! Honest! Tell the Big Man the truth about yourself—if you dare!

Sign your name, or not, as you choose. Address it to this paper. Mr. X, care of Elsie Robinson. And if you wish, ask him to answer you. Maybe he will!

RIGHT AND WRONG

By Winifred Black

"Do you know," said the Wise Woman, taking off her spectacles, and laying them in the book she'd been reading. "Do you know, I'm getting sick and tired of theories and excuses and apologies and explanations.

"When my father and mother were bringing me up, they made me believe that whatever I did was my own fault.

"If I fibbed nobody would believe a word I said.

"If I was careless about money, it would be hard for me to borrow even a nickel for car fare.

"If I gossiped about my friends, it wouldn't be long until I wouldn't have any friends at all.

"And whatever I did and whatever I didn't do—it was my own fault, and the best thing I could do was to study my faults and correct them.

"My grandchildren are taught that nobody is to blame for anything. The boy who robs his father's bank is not a cold blooded, cold hearted, selfish thief, he's just a poor unfortunate who has something wrong with his glands.

"If a girl makes a fool of herself and breaks up some other woman's comfortable home, poor thing, she's just learning to live, that's all.

"We used to be taught that a promise was a promise and that a promise must be kept at any kind of sacrifice.

"Say the word promise to one of my grandchildren and poof! listen to them laugh.

"What was true yesterday is false today, what is right today is going to be wrong tomorrow.

"It's all a matter of geography anyhow, what's wicked in Peoria, Ill., is perfectly proper in Pango-Pango—that's the way they talk.

"Well, I'm getting tired of it all. It doesn't seem to mean anything. I'm going back to the old yes and no, right and wrong, take it or leave it program.

"If this new 'catch-as-catch-can' 'well what of it?' and 'whose business is it?' code brought any kind of happiness—it might be a different story.

"But people are just as unhappy now and just as poor and just as unlucky as they were when they meant what they said and said what they meant and stuck to it.

"And do you know", the Wise Woman leaned forward in her comfortable chair and shook a vigorous elderly finger in the manner of prophecy:

"Do you know," she said, "I believe that by the time my grandchildren have grown up they'll have to turn right around in their tracks and stand for the honest, old-fashioned, clear eyed, determined virtues—or watch the fooling, shambling, unstable world they have built up around them go down in utter collapse.

"That being so," said my friend the Wise Woman, "I'll take a cup of tea and a cookie, if you please, a cookie with chocolate frosting on it and some brown raisins—if you don't mind."

Gold Embargo Would Be Strong Weapon Against Depression

By JULIUS G. BERENS
Financial Editor, New York American

THE WASHINGTON financial oligarchy holds a powerful anti-depression weapon which it seems to be frittering away unknowingly.

It is the power which reposes in a gold embargo.

By permitting export to Italy of a portion of the gold which that and other nations have accumulated in the United States, the administration opens the way for possible transfer of the entire "ear-marked" stock of gold, variously estimated into hundreds of millions of dollars.

There are many reasons why a gold embargo AT THIS TIME is advisable for the United States.

France and England are credited with having accumulated the greatest part of the "ear-marked" gold.

England has acquired this gold by exchanging for our gold dollars her own pounds sterling. The latter is wholly a paper currency, which is not currently redeemable in gold.

Therefore, by invoking an indefinite gold embargo, the United States in effect would offer to trade its dollars, without the obligation of gold conversion, for the currencies of other nations.

Supply and demand would dictate the price.

The whole world is in debt to the United States.

Commercial debts to us probably aggregate fifteen thousand millions of dollars.

Besides these, war debts approximating eleven thousand millions of dollars are due us.

OUR MERCHANDISE trade with the world is at least evenly balanced as between exports and imports.

The preponderant influence, therefore, would be toward demand for the American dollar, with which the world could repay its debts to the United States.

If the gold standard were operating normally throughout the world, therefore, we would in time have a permanent inflow of gold toward these shores.

But the gold standard is not operating normally.

England, which represents six hundred millions of the world's population, pays its debts in pound sterling, which is a paper currency.

But England at every opportunity has acquired GOLD IN EXCHANGE FOR HER PAPER MONEY.

Today, OFF the gold standard, the Bank of England has MORE GOLD than when the country was ON the gold standard!

THE BRITISH payment to us of the December 15 war debt installment in gold has since proven wholly theatrical; England has GAINED in gold since that payment many millions more than the total involved.

Which leads to the relationship between war debts and a gold embargo.

Except for minor amounts, the gold which is "earmarked" in the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is held for the account of nations OWING US WAR DEBTS.

France, for example, has refused to pay the December 15 war debts installment. She has repudiated her debt to the United States.

Yet we have been allowing France to acquire immense amounts of gold which have been taken back to Europe or now are set aside here for French account.

England has intimated she will refuse to pay additional installments of her debt BECAUSE SHE HASN'T GOT THE NECESSARY GOLD.

The war debts are payable in DOLLARS.

We should allow the whole world to have all the dollars it needs. We will take dollars in payment for their debts to us, commercial or war debts.

Thus, gold needn't enter into these transactions.

WHEN THE WORLD is ready for resumption of the normal workings of the gold standard, new arrangements, if necessary, can be effected.

Let the administration so notify the world at large.

The world can have all the dollars it demands or needs. But no gold until currency stabilization has been effected the world over.

Let's not fear the cry of "dollar depreciation" if a gold embargo is invoked.

Internally, the dollar can be maintained as sound as ever, just so long as the government sticks to the "sound currency" edict of President Roosevelt.

If the dollar temporarily shrinks in value abroad, it would be the biggest Buy American slogan that human ingenuity can devise.

The foreign debtor to this nation would lose his cry that the dollar is too costly.

The foreign buyer would find American merchandise more attractive, since it would cost him less in terms of his own money.

And, most important of all, if foreign currencies APPRECIATE in value—which is the same as saying that the dollar has depreciated abroad—what will be the effect on world prices?

IF FOREIGN currency depreciation is blamed for the shrinking prices of commodities the world over, isn't it logical then to expect that increasing values for foreign currencies would increase the value of commodities?

At the bottom of the American, the whole world's, economic problem lies the necessity for advancing commodity prices.

The administration holds in its hand a weapon whose influence might prove startling if bravely wielded.

Certainly, the administration cannot overlook this merely for the supposed pride which exists in a free and open movement of gold.

We have stopped the free flow of gold internally in the United States. Our citizens cannot redeem even gold certificates for gold.

Let us hold in this country all the gold which now is here.

We have tried to maintain the classic gold standard in the face of world abandonment, virtually, and with what results? An accentuated depression.

The administration holds all the aces.

Let it have the courage to try the multi-influential gold embargo.
